Index to Record and Guide Vol. LXXXIV.

For Manhattan and the Bronx Auction Sales, Conveyances, Leases, Mortgages and Projected Buildings.

NOS. 2155 to 2180 JULY—DECEMBER, INCLUSIVE. 1909

PREFACE.

The following is the semi-annual Index of Volume LXXXIV, of the Record and Guide, containing complete lists of the Auction Sales, Conveyances, Leases, Mortgages and Buildings Projected in Manhattan and Bronx during the last six months of 1909. Those wishing to keep a file for permanent reference should see that all the numbers are complete and have them bound. Cost of binding, $2.50 per volume. A suitable temporary binder, holding one volume, can be obtained at the office, 11-15 East 24th st; price, one dollar.

THE KEY.

* Before any page No. indicates an Auction Sale.

† Before any page No. indicates a New Building projected.

Figures in parenthesis are leases.

Figures preceded by capital letters are mortgages, said capital letter indicating the first letter of the name of the mortgagor.

Figures without any signs whatsoever are Conveyances.

EXAMPLE.

Henry st, from Catharine st, to Market st, †167, R 243 *535, 925 R 936 D 1024 L 1026 D 1071 (1142).

On page *535 an auction sale will be found.

On page 925, a conveyance will be found.

On pages R 243, R 936, D 1024, L 1026, D 1071 mortgages will be found.

On page (1142) a lease will be found.

On page †167 will be found plans for a new building.

AUCTION SALES.

The * appearing before any number indicates the page on which to find an Auction Sale.

CONVEYANCES

are distinguished by numbers without having signs attached thereto. In many instances there will be found streets, etc., indexed under pages which, on being examined, show at once that they are not in their proper order according to our customary alphabetical and numerical arrangement. A further examination will disclose the fact that while the properties appear more prominently under the other street descriptions, they nevertheless extend to the streets, etc., indicated by the Index, and having a frontage on same have been included in the paging, and it will necessitate a somewhat more thorough search than usual to locate it. The Leases, Mortgages, Auction Sales and Projected Buildings are indexed in a similar manner to the plan followed with the Conveyances.

LEASES.

The figures in parenthesis denote that the transaction on the page given is Leasehold, an assignment of lease or a lease running for a short or long term of years. This explanation is made so that subscribers searching for transfers in fee can at once distinguish between the former and the latter without referring to the pages mentioned.

MORTGAGES.

All the mortgages are indexed against the street or avenue in which the property is located, and memoranda added to enable searchers to find the particulars in "The Record and Guide." See "Example." The streets and avenues are so subdivided that very few references are necessary. All readers of "The Record and Guide" are aware that the mortgages appear weekly in alphabetical order, so that they have, so to speak, a weekly index of mortgagors. This publication of an index against property completes the information which those interested may require.

PROJECTED BUILDINGS are included under the same general heading, and are distinguished by the † which precedes the numbering.

Auction Sales, Conveyances, Leases, Mortgages and Projected Buildings.

BOROUGH OF MANHATTAN STREETS.

NOTE.—Longitudinal streets, roads and places, such as the Bowery, Boulevard, Broadway, etc., which run parallel with the various avenues, will be found in alphabetical order among the avenues.

Vol. LXXXIV. JULY 3, 1909. No. 2155

THE prominent property owners in Twenty-third street have done well to form an association for the protection and assertion of their peculiar local interests. Of late years Twenty-third street has suffered from the competition of Fifth avenue and of Thirty-fourth street, and no longer occupies the supreme position it used to occupy in the hierarchy of crosstown streets. Moreover, the tendency is still northwards, and if it is to be counteracted, energetic and decisive measures must be taken to make Twenty-third street more available both for retail trade and for general business purposes. We believe that the widening of Fifth avenue, while it is intended for the benefit of shopkeepers on that thoroughfare, will, also, be beneficial to Twenty-third street, because it will enable carriages and motor-cars to reach that street with less delay. But in this matter the property owners in Twenty-third street should not only profit from the improvement of Fifth avenue but should learn a lesson from the example. The roadway of Twenty-third street is wretchedly congested, particularly during winter snow storms, while the sidewalks are unnecessarily wide. If five feet were taken from the sidewalks and added to the roadway from Lexington to Eighth avenue, the retail trade of all these blocks would be considerably benefited. The other great need of Twenty-third street is the establishment of an express subway station at that point. The amount of business transacted in the vicinity of Madison Square makes it extremely desirable that the express trains on the Lexington avenue subway should stop thereabouts. At least one express station is essential to the business prosperity of every important crosstown street. The existing subway provides for the needs of Fourteenth and Forty-second streets. The Lexington avenue subway should have express stations at Twenty-third, Fifty-ninth and One Hundred and Twenty-fifth streets. The Seventh avenue subway will naturally have an express station at Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth streets. The new association of Twenty-third street property-owners should immediately begin agitating in favor of such a distribution of express stations.

THE real estate market has, during the present season, maintained an unusual degree of activity until a very late date; and this fact indicates plainly the vitality of the economic forces, whereby this activity has been caused. Altogether it has been one of the most remarkable bursts of speculative trading ever witnessed during a similar period in New York City. A year ago when all kinds of business were just beginning to recover from the effects of the panic, the Record and Guide predicted that in Manhattan the first outbreak of renewed speculative interest would be shown by a buying movement on the margin of the new wholesale and business district between Twenty-third and Fiftieth streets. Never has a prediction been more abundantly justified. Not only have a great many purely speculative purchases been made in this section, but there has been an extraordinary number of sites sold for immediate improvement. In a few months the whole aspect of Fourth avenue from Eighteenth to Thirty-second street has been changed. The alteration of Madison avenue north of Twenty-sixth street into a business thoroughfare has been definitely begun. Several new buildings have been started on Fifth avenue and there are indications of an outbreak of activity in the near future on Sixth avenue. In addition there has been an enormous amount of scattered activity in the side streets. The worst aspect of the movement is that it is taking place partly at the expense of the old wholesale district south of Fourteenth street, but the best aspect of it is its permanent and wholesome character. At bottom it is based upon the fact that hereafter the business carried on in Manhattan instead of being distributed along a line, will radiate from a centre—as it does in other large cities. Of course the financial district will remain in its present location; and of course, the whole area south of Fourteenth street and west of Broadway will remain of the utmost commercial importance. But it is inevitable that hereafter the great increase in business will be centralized in the middle district, and that it will radiate from this centre to the east and the west as well as to the north. The steady process of expansion exclusively to the north, which has up to the present time characterized the business growth of Manhattan will be checked by the bridges and tubes, which are tieing Manhattan to New Jersey and Long Island, and the people living on the other side of the two rivers will want to transact their business and gather their amusements somewhere near the point at which they board or leave their trains in Manhattan. Roughly speaking, the business center of the future New York will be Greeley Square; and good testimony to the general appreciation of this fact was afforded by the recent sale of the old site of the Union Dime Savings Bank at a figure stated to be over $350 a square foot. Lucky are those business men who secured a situation on or near this square at the prices which prevailed a few years ago.

IN VIEW of the enormous business importance which Greeley Square is destined to have, nothing could be less convenient and less congruous than its layout. It is by all odds the worst-looking, most congested and least impressive square in Manhattan. Even Times Square, although laid out upon substantially the same plan is both better-looking and more convenient, because it is not traversed by an elevated road. There is not the slightest prospect, moreover, that anything can be done to improve it. What is needed is more space, and a plan that would permit the traffic to circle around the square instead of intersecting it. But considering the prices now prevailing, and the buildings which are being or have been erected thereon, not even New York City could afford to buy the land necessary to do away with the present and prospective congestion. Seven years ago when the Pennsylvania company first began to build, the Record and Guide drew attention to the prospective business importance of Greeley Square, and to the necessity of providing more space for the coming increase to business and traffic. If the city had possessed at that time the legal power and the prudence to purchase the real estate within a radius of several hundred feet of the Square, it could have made enough money from the sale of the land, which it did not need, more than to pay for the whole improvement. But it is too late now, and the fact that the opportunity was neglected at that time will not only be very annoying, hereafter, to the people of New York, but it will diminish the business prosperity of the Square itself. All sorts of devices will have to be used in order to get rid of the congestion. Both subways and bridges will be pressed into service to take care of the traffic, but in the end business will simply be obliged to go elsewhere, because it cannot be conveniently transacted in that vicinity.

THE West Side Taxpayers' Association in the last issue of the Record and Guide put up a very strong argument on behalf of the early consideration by the Public Service Commission of the needs of the West Side for additional means of rapid transit. Assuming that it was necessary to make a choice between the East and the West Side, the Public Service Commission was unquestionably right in arranging first for a Lexington avenue subway. The enormous population to the East of Central Park is in greater need of an express subway service than are the inhabitants of any other part of Manhattan. But after their needs have been satisfied, the Commission will have to face the problem of West Side transit. The lower West Side will then be the only district of Manhattan wholly unprovided with thoroughly modern means of communication; and it stands to reason that something will have to be done to meet the legitimate demands of the property-owners in that vicinity. Whether a new West Side subway will extend north of Forty-second street as is recommended by the association is a more doubtful matter. The idea has been hitherto that the existing subway would be carried on south from Forty-second street along Seventh avenue, and that only some years later would an additional West Side route be constructed north of Forty-second street. In case, however, the plans of the commission for a Lexington avenue Broadway subway are carried out, it may be necessary to begin the immediate construction of a route along upper Eighth avenue. In the former plans the lower West Side extension of the existing subway balanced its upper East Side extension—thus making two parallel routes, one on each side of the city. But an independent Lexington avenue-Broadway line throws this plan out of joint, and seems to necessitate as a consequence an independent West Side route. If the existing subway were merely prolonged south from Forty-second street without obtaining at the same time an upper Lexington avenue prolongation, the subway system of the city would become lopsided. There would be three four-track subways south of Forty-second street, and only two north thereof, which would mean a ridiculous waste of carrying power. It would seem, consequently, as if a Broadway-Lexington avenue subway brought with it as a logical consequence a new independent West Side route running the whole length of the island. Such a subway would pay from the very start, and it would develop its traffic largely from original sources. It is pleasant to keep in mind that all of these long-delayed and much discussed transit problems will be settled sometime during the current year.

THE FOURTH OF JULY, the half-way mark of the year in the popular mind, having arrived, it is important to note that about one hundred million dollars' worth of new buildings were planned in Manhattan-Bronx during the period of six months, a record greater than that of any corresponding term in the history of the city. In the first half of 1905 plans for new buildings to cost only about $80,000,000 were filed, and in the first half of 1906 about $90,000,000, and these were the best two years in building New York ever had. In the number of buildings planned, however, this present year is not keeping pace with either 1905 or 1906. That is, the buildings of the current year are more costly, but less numerous. We are about five hundred buildings behind the record of the first six months of 1905, but nearly a thousand ahead of the first half of 1908. The precise figures will be found in the usual statistical tables. At this time of the year we turn from the record of plans filed to see what proportion of the projects have been put under contract, and the result of observations in this respect is also gratifying. Though work in every line has not yet reached its normal status, it is certain to do so soon, because the head of the procession of trades is moving fast. The recent fall in the prices of brick and cement is bringing many negotiations for contracts to a head. New excavations for "big" works are being started almost daily. The number of new operations in the midtown section of Manhattan, between 23d and 34th sts, is particularly noteworthy, especially in 26th and 27th sts, as well as on 4th av. Altogether the outlook is for a busy Fall in the building trades as a whole, not only in the city but also throughout the metropolitan district and the Eastern section of the country generally. It cannot be said that the hard times are over for everybody yet, but it is now only a question of a short time when business affairs will be entirely normal.

POLICE POWER IN BUILDING LAWS.

THE question is being asked, Has the municipal government the legal right to exact in a building code anything more than a safe building? A prominent real estate lawyer, when confronted with the query said that it opened a subject as debatable as that of the right of the Federal Government to issue greenbacks, and one as likely to be decided by the powers that be (through the courts) in one way as in another, according to the trend of popular opinion as to the proper functions of "government" at the psychological moment of the inquiry.

"Seventy years ago," said this authority, "a jurist would have unhesitatingly answered in the negative; to-day he would tremblingly answer that, in view of the present-day popular tendency toward the operation of railroads municipally, the proposed forbidding of marriage to the individual unless guaranteed to be for the higher development of society, by a competent health board,—or the actual regulation of height, and probably soon to follow, regulation of depth, to which an owner of land may build,—that such an inquiry can only be determined by the Court of Appeals, or perhaps even by the Supreme Court of the United States, and that even then one cannot always be sure, for these courts have been known to change their minds!

"But I do not think the question would ever be so baldly stated as in the inquiry; even in the building code now pending the matter is not so glaringly put, and proportions of sand and rock and silica are named, which may or may not be a particular brand, in name, though so in fact. Many a physician prescribes for a patient what may in fact be popularly known as "Brandreth's Pills," while sworn not to use or recommend a so-called quack remedy.

"To revert to the general subject of municipal regulation of building matters within corporate boundaries, I should answer that the question, once settled as to constitutional interference with individual rights, is always of legislative delegation of authority to the municipal government through a prescribed city charter, by which Bill of Rights all inhabitants of that particular city must be governed.

"When to municipal authority is delegated power which is co-ordinately exercised by the State direct, as in the case of municipal and State health boards, or municipal building departments and State tenement house departments, clashes must come occasionally, and compromises must be effected.

"Finally, there is much which is legal that can only be done under favorable auspices, while much that is in the abstract illegal, can be performed under like favoring conditions; and many a desired control of individual action has been denied when opposed by the masses, which would have been sternly forced down upon the individual. From which philosophical premise have sprung labor unions, citizens' committees, landlords' protective associations, and now taxpayers' and owners' organizations, and through these and these only can the individual longer hope to be heard."

BUILDING TRADES EMPLOYERS' AMENDMENTS.

Mr. William H. Butler, of the law firm of Eidlitz & Hulse, counsel for the Building Trades Employers' Association, has submitted to the Building Committee a series of amendments to the majority report on the building code. The document consists of seventeen type-written pages. The employers advise that the words "approve" and "standard" be amended by adding after the word "by the superintendent of buildings" the words "and the Board of Examiners."

They do not believe that there is any necessity or propriety for licensing the various building trades; and, further, they do not believe that the Board of Aldermen has authority to license trades. But if the Board of Aldermen sees fit to adopt such a resolution, then the Association respectfully requests that each trade which is to be licensed or registered be represented in the Board of Registration.

The Employers submit that Subdivision 9 of Section 8 should be amended by striking out the words "when it is claimed that and more desirable form of construction can be employed in any specific case," for the reason that these words give entire power to the superintendent of buildings to say what materials and what form of construction may be used in any particular building. The Board of Aldermen undertakes, the Employers say, to empower the superintendent with an authority entirely different from what he had before, and one directly contrary to the provisions of the charter, where it specifically provides what the superintendent may do.

Section 14, should be stricken out entirely, for the reason that it opens too great a field of arbitrary power and an unfair advantage without corresponding benefit. The section referred to is the one relative to certificates of occupancy.

Subdivision 11 of Section 20 should also be stricken out, in the opinion of the Employers. This is the paragraph in the majority report which specifies that no court shall be less than 5 ft, in its smallest dimension, for a height not exceeding 75 ft., and shall be at least 1 in. wider for every additional foot of that height.

The Employers advise equal treatment for cinder concrete and natural or Rosendale cement, and they also ask the same treatment for store and loft buildings in regard to the use of wood trim, as for office buildings.

THE DOWNFALL of the house in West 26th st last Sunday afternoon is prima facie evidence of somebody's inattention to the requirements of the case. It is for the authorities to look up the parties that are responsible or blamable, and for the public to hope that they will take measures to prevent similar consequences at any other excavation where they might possibly occur. When the debris has been removed it will be possible to determine whether the reports of insufficient shoring are true or not. Fortunately, no lives were sacrificed, and those who remained to the last and went down with the wreck, and were more or less bruised, must have had sufficient warning of the danger, and no great amount of sympathy has been called forth on their account. But the occasion is one which should serve as a notice that the shoring-up and making safe and secure of abutting buildings is an important part of nearly every midtown building operation, as all the profits which may be derivable from the operation may disappear in the twinkling of an eye. Usually great care is taken, and sometimes the protective measures in behalf of the adjoining buildings are elaborate and highly scientific; but it has been noticed that in minor works the shoring of the old and possibly untrustworthy houses next door have not always been sufficiently attended to.

CONSTRUCTION

ARCHITECTS' AND OWNERS' CODE.

Statement Relative to Amendments to Proposed Building Law, Prepared By a Committee of Representatives of Various Taxpayers', Architects' and Engineers' Organizations.

IMPORTANT amendments were introduced into the majority report of the Building Code Revision Commission when the Building Committee of the Board of Aldermen took it into executive session late yesterday afternoon for final consideration, preparatory to presentation to the entire Board next Tuesday. At 3 p. m. it was understood that another minority report was possible. These changes, it is understood, were embodied in the majority report:

First—To cut from the new code the provision directing that all business buildings shall be equipped with a patented standpipe that can be operated from the street and can throw streams into every floor. The present standpipe regulations will remain as heretofore.

Second—Jurisdiction over water pipes to be installed as fire fighting apparatus in buildings to be under the direction of the Fire Commissioner instead of the Superintendents of Buildings in the various boroughs, as the majority report proposes.

Third—Elimination of all reference to particular kinds of paints that were to have been favored for covering structural iron and steel.

Fourth—Modification of the fireproofing, so as to allow concrete concerns to be on a parity with other methods of fireproof construction, except that it is stipulated that in the manufacture of cinder concrete flooring, etc., only clean, steam boiler anthracite cinders be used, the finished fabric to be subject to equal tests with other materials.

Fifth—The fire limits will remain unchanged; the present boundaries being retained.

AFTER many conferences and meetings of the representatives of the Greater New York Taxpayers' Conference, Allied Real Estate Interests, New York Chapter American Institute of Architects, Brooklyn Chapter American Institute of Architects, New York Society of Architects, Association of Architectural Engineers, and the Brooklyn League, the Special Committee has issued a printed memorandum containing the suggestions of this Committee for amendments to the Majority Report of the Building Code Revision Commission now before the Board of Aldermen.

This Committee was composed of the following representatives, and the main portion of the report is signed by them: Allan Robinson (Chairman), Allied Real Estate Interests; Geo. W. Brush and George E. Waldo, Brooklyn League, Greater New York Taxpayers' Conference; Charles H. Israels and Electus D. Litchfield, New York Chapter American Institute of Architects; Henry Clay Carrel and Dudley McGrath, Brooklyn Chapter American Institute of Architects; Benjamin Driesler and Adam E. Fischer, New York Society of Architects; Rudolph P. Miller and Henry W. Hodge, Association of Architectural Engineers.

A supplementary report of the Special Committee on Fire Limits is also attached, which is signed by Congressman George E. Waldo, of the Greater New York Taxpayers' Conference; Henry Clay Carrel, of the Brooklyn Chapter American Institute of Architects, and Mr. C. F. Shallcross, of the New York Board of Fire Underwriters.

The Committee explains in the beginning of this report that, without prejudice to either the Majority or the Minority Reports, it has taken the Majority Report as a basis for practical work. The following is a brief synopsis of the changes suggested:

It is proposed to strike out the provision allowing for a liberal construction of the code and to substitute a clause on modification of the law which provides that the discretion of the superintendent may only be used in the manner provided in the Charter, and that when so used, his decision shall be public record and may be used as precedent.

An amendment is suggested to the definitions for standpipes and automatic sprinklers, recognizing the provisions of the Charter which vest the power in relation to these appliances with the Fire Commissioner.

The definition of a pent-house is changed, providing that the area of this structure shall not be discretionary upon the decision of the superintendent.

Chapter II., Section 5, is altered so that an appeal to the board of examiners shall not be dependent upon the superintendent's order.

The provisions for the board of registration are changed by putting TWO architects on the board and eliminating the Superintendent of Buildings of the Borough of Manhattan, it being thought that the superintendent of one borough should not be unfairly recognized.

An important change is also made in this section which would require the applicant for a permit to be the superintendent of construction.

The portion of Chapter III, Section 8, which refers to the powers of the superintendent to vary the provision of the code, is eliminated, this matter having been attended to in the Second Section.

Section 9, in relation to appeals to the board of examiners, is altered so as to make it consistent with the Charter.

In Chapter IV, Section 11, a provision is now in the Minority Report but omitted in the Majority, is inserted, requiring definite action by the superintendent within a reasonable time.

Section 17 of Chapter V is altered so as to make no limitation to reinforced concrete buildings other than is applied to any other type of fireproof construction.

Chapter VII is made to agree with the Charter in relation to lodging houses, and the wording of paragraph 11 is changed so that the meaning is made more plain that the code does not intend to prohibit buildings running from street to street.

For Section 21 on the floor areas between fire walls, Section 23 of the Minority Report is substituted, which provides for larger areas provided a system of automatic sprinklers is used.

The interior stair provision of the Minority Report is substituted for the one in the Majority Report on account of the further adoption of the Minority's recommendation for fire towers.

Section 27 is altered so as to make an entrance direct to the cellar depend upon the use of high pressure steam.

Chapter X, in relation to standpipes and automatic sprinklers is changed so as to recognize the power of the Fire Commissioner, and to compel the Fire Commissioner to publish his rulings once every six months, which rulings would become a part of the code automatically, the purpose of this amendment being to guard against conflicting requirements of two departments, as both the Fire Department and the Bureau of Buildings would have power to change these provisions under the law.

Some slight changes are made in Chapter XII to the provisions for floor loads, the principal change being the reduction of the live loads in hotels, tenements and dwellings from 90 and 60 pounds to 40 pounds.

A change is also recommended which would be important to the engineers which allows for the reduction of live loads on columns in all buildings over five stories in height.

In Chapter XIII an amendment is made which would allow the use of hollow building blocks for bearing walls in any building not more than 30 ft. in height, and the correction is made as to the standards for testing cements, recognizing the standard specification of the American Society for Testing Materials, as the American Society of Civil Engineers, referred to in the Majority Report, has no such standards.

A definition is also given of natural cement mortar.

Changes are made in Section 64 which would allow the use of concrete made of natural cement, and the weights of materials specified in the Minority Report are substituted for those in the Majority.

The provisions of the Minority Report for the direct compression in short blocks are also substituted for those in the Majority, and a new safe extreme fiber stress provision is made for the use of natural cement.

FOR CAST-IRON COLUMNS.

Section 75 is changed so as to permit the use of cast-iron columns, although the Committee recognizes that in the present state of the market, they will be rarely used, but nevertheless thought it unfair to prevent their use altogether.

The provision as to the spacing of beams is changed in Section 79 where the Majority Report provided that in Classes E and F the spacing of steel beams should not exceed 5 ft. on centers, as this was one of the provisions which the Committee thought unfair to all types of floor construction.

The provision for painting of structural work in Section 86 has been eliminated, and Section 130 of the Minority Report substituted as fair to all the interests concerned.

In Section 93 the provisions of the Minority Report for the bearing capacity on soils were substituted for those of the Majority. Provisions of the Minority Report in relation to foundation walls were also adopted with the change that natural cement be allowed in certain foundations. It is also provided that the decisions as to the bearing capacity of concrete piles shall be filed as discretionary ones. Provision is also made allowing the use of an 8-inch wall for certain buildings less than 36 ft. 6 ins. in height, to accommodate a certain class of real estate owners who build inexpensive buildings.

The provision for the tests of fireproof arches in Section 118 is altered to a system which, in the opinion of the Committee, would be more fair and equitable to all owners and manufacturers, and it would allow the greatest amount of choice in the selection of construction.

In fireproof buildings the height at which the elimination of wood is made compulsory is raised from 100 ft. to 150 ft., and although the representative of the fire underwriters did not sign this portion of the report, they have publicly expressed themselves through their representative as being satisfied with this proposed amendment.

Important changes are proposed in allowing the use of steam-boiler cinders, crushed slag, brick or tile in the making of concrete as well as stone, this provision being one that was particularly objectionable on account of increasing the cost of concrete fireproof floors.

Certain other changes are proposed in relation to the construction of a concrete floor arch which it is believed would allow the owner and architect a wider range of selection. The working stresses given in the Minority Report for reinforced concrete are recommended as being ample for safe construction and cheaper to the owner. The provision that requires that concrete beams shall not be spaced further than 8 ft. on centers is eliminated. Also, the rather drastic provision that the floor slab must be cut loose for testing, as in the opinion of the Committee the floor could never be made so strong again if this provision were complied with.

In Section 123 it is recommended that 4 ins. back of a flue is sufficient for proper protection, when the flue is lined and there is 8 ins. brick work on the face.

Changes are made in the provisions of Section 131, in relation to smaller buildings to be built of hollow blocks, which would make it plain that other blocks than hard tile are allowed.

In the theater section (137), the provisions of the Minority Report are adopted in relation to the courts around building, it being thought more just to the owners of property if they were allowed to extend to the rear of the lot, provided no windows were placed in any wall upon the boundary line, and further allowing the extension of the facade across the entire front above the first story.

Another important change is recommended in making a theater dependent upon a seating capacity of 300 rather than 200, but limiting the seating capacity for each person to not more than 10 square feet, so as to make it difficult to evade the law. This theater section also recognizes the authority of the Fire Commissioner in relation to fire apparatus in theaters.

In Chapter XXVIII the recommendation is made that the superintendent must have evidence of an existing violation before the filing of such papers, in order to prevent the unnecessary annoyance to which the owners and building trades are now put by having violations filed in anticipation that some wrongdoing may occur at some future time.

In the very last section, which provides that the law shall take effect immediately, a change is made in the public interest that the law shall take effect 90 days after it is approved by the Mayor, and further provides that any application on file in the Bureau of Buildings upon that date shall be acted upon under the existing code.

The supplementary report of the Special Committee on Fire Limits recommends practically that the fire limits shall not be extended, but that no more than two attached frame buildings shall be permitted, except in that part of the Thirty-first Ward known as Coney Island, between Seagate and the Public Park on the west side of Ocean Parkway; that detached frame dwellings, private stables and sheds for certain areas and outhouses may be erected not covering more than 80 per cent. of the width of the plot, and not over three stories in height. All other buildings shall be constructed of brick, stone or other fire-resisting material, but all buildings for automobiles must be fireproof.

There is a further provision recommending that no shingle roofs be permitted, and a memorandum in which the committee states that they find that the cost of incombustible roofing would not exceed one-half to one per cent. of the total cost of the average frame building, no more than the cost of low grade shingles, that is, $36 to $72 on the average frame building.

Mr. Allan Robinson stated that he would place a printed copy of the recommendations in the hands of every member of the Board of Aldermen at an early date.

Mr. Robinson, who is chairman of the committee, states that in his opinion if the recommendations of this committee are adopted with the Majority Report as a basis, that it will provide a progressive and up-to-date law, worthy of the City, which will be a decided improvement upon the existing code, and which will be free from any of the criticisms that have been directed at either the Minority or the Majority Report, which will permit the owner and the architect and builder to have the widest discretion in the selection of materials, and which will, above all things, improve the administration of the City departments dealing with the code which have been subjected to so much criticism in the past.

IN FAVOR OF THE MAJORITY REPORT.

AT THE eighth and last hearing on the building code given by the Building Committee, William Copeland Furber, the architect and consulting engineer, spoke on the subject of "The Workmanship Factor" in reinforced concrete. This factor he referred to as the predominant one. He said he had been at some trouble and pains to briefly review the recent literature and reports of tests of reinforced concrete and had covered them briefly in a summary of the headings, which he read. He quoted extracts from past remarks of Richard L. Humphrey, Prof. Woolson and others, and made comments thereon.

Otto G. Simonson, of Baltimore, the next speaker, said he had been invited by the Fireproofing Manufacturers' Association to express his opinion on the subject of fireproof construction as promulgated in the proposed new building code for New York, and he had particularly examined Chapter 19, Sections 114-120, as submitted in the majority report, and also Chapter 25 of the minority report, Sections 136-141. His opinion was based on a practical experience of twenty-five years, twenty of which had been spent in the service of the government. He had passed through the Baltimore fire and had been extensively engaged in the rebuilding of Baltimore and had taken part in the lengthy discussion of the finally adopted new building code of Baltimore city, and therefore he was familiar with the task the members of the Building Committee had before them. Mr. Simonson said that the main points in fireproof construction consisted in the selection of proper material and to protect the steel and iron from corrosion, and that he found all this carefully embodied in the majority report.

Otto Kubitz, structural engineer of the building inspector's office, City of Baltimore, said that the first thing the people of Baltimore did after the conflagration was to get the building code of New York City and adopt it. "Most of the builders there are interested in the construction that you specify in your proposed code, and what I shall speak of will be the practical results since the fire."

WORLD INTEREST IN OUR CODE.

By the order of the chief inspector of buildings in Baltimore, Mr. E. D. Preston, he had examined the fireproofing sections in the proposed revision of the New York building code. He said this great city was looked upon with keen interest not only by other cities of this country, but also by cities all over the world, as one that is up to date with its measures, which set a precedent and establishes a standard for the rest. For this reason Mr. Kubitz desired to bring to the attention of the Building Committee some facts and experiences that the builders of Baltimore had had with fireproof construction.

He said that before the fire most of the new type of high buildings were of steel construction and terra cotta, and these buildings stood the fire well and were damaged only to such a small extent that none of them had to be torn down. The tile fireproofing did its work well and protected the steel around beam and girder flanges and columns in such a good manner that only in a very few instances did the columns and beams have to be replaced.

Mr. Kubitz recommended the adoption of the majority report. In answer to questions he said that Baltimore would probably revise its building code also and was waiting to see what New York would do.

Joseph A. Mullaney, representing the Board of Delegates of the building trades in Brooklyn, read a resolution favoring the adoption of the majority code. James B. Allen, another delegate representing the Board of Delegates of the building trades of Brooklyn, also favored the majority code. He was questioned at length by members of the committee. He said that more particularly he represented the plasterers' organization, which had been injuriously affected for a good many years by the existing code.

"We have lost the plastering of cement arches in a good many instances. They have simply put up smooth boards, and often they just whitewash it."

"To what extent has it injured you?" asked Alderman Colgan.

"About thirty per cent. in my opinion," replied Mr. Allen. "I know from the loss of membership in the unions."

Vincent Cavanaugh, representing the Laborers' Protective Union of Long Island, said that he had been sent to this hearing to say that the organization favored the majority code.

John Gill, representing the Bricklayers and Masons' Unions of Greater New York, spoke in favor of the majority report. "As a bricklayer, I certainly am in favor of the code that would give employment to our members. There is no game of chance in a brick wall. You can see at a glance what it is and whether it is in danger of tumbling down."

A member of Bricklayers' Union No. 7 questioned Mr. Gill's right to speak for the bricklayers' unions in this matter, because he said that on Wednesday night, May 23, at a meeting of the members of Local No. 7, when the question arose of taking action on the building code, it was agreed to take no action at all. On being questioned, Mr. Donnelly said that there were nineteen locals in the greater city, and No. 7 was one of the nineteen. He was not sent to this hearing by his union, but was voicing the sentiment as a member of that organization.

Mr. E. V. Johnson of Chicago, vice president of the National Fireproofing Company, said he was against the minority report for the reason that it did not call for first-class construction. He said he had been in the fireproofing business continuously for thirty-three years and he thought he knew the business.

He said that his father, George H. Johnson, put in the Post Office Building thirty-four years ago the first hollow-tile arch construction in America.

William D. Gates, of Chicago, former president of the American Ceramic Society, member of the American Society for Testing Materials, member of the Advisory Board for Tests of Structural Materials and Fuels, United States Geological Survey; Prof. Collins P. Bliss, director of the Technical Laboratory of the New York University, and Charles A. Bloomfield, treasurer of the Brinkman Terra Cotta Company, Metchuen, N. J., were other speakers.

Communications from the Otis Elevator Company, the National Elevator Company, also urged the adoption of the majority report.

At the conclusion of the hearing, the chairman stated that if anyone else had any suggestions to submit he might do so up to 10 o'clock of the next Monday morning.

WHY SAND CAN BE SOLD AT 30 CENTS A YARD

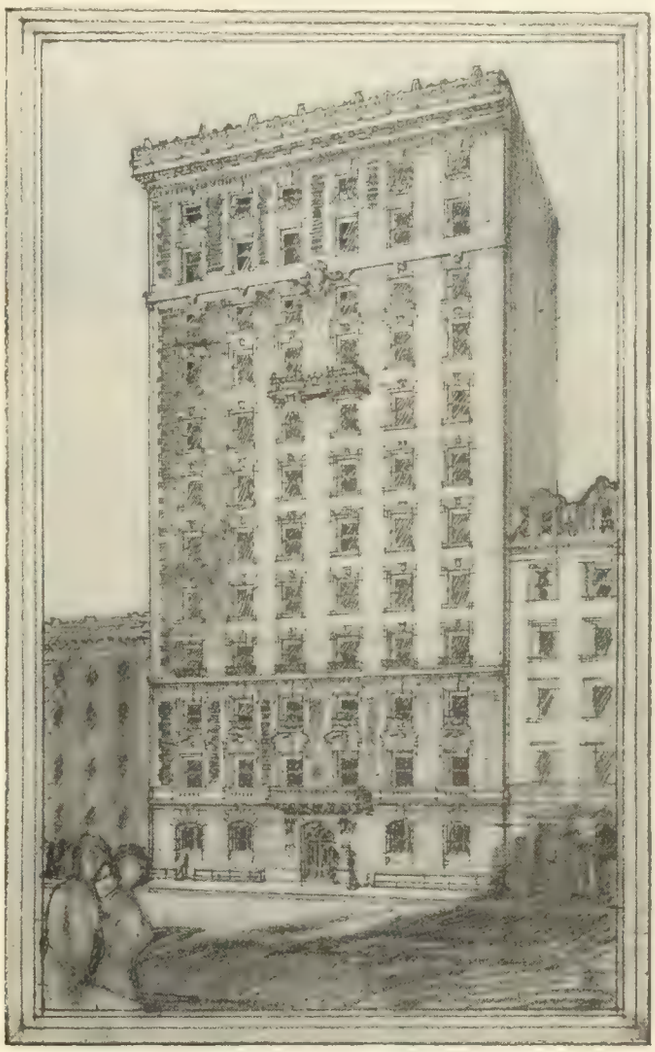
Ever since November 1, 1908, a battle for supremacy in the local sand market has been waged in this vicinity by large interests. Prices have been slashed right and left, and where rival companies have met the lead of another, competition has been exceedingly keen. Masons' material men have seen the price tumble from 75 cents a cubic yard, dock, down to 30 cents, and while they have been filling up their yards they have wondered how sand could be sold at such a price and leave a margin.

Herbert DuPuy, of Pittsburgh, was formerly president of the White Quartz Sand & Gravel Co., with local offices at 2 Rector st. He, in company with James C. Ewing, also of Pittsburgh, and Harry Goodwin, president of the Goodwin Sand & Gravel Co., of this city, interested capital, which included a considerable amount of their own funds, in some new processes for the digging and preparation of sand for general building purposes. Mr. Ewing, who like Mr. DuPuy, is a personification of Western energy and enterprise, had had years of experience in dredging, and under patents of his own perfected a machine of wonderful strength and mechanism which not only dug but washed, dried and screened and loaded 2,500 cubic yards of sand a day, all in one continuous operation.

Local capital was quick to see the qualities of an investment of this character, and on November 1, 1908, the White Quartz Sand & Gravel Co. consolidated with Goodwin Bros. and the Manhattan and Long Island Sand Co. and organized the Goodwin Sand and Gravel Co., of 71 Broadway, with a capital stock of $2,500,000, all of which was immediately paid in. The company started in with no debts and has continued that policy, according to information obtained from a person well informed in the affairs of the company. The officers are Herbert DuPuy, president; Harry Goodwin, vice president; W. J. Timberman, general manager, and James C. Ewing, secretary and treasurer.

Since then the company has invested $350,000 cash in improvement to the plants at Port Washington, L. I. and at Eaton's Point, L. I. This was done to enable the company to increase its output at the lowest possible cost. Then came the problem of delivering the material, so it began to invest some of its surplus capital and unexpended increment in the building of scows and tugs, until to-day it has a fleet second in number to only one company in the harbor, the first being the Pennsylvania Railroad with 137 boats.

When the company started the ruling price was 63 cents, although it had just previously been 75 cents. The new company because of its equipment, it is said, began to drop prices, and other companies which had been in the market for twenty, thirty and forty years immediately followed suit until to-day the cost of a cargo of screened Cow Bay sand delivered at dock, New York, is only 30 cents, which price the other companies are meeting.



Some idea of the small margin left for companies competing with the new company in the market may be had from the fact that when sand was being sold for between 60 and 70 cents a year ago, the cost of loading was 10 cents; freightage, 10 cents; towing, 10 cents, and unloading 10 cents. To this the cost of digging, washing and screening had to be added, and the profit was somewhere between 15 and 20 cents. Some of the towing companies handle the sand themselves, selling it to mason material men in all quantities. In many cases costs of production have been lowered as a result of the activities of the larger company, and the smaller ones are enabled to meet its price in the open market, although the margins have been reduced in almost every instance to the merest shadow, it is said. It is said that there is little prospect of the price fluctuating much from 30 cents.

But the sand market is not the only one that has felt the battle of the interests involved in the rival companies. Washed Cow Bay gravel has dropped from $1.00 to 50 cents, dock, New York, and good standard roofing grit is sold now for $1.50 as against $2.00 and over, the former price. Of course there are varying prices according to the grade of this material, but the price quoted is medium for a fair grade.

CONCRETE WALLS USED AFTER CONFLAGRATION.

Concrete men have shown considerable interest in the construction of a dwelling the walls of which had undergone an unusual fire test, while the building was in course of erection, yet had not been damaged either in tensile strength or in any of its component parts. In spite of the terrific heat to which the half finished building had been subjected in a conflagration at Winthrop, Mass., a suburb of Boston, subsequent tests showed that the four walls were in as good condition afterward as before. There was no indication of crumbling, craising or scaling, according to experts who placed samples under exhaustive examination.

On the night of October 3, 1908, fire destroyed a 3-sty frame hotel, a neighboring structure used for the same purpose, and seven dwellings. Within 8 feet from the hotel in which the fire began, a concrete building was in course of completion. The walls of the first story are 10 inches thick and have a continuous air space of 3 inches wide. The walls of the second story are 8 inches thick and solid, being furred on the inside to give a 2-inch air space. The concrete used was 1:3:6 Edison Portland beach sand and gravel. At the time the fire broke out the roof of concrete on wire lath had been partially constructed. The interior and exterior were covered with scaffolding and floor beams, some of which were in place.

This structure proved to be a fire stop upon which the firemen directed the full force of the onsweeping flames by means of water curtains. The heat was so intense that the granite sidewalk curbing in front of the building crumpled. The walls had not been in place more than four weeks. When the flames had been concentrated in this building, the streams of the entire fire department were directed upon the walls until the blaze had been literally drowned out.

Investigation was made of the walls, and according to information at hand, they were not damaged. There was no sign of disintegration. The building department of Winthrop obtained the services of experts in various forms of construction, and his opinion was that the walls were as strong as ever. Last week the owner of building and his family moved into the completed house, which is surrounded by the same walls that were submitted to the intense heat heretofore recounted. Fig. 1 shows the walls still standing intact the next day, and Fig. 2 shows the building completed and occupied last week.

—The Public Service Commission has approved the franchise of the New York and North Shore Traction Co., the Long Island Electric Railway Co., successor, for an extension of its street surface railroad from the New York City line at Little Neck to and into Flushing, and from Chestnut st, Flushing, to Whitestone, L. I.

BRONX.

The semi-annual report of plans and specifications filed and acted upon in the Borough of The Bronx for the six months ending June 30, has been completed and advance data is herewith presented. The comparative quarterly report for the three months is not sufficiently in hand for publication in this issue. The report, compared with the full year 1908, indicates that this will be a banner year in that borough in building operations. The grand total of estimated costs of buildings for the half year ending June 30 shows $2,092,760, as against $21,415,160 for the full year preceding. Number of plans, first half 1909, 754, as against 1,053 for the full year 1908, and number of buildings, first half 1909, 1,356, as against 1,912 for the twelve preceding months.

Divided into principle classifications the semi-annual report shows: Dwellings, $2,038,300; number of plans, 119; buildings, 300. Tenements, $15,194,000; plans, 247; buildings, 448. Julius Franke on the Revision.

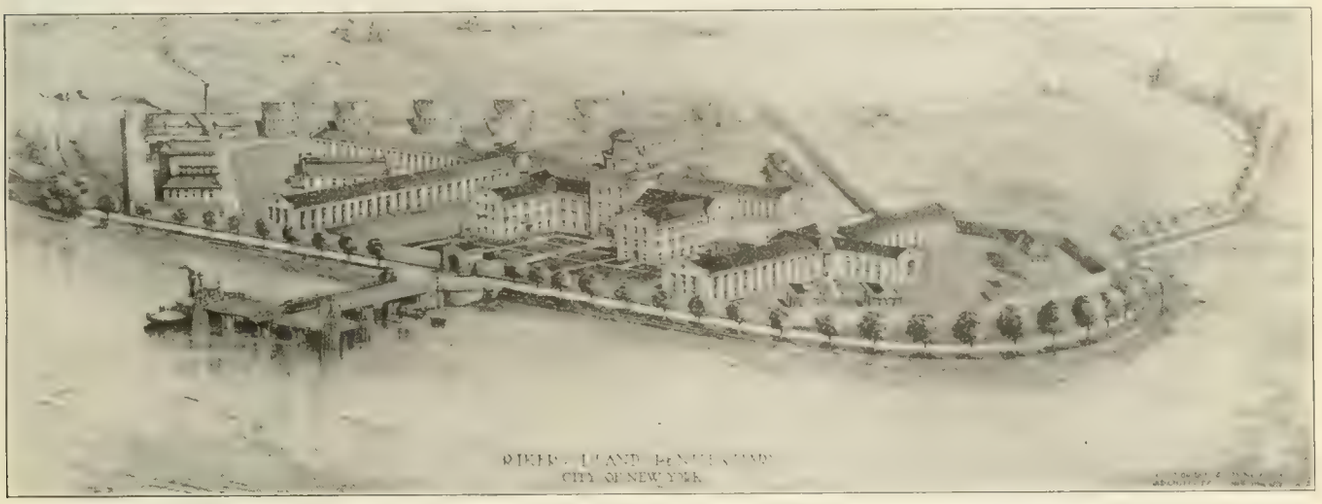
Under date of June 28, Mr. Julius Franke, of Maynicke & Franke, architects of the Fifth Avenue Building, forwarded to Hon. William P. Kenneally a series of amendments proposed to the majority report of the building code. Mr. Franke is able to find in the new revision very little or no improvement over the present code. He considers the present code "pretty good," and says it is sometimes best to leave well enough alone.

"Many new and unusual requirements have been inserted," he says, the effect of which on building interests would be hard to foretell. Building will be more expensive, with no corresponding benefits to the public.

Mr. Franke is not in favor of an entire new code. A better way would be to amend the present code from time to time. This ought to be done by some board called together every ten years.

The meadows which lie along the Hackensack River are underlaid with an excellent quality of clay beds, and the same observation is true of the meadows along the Passaic River down to Newark Bay. The chief difficulty is the presence of water. It requires pumping all the time to keep the pits clear, which, of course, adds to the expense of operation. But there are compensating advantages in water transportation and nearness to market. The development of the industry in these localities has been less than might be supposed. Brick-making along the Hackensack began more than 100 years ago.



PROBLEMS OF PRISON DESIGN.

The Great Prison on Riker's Island Will Represent the Best Knowledge in Our Day of Prison Science—An Intimate Description of the Architects' Problem and Its Solution.

THE problem of the penitentiary on Riker's Island, to contain two thousand male and five hundred female prisoners, differed from some other problems of the kind only in the matter of size, and raised but one new difficulty,—that of bringing so large a number under direct supervision and control of a single system of guards, without sacrificing the health of a considerable number by depriving them of the requisite light and air. In other words, the problem reduced itself to finding the best arrangement of cell houses for the male section.

A study of the written principles of modern prison science and an examination of a large number of the most modern prisons led the architects, Messrs. Trowbridge & Livingston, to the conclusion that the only solution was the so-called "stellar" arrangement, provided there was NOT MORE THAN FOUR CELL WINGS abutting upon the central guard house, and that none of these wings should lie in the direction of east and west. For, if more than four things converge upon a single point, the intervening angles are so acute as to deprive the cells nearest the intersection of sufficient light and air; and if any wing lies east and west its north side is never touched by the sun.

The stated advantages of the accepted plan are, besides a centralized and concentrated system of supervision and control, a maximum of exposure of cell wings to the air; the orientation of cell houses (that is, all the cell houses lie in the direction of northeast and southwest, and northwest and southeast), direct communication from the Administration building to the Central Guardhouse, or centre of control; direct communication by covered passages from the cell wings to the Mess Hall, Chapel, baths and visiting rooms; the control of the cell doors by a single guard at the head of each wing, the separation of cell tiers to allow of proper classification, the supervision of keepers and guards by the central guard, and the protection of keepers and guards.

ACCEPTED DESIGN OF PENITENTIARY BUILDINGS ON RIKER'S ISLAND.
Trowbridge & Livingston, Architects.

The architects' specifications for this great prison, whose ultimate cost will exceed $3,000,000, have been printed and submitted to the Corporation Counsel, and are now awaiting his approval. No contract has yet been awarded. The plans embody the latest ideas in prison construction.

The architects had observed in every prison they had visited that the central guard had no means of supervising the cell wings, except upon the ground, or first, tier of cells. Inasmuch as the function of the main, or central, guard is to note the entrance and exit of every prisoner, or keeper, the architects have conferred a fine advantage by placing galleries in the central guardhouse at the level of each tier of cells, with barred windows looking into the wings, according to the plans. This will enable the central guards at night to make a complete survey of the whole prison without leaving the guardhouse.

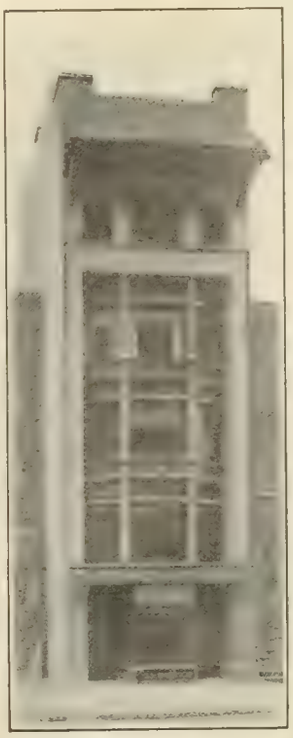
PROGRESS IN PRISON PLANNING.

In old prisons the cells are mostly arranged in tiers, with open galleries for the use of guards and prisoners. So many guards have been attacked by prisoners and thrown over the railings that it is now customary to enclose the galleries with tool-steel grating. But this arrangement is open to serious objection, as the guard must either make an inspection of the cells from the main floor (the upper tiers being invisible), or he must enter the prisoner's corridor at each level, and by so doing expose himself to attack from the cells. It has also been found that with four open tiers proper heating and ventilation are impossible. When the lower cells are at the right temperature, the upper tiers are intolerably hot.

In the Rikers Island Pentitentiary the architects propose to overcome both these difficulties by an extension floor at the third tier, with intermediate galleries outside the prisoners' corridor at the second and fourth tiers. The scheme of an extension floor has been adopted with great success in several prisons, and the proposition of the intermediate galleries has been highly recommended to the architects by several of the most experienced wardens and prison experts. In other respects the architects have adopted the usual system of steel cells placed back to back, with a utility corridor for plumbing pipes and ducts between, with or without asbestos or sheet lead deadening between cell partitions.

It is apparent from this that the architects' duties in this case was not to design a group of buildings of conventional architecture, and to follow certain well-defined specifications, but actually to think out the whole interior layout on advanced lines, as well as to clothe it substantially and handsomely. It is not so many years ago since the steel cage was invented as an improvement over stone cells with solid doors and grated windows, such as old county jails still possess, and the successful architects in this competition had to explore a subject essentially new.

THE LOCKING DEVICE.



Rikers Island will have sixty-two cells in a row on each tier. The locking device the architects have arranged to divide into two sections, each under the control of a separate lever in the lock-box by a steel extension bar on ball-bearings, and by setting a combination the officer in charge of the lock-box can open all the doors of a tier at once, or any of the combination of doors.

The great advantage of this is that one guard can control the cell doors without entering the prisoners' corridor, and if a prisoner should escape from his cell he would still be confined to his corridor entirely enclosed by tool-steel gratings within full view of the guards. This system has been in use only since 1889. It is in use at Washington, Trenton and Wilmington (Delaware), the three latest prisons built in this part of the country, and it will be used at Rahway when the new prison contract has yet been awarded. The plans embody the latest has been referred to by the State Board of Prisons as a model of the best type of modern prison. It is equipped with this locking device and has extension floors.

MATERIALS OF CONSTRUCTION.

The materials for all the buildings on Rikers Island are to be of brick, or concrete, foundations; granite base, quoins, trimmings and cornices; brick walls; slate roofs; steel beams; concrete floors; terra cotta partitions, and oak trim.

There will be three groups of buildings: (1) Administration, Warden's House, Hospitals and Isolation Wards; (2) Men's Section, Shops, Boiler-House, etc.; (3) Women's Section, Shops, Laundry, etc. Altogether, the buildings will have a total cubic contents exceeding 9,100,000 ft. The estimated cost is $2,951,073, in which estimate $475 each is allowed for 2,500 cells, or a total of $1,187,500; $[illegible],000 for heating, lighting and power plant, $150,000 for water-supply and sewage disposal, $901,933.20 for the men's prison section, shops, etc., and $209,548 for the women's prison section. It will be noticed that on the basis of the cubic-foot measurement, the cost of the men's prison section (including the prison house, shops, etc.) averages 14 cents per cubic foot, and the women's prison section at

THE SEASON HOTEL.

CONSIDERING the inflammable nature of the construction of summer (or season) hotels, the number destroyed by fire in any one year is comparatively small. As yet there are only a few fireproof season hotels in this country.

A good example of this class of construction is the "New Blenheim," Atlantic City. This house is of recent build and constitutes a part or annex of the "Marlboro-Blenheim," the two buildings being separated by a street, although joined by overhead bridges. Jointly, it is one of the largest seashore hotels in the world. This hotel is the first example of the combination of hollow tile and concrete, built without the use of structural steel, brick or timber. The exterior walls are almost entirely of hollow tile, finished on the outside surface with pebble dash in Portland cement mortar, the floors being of long span hollow tile construction, reinforced with special steel bars.

The "Chalfonte," located at the same place, is another example of fireproof construction, being a ten-story building of brick and terra cotta on steel frame, which is supported by foundations of piling with concrete caps. The floors are composed of concrete and cement, and the roof is made of tiles. The partitions are of a fireproof composition of plaster and asbestos. All columns in the brick walls are well covered on the outside and the two sides by the brick work, the inside being protected by wire lath and plaster, and a good sized dead air space. The inside columns are thoroughly surrounded by plaster blocks and plaster on metal lathing, being of three inch thickness.

The new hotel at Cape May, the new addition to the "Hotel Traymore," at Atlantic City, the annex to "Hotel Green," Pasadena, Cal., and the "Antlers Hotel," Colorado Springs, are also constructed of fire-resisting materials.

As to the different materials used in the construction of hotels, the St. Augustine hotels are the most unique. The "Ponce de Leon," "Alcazar," and "Cordova" are constructed of coquina. This is a material consisting of shell gathered on the Florida shores, ground and mixed with cement and hardened into blocks, a good fire-resisting substance. Said a prominent Boston underwriter, Mr. H. L. Hiscock, at a meeting of the National Fire Protection Association, in New York:

"We may yet see a house built of milk, and be as strong and lasting as though made of granite. A new substance, called galalith, is produced from milk and can be made into blocks for building purposes. It is fireproof."

Another house of good construction and of recent build is the "Mt. Washington," according to Mr. Hiscock. This is a substantial frame building, with first story of stone, all side walls bearing partitions filled in eight inches from floor levels with brick and cement for fire stops, with horizontal joist spaces stopped at intervals in a similar manner. Interior finish is hard plaster on expanded metal and Sackett wallboard, all woodwork being painted with fireproof paint. Heavy cutoff doors of plank in each corridor above the first floor, making several subdivisions. Exterior finish is Portland cement on expanded metal over the entire surface. Stairways are shut off by swinging doors. Elevator shafts are also of expanded metal and plaster, with tin-covered doors and wired glass windows in same.

A unique hostelry is the floating hotel off the coast of France. This is a big ocean steamer, containing 1,500 rooms, and fitted as a first-class hotel. The largest hotel and the one accommodating the largest number of guests in this country, if not in the world, is the "Royal Poinciana Hotel," Palm Beach, Fla. This is one continuous collection of buildings, five and six stories high, with a capacity of two thousand guests. The most expensive hotel in this country is probably the "Tampa Bay Hotel," Fla., costing $3,000,000. The largest loss on any hotel was that of the "Palace Hotel," San Francisco. The loss, including building and contents, was $1,842,423. This is believed to be the largest loss on any single risk ever adjusted in the United States.

—All contractors and owners, when constructing buildings, where the plans and specifications require the floors to be arched between the beams, or where the floors or filling in between the floors are of fireproof material, or brickwork, are required by one of the State laws for the protection of labor to complete the flooring or filling-in as the building progresses to not less than within three tiers of beams below that on which the ironwork is being erected. If the plans and specifications of such buildings do not require filling-in between the beams of floors with brick or fireproof material all contractors for carpenter work, in the course of construction, shall lay the underflooring thereof on each story as the building progresses, to not less than within two stories below the one to which such building has been erected.

A NEW PUBLIC BATH.

THE public bath which the Libman Contracting Co. erected at 5-7 Rutgers pl, New York City, under the supervision of Bernstein & Bernstein, architects, is most interesting in many particulars. The contract for this building provided for 250 working days, and this time, despite the poor bottom encountered, has been anticipated by over 30 days.

The bath is in the heart of the congested section of the city, and occupies a plot having 55 ft. frontage and being 130 ft. in depth; the height is over 80 ft. and the foundations extend 18 ft. below the curb. The front is designed in the Italian Renaissance, which was approved by the Municipal Art Commission, is of gray granite for the lower portion, terra cotta and gray brick laid in Flemish bond for the intermediate part, terminating at top with a pergola and balcony supported by massive terra cotta columns.

The building is fireproofed throughout and the floor arches, the majority of which are extraordinarily large, being over 15 ft., are of crushed stone in place of cinders. This is the type of arch which will be approved by the new building code and extraordinarily heavy loads have been placed thereon without sign of deflection.

There are accommodations for several hundred people per hour, as there are 84 showers for men and 47 for women, together with 15 large bathrooms and a shower room for use of gymnasts. The interior walls are of buff brick laid in light mortar with Italian marble wainscoting and partitions 8 ft. high and all floors of Terrazza drained at short intervals. To overcome any possible dampness, all the foundations and every floor has been waterproofed with Sarco and burlap, and the side walls painted with Konkreit.

The top floor has a gymnasium occupying 4,000 sq. ft. with ample locker accommodation. Every provision has been made to render this feature of the building especially attractive to the youngsters of the neighborhood, who have such little opportunity for recreation. The roof has been tiled and covered with guards and will be used for a playground, and during the hot months concerts will be rendered.

Of especial note are the mechanical arrangements which, together with a large laundry, are in the cellar. Here are located the immense double boilers with the ventilating apparatus designed to maintain an even temperature and to remove the foul odor and dampness created by the large number of people constantly using the baths. The building is lighted by electricity, though provision has been made for emergency gas lighting as well. Certainly this building is a fine testimony to the public spirit of the commission and officials who conceived and facilitated the erection of this edifice dedicated by the city to its poor.

AN INGENIOUS USE OF THE GRANITE MONOLITH.

The First National Bank Building of San Francisco boasts of the rather novel solution of an office building entrance, with hollow monolithic granite columns, which is reproduced below. The building, a massive twelve-story structure, has been rounded at the intersection of the facades, as may clearly be seen on our illustration. It was this rounding of the corner of the building which, doubtless, suggested to the architects, Messrs. D. H. Burnham & Co., the ingenious device of planning the portico or open vestibule to the entrances in the shape of an ellipse. This solution having been decided upon, the matter of duly emphasizing the entrance by appropriate architectural features was solved by placing two pairs of coupled columns under the supervening piers of the upper stories, effecting at the same time a continuation of the architecture in which the lowest story is garbed.

There is, of course, nothing unusual in using coupled granite columns as the architectural supporting members of an office building entrance. Nor is it unusual to use monolithic columns, though it is not possible to recall an instance in which stone columns are used as they are in the bank to which attention is being directed; the novelty of these columns in the First National is perfectly patent to the building constructor, though it perhaps needs pointing out to people who are merely informed in a general way on matters pertaining to building construction.

The strength of stone lies in its great capacity to withstand the action of crushing or compression, while its greatest weakness is its ineffectual resistance to a bending or tensile force. Moreover, it is known that the nature of the force which acts on a loaded column is a compound one, being partly compressive and partly tensile. To apply these properties to the case in hand, the architects or constructors of the bank under discussion were aware of the inability of four-stone columns to effectively resist the action of the weight of the superposed stories, but they were unwilling to abandon the granite columns as architectural features, so the columns were bored out and the steel columns which bear the load were concealed within. There is now no danger of the columns falling, as they support only a certain percentage of the superposed masonry, as is the case with the ordinary engaged or applied column in a masonry and skeleton wall.

The hollow-stone monolith is a happy thought constructively, though it must, of course, have its limits of mechanical possibility.

WHERE BUILDING MATERIALS ARE NEEDED

The Present Market in Its Entirety—A Report of Every Building Operation in the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx.

AN AID TO ALL SALES DEPARTMENTS

AN AID TO ALL SALES DEPARTMENTS.—Plans have been drawn for new buildings to be erected at the locations given below; details as to cost of the new construction, the names and addresses of the architects and the owners are included in each item. This building news represents new construction, including alterations about to be commenced, in the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx, plans for the work having been filed this week in the Department of Buildings. The official plan number in each case is given at the end of each paragraph.

Building contractors and building material firms may be assured that the information herein given includes every building enterprise of every sort and description contemplated in the two boroughs. The news is absolutely complete, irrespective of cost, including both the highest and the lowest grade of operations. By carefully following the news printed in these columns weekly, contractors and building material firms can possess for their sales departments absolutely reliable and absolutely complete information as to new projects.

HOW TO USE PROFITABLY.—It is hardly necessary to do more than indicate the many ways in which this information may be used.

Architects, owners and contractors can be solicited personally for orders.

Trade literature can be distributed with the certainty of reaching its destination.

Buyers can be apprised of the values of materials and equipment.

Time should not be allowed to elapse in the prosecution of the work of salesmanship. Steps should be taken immediately to handle each case. Even orders not obtained in any single case frequently prepare the way for subsequent sales. Records should be kept of each of these "possibilities," and the results of work done tabulated. Figures will be thus obtained that will throw considerable light on the efficiency of sales methods in operation.

It will not be necessary for us to point out in detail how much information a well-informed building material firm or contractor can easily READ INTO THESE NEWS ITEMS, a constant repetition of which in our columns would only take up space without any equivalent advantages. For instance, the instructed reader does not need to be told what the average equipment would be for, let us say, a seven-story brick and stone loft building, 25x75, costing $35,000, to be built on East Broadway. Plainly an elevator is inevitable; steam heat is inevitable; fireproofing is quite problematic, considering the cost. Everyone can figure that lumber will go into such a building, and a certain amount of rough trim, plastering, window sashes, hardware, plumbing fixtures, etc., etc.

Moreover, it will be understood that as the information that we publish is of an early character, the details of construction and equipment are probably open to a good deal of discussion with the architect and the owner. Red brick might be substituted for white brick, limestone for terra cotta, or vice versa, one type of elevator for another type, and so on throughout all the elements of construction equipment and finish. These points will naturally be very closely followed by an aggressive sales department. Here is where salesmanship, the price and value of a firm's materials will count. THOUGHT AND AGGRESSIVENESS IN THE USE OF THIS INFORMATION THAT WE FURNISH WEEKLY WILL PRODUCE BUSINESS. Don't forget that the entire market for your goods in the two boroughs is here, placed under your eyes, not for reading, but for ACTION. Follow up the news!

Brief and Personal.

Great changes in a year at Fort Washington.

The Manhattan Building Department will close at 3 P. M. during the months of July and August.

The office of the Engineering Record has been changed from 277 Pearl st to 239 West 39th st, New York.

Herman Petri has moved his office and showroom of tiles, mantels and fireplace goods to 124 East 41st st.

More building construction is going on in Hudson River cities than in years past.

More endurable temperatures have revived drooping ambitions among the builders.

Herbert DuPuy, of Pittsburgh, who recently entered the local sand and gravel market, has moved his offices to those of the Goodwin Sand and Gravel Co., 71 Broadway.

Harvey Farrington, manufacturer of expansion bolts, 45 Broadway, is spending his vacation with his family at Racquet Lake, N. Y. He will return to the city on July 9.

J. B. King, of the J. B. King Company, which recently moved its offices from No. 1 Broadway to 17 State st, has been in Europe since June 1, and will not return to his desk until about September 1.

M. S. Baldwin, advertising manager of the Otis Elevator Co., 17 Battery pl, is spending the major portion of the summer in Europe. He is expected to return to his office on or about August first.

W. P. Corbett, general sales manager of Alsen's American and German Portland cement, with offices at 45 Broadway, has gone on a fishing trip of two weeks' duration in Canada. He expected to return to his office on or about July 6.

J. C. Ewing, one of the managers of the Goodwin Sand and Gravel Co., is moving his family to this city from Pittsburgh, where he was formerly associated with Herbert DuPuy. Mr. Ewing will hereafter make New York his headquarters.

In the bankruptcy proceedings against Milliken Brothers, Inc., structural iron and steel contractors, of Milliken, S. I., formerly of 11 Broadway, July 15 was set this week as the time to file an answer to the petition filed against the corporation on June 10, 1907.

A. H. Bragg, of Eggleston Brothers, iron and steel dealers, South st, is on his vacation. He will return to his desk on August 1. He will devote considerable of his time to motoring. F. Cook, of the same firm, has returned from his vacation camping sojourn at Smithtown, L. I. W. F. Proctor takes his vacation in August.

A. Gardiner Cooper, a member of the firm of Bruce & Cook, iron and steel dealers, 190 Water st, is spending his vacation in the Maine woods. He wrote the heads of the various departments this week that he had caught 350 bass, the major portion of which weighed 3½ pounds. He will be back at his desk on Tuesday.

Edmund A. Fisher, president of the Sayre & Fisher Co., brick manufacturers, with yards at Sayreville, N. J., and offices in the Smith & Gray building, 261 Broadway, sailed for Europe on June 8. He arrived safely in Bremen with his family and started almost immediately upon a prolonged trip through Germany and France. He expects to be back in this city by August 1.

The Standard Concrete-Steel Company, engineers and contractors in reinforced concrete construction and of the Guy B. Waite systems of fireproofing, has obtained the contract for the reinforced concrete work, according to its "System M," for the storage warehouse to be erected on 150th st, east of Amsterdam av, for Thomas F. McAvoy. F. E. Glasser is the architect.

With the carpenters, as well as the iron-workers, outside of the arbitration breastwork, the peacemakers had better keep alert. Another big body of craftsmen, the bricklayers, never subscribed to the General Arbitration Plan,—but they never strike, they claim. At any rate, it is well to understand that the General Arbitration Board's ability to preserve peace has limitations.

John P. Kane, Jr., of the firm of John P. Kane Co., masons' building material, nearly had his finger cut off by an electric fan on Tuesday. He was sitting at his desk writing when the fan fell. He tried to catch it and the second finger of his right hand went between the brass guard. A blade of the fan cut so deep into the member that it severed the bone, leaving the digit hanging by a few tendons. He received surgical attention at once, and fears of blood poisoning developing have practically been allayed. He is still attending to business as usual, however.

Sunburst Prism Light Co. Incorporates.

The Sunburst Prism Light Co. was incorporated last week with $250,000 capital, all of which is in common stock, to succeed the Universal Iron Foundry Co., which has been doing a large business at Scholes and Waterbury sts, Williamsburgh, for many years. The officers will be elected within the week. The newly incorporated company will purchase the Universal Iron Foundry's plant and property, consisting of a plot 75x100 ft., on which stand three wooden and one brick factories and will devote the whole to the manufacture of a new vault light invented and perfected by Philip Schwickert, one of the incorporators of the new company.

This is a system of vault lights with mirror reflectors. The company also makes skylights which are burglar proof. Tests of the new system enabled a photograph to be taken of a printed placard placed 40 ft. from a skylight 15x45 ins., on an exposure of 1 to 8, daylighted street. In other words the exposure in the attic was only eight times the time of exposure allowed for the same work on a sun lighted avenue. In the developed picture the 24-point type was clearly readable without the use of magnifying glass. In the cellar, where one of the vault lights have been installed, a nonpariel or newspaper type could be read at a distance of 50 ft. with no other light penetrating the otherwise dark cellar. The company already reports several large orders from its Boston office.

Good Roofs Add to Life of Buildings.

An expert on building construction, writing in a recent number of a technical magazine, made the statement that one of the essentials in a building, the importance of which very frequently is passed over in a more or less perfunctory manner, is the roof. He said that a good roof adds to the life of a building. When a builder puts a roof on a structure he guarantees it for periods ranging from one to ten years, providing the house is not sold in the meantime. If the building is disposed of, the responsibility of the roofer usually ends. At 114 East 130th st, the Roof Maintainance Co. makes a specialty of taking up the maintainance of roofs where the builder leaves off. This company, of which L. C. Anderson is president and treasurer and S. P. Fields, is secretary, has been in business for nine years, and during that time has had charge of the maintainance of roofs of some of the most important buildings in this city. It also puts on new roofs and keeps them in repair not only during the period of its guarantee but on a yearly contract looks after them for an indefinite period.

All kinds of roofs are maintained by this company; it even puts a plastic slate covering over worn out shingles. The contracts held by this company do not terminate with a sale of property, but hold good with assigns, thus insuring constant attention and absolutely watertight roofs at all times. Among the contracts now held by this company is one for remodeling and maintaining the roofs of the estate of Conrad Stein at Red Bank, N. J.

Asbestos Furniture.

The Bureau of Construction and Repair of the United States Navy Department has taken up the subject of asbestos furniture in connection with a periodical investigation which is conducted into the question of fittings and furniture for naval ships in the protection from fire. Real estate and building interests are also awaiting the result of the investigation, because it is likely to be far-reaching.

It has been observed that this asbestos furniture is used on the Austrian cruiser St. George, where it has given much satisfaction. This had led to a practical test of various kinds of furniture of that type at the navy yard at Brooklyn. When the tests are completed a report will be filed with the Navy Department, and upon the conclusions will depend the extent of the adoption of this type of furniture on board our vessels of war.

From time to time the department has taken up the question of furniture made of wood, metal, asbestos and material which is specially treated against conflagration. It is desired, of course, to obtain furniture which reduces the danger from splinters in time of attack as well. Careful attention will be given to the question in an effort to improve the existing situation and increase the factor of protection.

BUILDING MATERIAL AND EQUIPMENT

Trade Optimistic Over Coming Six Months.

The week closed the first half of the year 1909 with building material and equipment men fairly well satisfied with the business they have done since Jan 1, and optimistic for the next six months. There is only one exception. The cement man had some trying experiences during the latter half of the six months just closed, but the fact that the situation probably will clear within another four weeks carries them into the front ranks of the hopeful. Officials of principal companies in the brick, cement, iron and steel, lumber and stone markets, asked specifically as to their views of the business situation for the half year just closed, and as to the outlook for the next six months were unanimous in their expressions of satisfaction as to the past and of confidence in an exceptionally busy fall.

Some expressed the opinion, however, that the summer would not bring forth any noteworthy activity. As to a summary of the week, brickmen are active. They are closing up old work preparatory to new fall business wherever this is possible. Cement is still stagnant. Iron and steel lag principally because it is stock taking time at the mills. Long expected labor troubles have also held back immediate delivery orders. Lumber men continued to report increasing business, and the stone men say they have found a "soft spot" in the market. There is little new work being given out now. A gradual improvement, however, is noted.

BRICK MARKET STIFFER—PRICES FIRM.

A stiffening in the brick market, with prices remaining firm, characterized the week in the Hudson clay burning industry. The manufacturrers are not shipping as plentifully as heretofore, but they are sending down a better quality. The Hudson River yards are now working full time trying to catch up with the demand, but none of them has any stock ahead to speak of. Locally it is a case of rushing through with the old work to take on new business in the Fall. Hardly anybody has any buoyant expectations for the Summer. Some distributors complained of having difficulty in getting sufficient trucks to get brick to jobs. This was not general, however.

GOOD MARKET FOR JERSEYS.

Sayre & Fisher report an improving market for their Jersey hards and a little falling away in prices over the quotation for last week. The indications are for a good summer business and a very busy fall. The company is making new brick fast and already has a large quantity in store. This company has a large part of its yards at Sayreville, N. J., covered, and in consequence the rainy weather of the early part of June had no retarding effect upon daily output. The company expects a firm market from now on.

Cement Situation Remains Unchanged.

No meeting of the cement licensees was called for this week, and while other meetings will be held between this date and the first meeting day in August, it is considered improbable that any action will be taken to readjust prices. Local dealers and agents have about given up hope of a return to normal conditions before next month. John B. Wight, of the Alpha Company, said: "I look for no immediate change."

As a direct result, it is said, of the unsettled condition in the cement business, a small plant at Wayland, Steuben County, N. Y., has closed down. Duane Miller, president of the company, is quoted as saying that as soon as the situation clarifies, he will resume operations. The Empire Portland Cement Co. at Warner has reduced its force of help at its mill. Harry S. Hayden, president of that company, said that he has a large stock on hand.

Looking back over the six months just ended, a representative of one of the companies chiefly instrumental in bringing about the present agreement as regards prices, said:

"The first six months of this year would have been nearly a record period had it not been for a number of companies who got hoggish. Still we have no cause for worry, and I guess that when certain conditions are taken into consideration, it will be figured out that the first six months have shown up to average in amount of business done. The prospects are for a dull July and August, but every cement man looks forward to a busy fall."

ALPHA COMPANY INCREASES WAGES.

Despite the unfavorable conditions in the cement market at present, the Alpha Cement Co. has announced an increase in the wages of its employees at its works at Easton, Pa., of 10 per cent., which took effect on July 1. The order effects about 900 men. The officials of the company say that the prevailing conditions in the cement market do not warrant an increase at this time, but it is granted "in consideration of the higher cost of living." No official confirmation of the report could be obtained from the local office, where it was stated, however, that it had been known for some time that the company had been considering such a move.

Fair Iron Inquiry—No Large Tonnages

While there continues to be a fair inquiry for pig iron there is practically no sizable tonnage. All the Eastern Pennsylvania furnaces closed down on July 1 for inventories, and on account of labor trouble. The issue is the "closed shop." The independent mills are not in the melee. The voluntary ten per cent. increase in wages given to the men in that district on June 1 has put them in good humor. It will be recalled that on April 1st the furnaces reduced the men's wages ten per cent. until such time as conditions improved in the principal markets. At that time the prices were low and many furnaces were idle. About the middle of May conditions began to improve and the advance was made. According to leading pig iron dealers the prospects for a good fall are excellent.

ONE FIRM SOLD UP ON IRON.

The Republic Iron & Steel Co. report that they are all sold up on iron and are not seeking new business. In consequence it reports few inquiries and few sales. This will continue until the mills close some time between July 12 and 15. Specifications are keeping up, however, and there are indications for a busy summer and fall. All the mills are showing a tendency to hold prices higher.

IRON FIRM'S SHUT DOWN TEMPORARY.

The Record and Guide is informed that the daily press's account of the closing of the Morris County Machine and Iron Co. at Dover, N. J., is not entirely correct. The company's officials plan to close down temporarily for the purpose of taking stock, etc., as is customary at this time of the year, but that it will reopen later in the summer. The company has had plenty to do, but its collections have been slow. It was organized fifty years ago.

RECORD MONTH FOR STEEL AND WIRE.

The American Steel & Wire Co. experienced a record month in June. The total sales in the wire reinforcement department alone for the thirty days just closed represented more than the entire first half of last year. The amount of business done in June over that of the year previous was 150 per cent. Most of the company's products from this department went to New England States, and was used in the reinforcement of chimneys and of sewer pipe. Some of the last named work is being done in Newark, N. J. The company reports exceptional business in all departments during the last two months, and already the total sales are ahead of those of last year. A heavy fall business is expected. It will be remembered that the American Steel & Wire Co. recently announced a reduction in some cases amounting to $9 a ton in some of its products.

STEEL MEN WATCHING LABOR SITUATION.

Local steel men are intensely interested in the labor situation in and about the mills at present. It seems to be generally conceded that it will be a fight for life with the unions. Should the employers win, the independent mills, it is thought, will also declare the open shop and the backbone of alleged labor dictation, which is given as the basis for the employers' present action, will be broken. Commenting on the situation one steel man said:

"You can hardly blame these fellows for trying to keep their unions alive, yet we have got to look out for ourselves. They have become too dictatorial. They should have the greatest care in acting at this time, especially in view of the adverse decisions unionism has received of late, yet it is entirely probable that they will find encouragement in the present crisis in the victory of the Cleveland car men. I do not look for any immediate change in prices."

BUSH TERMINAL CONTRACT LET.

The Turner Construction Co., 11 Broadway, has been awarded the contract for the model factory No. 4 for the Bush Terminal Co., Brooklyn. This building will be of reinforced concrete throughout, and will be 750x75 ft., and six stories high. Work will start at once.

SEES BRIGHTER FUTURE FOR STEEL.

W. F. Proctor, of Eggleston Brothers, iron and steel dealers, South st, in summing up the iron and steel situation for the half year just closing, said:

"Business is improving. With us the last few months it has been satisfactory. There is a better tone and feeling everywhere. There is no doubt that business is tending in the right direction and that the fall will witness activity the like of which has not been seen in years."

Lumber Tariff and the Local Market.

Now that the schedule has been passed on final vote and will remain in the background until the bill goes to conference, the local lumber men are showing less interest in the matter than heretofore. The imposts that Congress may make on this building commodity has little effect upon the local market, the subject being of more vital concern to the loggers and mill men especially in the South than to the dealer here. There the mill man has to fix his price so that he can compete with the Canadians. He therefore was desirous of having a stiff rate fixed. The fact that the proposal to advance the $1 rate went through the Senate debates without hardly any opposition was a matter of surprise to the lumber interests there. It is taken to indicate that the proposed duty of $1.50 per thousand on rough with differentials for dressed stock slightly reduced from those now in force, is equitable.

THE NEW TARIFF SCHEDULE.

It is improbable that there will be any change in the schedule fixed by the Senate when both houses confer on the finished bill. The rates which therefore will probably stand follow:

Rough stock, $1.50 per M.; dressed one side, $1.50 per M.; dressed one side and tongue and grooved, $1.75 per M.; dressed three sides, that is, dressed one side and tongue and grooved, $2.12½; dressed four sides, i. e., dressed two sides and tongue and grooved, $2.50; which is 25 per cent. less than the Dingley duty. All the other differentials except the first, that on lumber dressed on one side, which is the same as the Dingley duty, are reduced in about the same proportion. On lath the duty was increased from 20 to 25 cents per thousand pieces over that fixed by the House and on shingles from 30 to 50 cents. The provision for a 30 per cent. ad valorem duty on boxes, barrels and other receptacles used for fruits, etc., was stricken out. These rates will not effect local prices.

LOCAL MARKET IMPROVING.

Continued improvement was noted during the week in both retail and wholesale lumber centres. There was a better inquiry and some large orders were placed. The wholesalers are beginning to feel some of the prosperity that the retailers have been experiencing the last two months. Prices remain stationary, however, with a tendency upward in pine and spruce.

LUMBER.

These figures cover only wholesale prices to the trade on well manufactured graded stock, classified by the inspection rules now in operation. Because of terms of sale, etc., it is impracticable to quote retail prices.

"Soft Spot" in the Stone Market.

"We have struck a soft spot in the stone market here," wrote one wholesaler to his quarries during the week. The sentence explains in a nutshell just how the market is. Conditions are not settled. By this time it was expected that the market would open and that some of the contracts which are being held up would be awarded and work for which contracts have been signed up would get the word to go ahead.

But when the stone men complain they base it on what they had expected for this season rather than actual scarcity of work. The yards are working up to the usual percentages and fair sized contracts are plentiful. Any number of contracts are being let for jobs like that for which Arlando Marine, general stone dealer, 5 East 42d st, closed a few days ago. This case is mentioned because the structure has particular architectural merit.

The New Jersey Stone Construction Co. of Jersey City closed for all the stonework, which included four monoliths each 14 ft. 7 ins. high and 3 ft. thick, for the new Merchants' Union National Bank, at Union Hill, N. J. These monoliths are being cut from solid stone, trimmed, turned and fluted at the quarries. This is somewhat an unusual procedure, but when requested to by the trade, in cases where the purchaser has not heavy enough machinery to turn and flute stone of this size, some of the larger wholesale men will do that work for them at the quarries and will send caps and all to the job ready for setting. The cost of this building will be about $10,000.

LOTS OF SMALL WORK.

There is a great deal of this kind of work being done now, and had not the hopes of the trade been raised to such heights by the "Be Optimistic" sentiment that followed the late depression and had they not taken the boom promises quite so much to heart, the reports of the stone men to-day would almost universally be: "Fine business and more inquiries coming in."

JUNE A RECORD MONTH.

A few days ago nearly the entire stone trade of the Greater City swapped confidences with officials of the big trunk lines having terminals in or near New York on the sixteenth annual outing given by the Merritt-Chapman Wrecking Co. on their boat "Reliance" at Rye Beach, where the wrecking company gave its famous shore dinner and theatre party to its guests, the condition of trade was freely discussed. The consensus of opinion was that June was a better month than last year, and that last year's June was the biggest in many years. One firm's representative said it was the biggest in his company's history.

Among those at the frest air fest were Archibald Williams and Andrew Harold, of the B. A. & G. N. Williams Co.; Mr. Shillinger, of George Brown Co.; Mr. Carr and Mr. Ball, of the firm of Carr, Ball and Co., and Mr. Ball, who, by the way, is no relation to the head of the firm, superintendent of works; Harry Horner, representing H. J. Horner & Sons, Newark; Arlando Marine, the wholesaler, of this city; John E. Miller, of David Miller & Son; John R. Smith and a son, Clarence Smith, of John R. Smith's Son; Frank and Thomas Miller, E. Miller's Sons, Long Island City; Mr. Muir, representing Edmond Shuttleworth Co., Astoria; Mr. Ross and Mr. Cruickshank, of the Rankin & Ross Co.; John Hayes, of the Thomas Dean Co., Brooklyn; Frank Barr, of Barr, Thaw & Frazier, Hoboken, and John Hutchinson, of John Hutchinson's Sons.

"LESS BUSINESS, BUT MORE MONEY IN IT."

Another peculiar feature of the six months business just closed is that while there has been less business than had been expected, what there was of it has been more profitable than in former years, and that is what is meant when some stone men say that business has been better than that of June of last year. It has not been necessary to shade so closely and consequently the margin has been wider. Collections have been better, too.

LOOK FOR GOOD MARKET WITH FIRM PRICES.

It seemed to be the general opinion among the stone men at the outing that the uncertainties of the first half of the year were over and that with the dawn of the last half on Thursday the market would be firmer, the prices stronger and the inquiry more fruitful.

—John A. Topping, chairman of Board of Directors of the Republic Iron and Steel Co., 115 Broadway, returned this week from Pittsburgh, where he has been making personal supervision of the furnaces and mills there prior to taking the annual inventories. He reports things to be in good condition, and looks for a busy fall, and thinks that indications are good for the summer to be fairly active. Mr. Topping has just completed a handsome new residence at Greenwich, Conn., into which his family moved this week.

Plaster in Competition with Lime Mortar.

It will be interesting to the building trade to know that a first-class hard plaster may now be applied at a price to compete with that for lime mortar. The universal use of hard plaster has only been retarded because of its former high price.

In 1898 hard plaster sold in the New York market for $12 per ton, exclusive of bags. Through improved methods of manufacture and increased use, the price has gradually declined, and not until this spring was the present low price of $8.50 per ton reached. At each decline the use of hard plaster over lime has increased, but still the lime mortar has held its friends on account of its low price.

Clifford L. Miller & Co., manufacturers, of 110 East 23d st, has been working for several years to produce good hard plaster at a price to compete with lime. After four years of work in opening up its quarries, situated on the Erie Canal, New York, and making many improvements at its plant at Newtown Creek, Brooklyn, it now announces that it is ready to supply the trade in Manhattan and Brooklyn, within reasonable cartage, at $7.50 per neat ton. Practical plasterers claim this to be lower than lime mortar.

In this connection it is interesting to consider that the use of hard plaster has increased in the United States from about 150,000 tons in 1898 to practically 11,500,000 tons in 1908. When this is considered, said one user of this kind of plaster, this week, there must be merit in the material.

Wall Furnishing Problems.

With the introduction into the household of the vacuum cleaning apparatus and other modern inventions, it seems only natural that the scrubable wall should come, yet such an innovation in plaster treatment has not only been perfected but it is on the market, and according to reports from John Lucas & Co., dealers in paints, colors, varnishes, brushes and glass, this city, it is meeting with a remarkable sale.

The problem of how to treat the walls of a store, office or dwelling have perplexed architects and builders for years. Wall paper will fade, and peel under adverse atmospheric conditions, and it will be damaged by vapors from cooking. The kitchen walls are subjected to the severest kind of use. The ashes grime and soot from the coal range, all attack the wall. In the laundry conditions are even worse. Then there is the bathroom where the temperature is constantly alternating. Vapors saturate the walls and the inevitable drying-out has a bad effect.

When wall paper has become spotted or faded it cannot be scrubbed and cleaned. For these rooms and for churches, hospitals, halls, hotels, theatres and public buildings, of all kinds, there has grown a demand, therefore, for a coating that is clean, sanitary and hygienic and which can be scrubbed without injury with soap and water when soiled. But such a preparation must have a soft, velvety finish that is restful to the eye and permanently beautiful.

The preparation made by John Lucas & Co., is known as "Lu-Flat-Kot." It is a wall specialty that is said to meet all requirements. Its manufacturers have studied the wall problem for years and this product is said to represent years of study and chemical research and practical experience, "Lu-Flat-Kot" contains no lead, glue, paste or casein. It dries with a flat velvety finish without a trace of gloss or sheen. A variety of permanent colors are offered. It is unaffected by dampness, mildew or moisture. It can be used equally successfully on wood, metal, plaster, canvas, concrete or any constructive surface whether it be wet or dry.

Safety Elevator "Safeties."

It is generaly known that the Welsh Machine Works, at 276–277 West st, are builders of high-grade passenger, freight, garage and sidewalk elevators, and that they have been building elevating machinery for the trade for several years. But the fact that this firm has become very active of late in contracting and erecting their own machines is not so generally known, excepting to some builders and contractors who have placed these machines in their buildings, stores and factories, where, it is said, they have given very great satisfaction.

The company's activity, which has called considerable attention to itself from the trade, is somewhat due to the efforts of Mr. E. Marshall, M. E., and an elevator expert of more than thirty years' standing. Mr. Marshall took charge of the sales department of that company at the first of the year, and since that time the company has handled the following contracts, some of which are now in course of installation:

New York Improved Real Estate Co., 320 Church st, one freight elevator; Freed & Co., 279 Church st, one freight elevator; the Corporation of Hegeman & Co., 200 Broadway, one sidewalk elevator; Wm. Iselin & Co., 1 Green st, one freight elevator; George W. Higdon, 473 4th av, one sidewalk elevator and one hand-power elevator; American Elevator Co., [illegible] Cedar st, one sidewalk elevator; Gustav Seaberg, 407 Douglass st, Brooklyn, three freight elevators and two passenger elevators; George I. Roberts & Bro., 471 4th av, one passenger and two freight elevators; Frederick Roeder, 879 Grand st, Brooklyn, one 6,000-lb. garage elevator; Charles H. Lang, 500 5th av, one 5,000-lb. garage elevator; Moe Levy & Co., 119 Walker st, one passenger elevator; B. House & Co., 8 West 39th st, one passenger elevator.

Mr. Marshall states that the Welsh Machine Works are experiencing a good, healthy growth in business and the prospects are good for a busy season. He says that there is a good demand for elevators and that the Welsh Machine Works has a type of elevator that will fill the demand, if that demand embraces efficiency, light running at minimum of cost and exceptional durability of mechanism. This company, by the installation of modern machinery, is prepared to take contracts for the direct connected, single or double worm and gear, overhead, drum or traction type of machine, modern rise plungers for passenger and freight service, and, in fact, any kind of a lift where safety is combined with speed and durability.

This company has a safety device which makes it impossible for an elevator to run into the overhead works or to fall if the cables break. The Welsh Compression Safety can be adjusted to all speeds, loads and conditions. One particular feature of this device is that it does not become worn out or inoperative for want of use or by being used. A careful system of adjustment of parts, it is said, gives these elevators ease in operation which permits of no waste power and consequent additional cost. For apartment house work where safety as well as economy in operation and efficiency are essential requirements, this company installs a machine which it claims to have perfected after years of expensive and exhaustive tests.

OF INTEREST TO PROPERTY OWNERS.

Valuable Information Given Weekly Showing Status of Municipal Improvement Proceedings in all Branches.

Owners of real estate frequently get an unpleasant shock when they have sold a given piece of property, and title is about to pass. The attorney for the buyer, or title company, brings out a memorandum which shows that besides certain charges, such as taxes, water rent (in all probability known to the seller), there are one or more assessments which have been a lien against the property for a long or short time, as the case may be. Naturally the seller is annoyed and states that he was unaware that these liens existed. To overcome this condition the Record and Guide publishes all of these proceedings, under classified heads, and in ample time to give the owner abundant opportunity to make a protest, should he deem it advisable. Much confusion and disappointment can be avoided by weekly glancing at this column. At the end of each proceeding the official number is given, and should the owner desire to secure the full particulars of any given improvement, it will aid him materially. This information will be found to be of great use to the real estate broker. It gives him additional information for his files, and should be of considerable aid to him in consummating sales. As an example, should he learn that a proceeding for the acquiring of title by the city to a street on which he had property for sale, he would have an additional argument to place before his client, which otherwise might have escaped his notice.

The Record and Guide is regularly publishing for property owners and others information relative to the opening of streets, regulating and grading, curbing and flagging of same, as well as the construction of sewers, permanent and temporary.

The reader will understand that municipal improvements of this order are assessed against the owners of property, both improved and unimproved, situated within the district directly benefited. For example a given street is going to be paved. In all likelihood not only will the property be assessed that faces on the street directly in front of where the work is going to be done, but also property will be assessed in adjoining streets and thoroughfares which might receive the benefit of such improvement.

That the various stages of carrying through these proceedings may be followed with intelligence by the property owner they have been divided into three classes:

1. Public Works.
2. Condemnation Proceedings.
3. Assessments.

1. Under the heading "Public Works" will be printed petitions asking that improvements may be made, and the successive initiatory proceedings, including mention of the probable district that will have to bear the assessment.

Under the second heading will follow the announcement of the application for the appointment of Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment, later followed by their various reports and findings. Fuller explanation of the foregoing will be found as the reader proceeds.

Under the third and final heading will follow the details relating to the confirmation and the entry of assessments with a statement of the time within which they may be paid, without incurring penalty for arrears. In other words, if payment be not made within a given time, an interest charge, upon the amount due is exacted by the city, which must be paid by the owner of the property.

PUBLIC WORKS.

To specifically illustrate the successive steps in a proceeding for a public improvement, let it be assumed that a new street is required in some section of any of the five boroughs comprising the city of New York. A movement of this kind is usually started and agitated by some property owner, an association of property owners or perhaps considered by a board of trade. A petition is presented to a regularly established local board, whose function is to give the proceeding the first or initial official hearing and if deemed advisable by that body, recommendation for its adoption is made to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. This latter body meets nearly every Friday morning at 10.30 o'clock in their room in the City Hall and has jurisdiction over all public improvements.

If the board approves of the petition the area of assessment (that is to say boundary lines are fixed, and all property owners who have holdings therein are assessed in proportion to the amount of their real estate contained within these bounds) except where physical betterments are concerned, such as regulating, grading and curbing streets, laying sewers and flagging sidewalks as well as fencing vacant lots, in which case the Board of Assessors determine the area of assessment and the assessments for benefit. Motion is then made by the Corporation Counsel for the appointment of commissioners to condemn.

CONDEMNATION PROCEEDINGS.

The next step is the appointment by the Supreme Court of three Commissioners of Appraisal, of which one is designated as a Commissioner of Assessment. The commission hears all objections made by property owners as to title and value. When every one has had a hearing preliminary reports are prepared by the commission containing the amount of awards and assessments which in its opinion the various owners are entitled to. These reports are subsequently filed for examination and objections by property owners or parties in interest who may be dissatisfied with the findings of the commission.

Public hearings are then in order, and objecting parties are given an opportunity to register their disapproval of the findings. The commission then prepares and files a copy of its final report in the County Clerk's office followed by the presentation of its report to the Supreme Court for confirmation.

ASSESSMENTS.

The report of the Commissioners as approved is then transmitted to the Comptroller for the payment of awards and the collection of assessments, who in turn publishes the date of confirmation or when the assessment should be paid and entry of the assessment in the "Record of Titles of Assessments." A statement is made giving the time within which such assessment can be paid, without a penalty. If an assessment is not paid within 60 days after the date of entry, it is subject to an interest change at the rate of 7 per cent. a year.

Kurz give notice that the bill of costs, charges and expenses in this proceeding up to and including June 23, 1909, will be presented for taxation to the Supreme Court on July 9.

INSURING WATER TAXES.

A new idea which is meeting with considerable favor is water tax insurance. The city charges for all water going through the meter, and while it does not intentionally wrong a property owner, still rebates and settlements are hard to obtain. A company has been formed to adjust these differences. A statement in dollars and cents of the amount used at every meter is valuable information, as an owner can make comparisons from month to month with previous years. Many large manufacturing concerns and property owners have already availed themselves of this service.

ASSOCIATION'S TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY FITTINGLY CELEBRATED.

An outing and dinner to celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the House and Real Estate Owners' Association of the 12th and 19th Wards, was held at Donnelly's Grove, College Point, L. I., on Thursday, June 24, 1909. The affair was a great success. Over 500 members and their guests attended. After the dinner speeches were delivered by a number of prominent city officials and realty owners. Adolph Bloch, the association's counsel, introduced as toastmaster President George H. Beck. His topic was "Our Association." Lawrence Veiller, "The Tenement House Amendments;" Assistant Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien, "City Government." Comptroller Herman A. Metz, who was enthusiastically received, told "Why Business Men Should Go Into Politics." Allan Robinson, president of the Allied Real Estate Interests, also spoke. The speech-making was followed by athletic games and dancing.

A souvenir book, compiled under the supervision of Charles H. Schnelle, chairman of the Press Committee, and containing the following articles, "The City's Finances," by Comptroller Metz; "Tenement House Legislation," by Adolph Bloch; "A Historical Sketch of Yorkville," by Charles H. Schnelle, and "A Synopsis of the Tenement House Amendments," by Frank Eberhardt, was distributed. Among those present were Thomas Krekler, president of the United States Real Estate Owners' Association; Frank De Muth, president of the West Side Taxpayers' Association; John Becker, Charles Lutz, Charles Sayer, Michael Carew, A. J. McCadden, John Volz, Charles W. Eidt, Charles Eberhardt, Charles H. Schnelle, William H. Mehlich, Edward Engel, C. H. Steinkamp, J. Fred Boss, Dr. Abraham S. Korn, president of the Harlem Property Owners' Association; Charles J. F. Bohlen, president of the Taxpayers' Association of the 18th and 21st Wards; Edward D. Farrell, Pierre M. Clear, Tenement House Commissioner Edmond J. Butler, Jacob Appell. Letters expressing regret at not being able to attend were received from Governor Hughes, Mayor McClellan, Herman Ridder and Deputy Tenement House Commissioner William H. Abbott, Jr.

The following article by Comptroller Herman A. Metz appeared in the twentieth anniversary souvenir book, which was published under the supervision of Charles H. Schnelle to commemorate the occasion:

"There has been some talk about the increase of the rate of taxation and some apprehension of an increase larger than usual, this year; but the increases have been and will be very small, and especially so when the great development of the city is taken into consideration.

"When you consider the question, you should not forget that since consolidation, the city has spent $81,000,000 to extend the school system, $30,000,000 on the parks, $57,500,000 on docks and ferries, $7,500,000 on public libraries, nearly $5,000,000 for improving the Charities Department, $3,500,000 for the Fire Department, $3,500,000 for the Health Department, and $3,000,000 for the Police Department; about $27,000,000 has been spent on bridges, and $50,000,000 on subways.

"It takes $23,000,000 a year to pay the salaries of the 25,000 teachers in the public schools; $13,000,000 a year to pay the salaries of 10,000 policemen; $5,000,000 a year to pay the salaries of 6,000 street cleaners; $6,600,000 a year to pay the salaries of 4,700 firemen. And of the grand total of approximately $80,000,000 annually paid in salaries, all but a small fraction is spent under mandatory laws for which the city officials are not responsible. One-third of the budget every year goes to take care of the city debt.

"We must not go too fast. We do not want to increase the tax rate. We do not want to pile up any more debt until we know just where we stand. As soon as we can feel assured that the credit of the city is going to continue to be adequately protected, and when we know that we shall be able to keep the tax rate within reasonable limitations, we have got to take up this question of subways and go ahead and build them wherever they are needed. No citizen will welcome the time when this can be done more gladly than I will."

RECENT LOANS.

The Pocono Realty Co. secured a building loan of $750,000 from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. on the old Parker Building at the southeast cor of 4th av and 19th st.

SUCCESSFUL OUTING OF THE NORTH SIDE BOARD OF TRADE.

The North Side Board of Trade, which has a membership of one hundred, made a triangular trip to New Rochelle, Mt. Vernon and Yonkers on Thursday, June 24th.

The start was made from the board rooms in the Carr building, 138th st and 3d av, at 9.30 o'clock, and special trolley cars were taken to New Rochelle, where Mayor Raymond and city officials met the members at the City Hall; thence to Hudson Park and a short sail was had on the Sound. Mt. Vernon was the next stopping place, where the delegation was met by Mayor Howe and a buffet lunch served. A trip through the city was made in automobiles. Mt. Vernon was next visited. Mayor Warren greeted the party on its arrival. A sail on the Hudson was next in order, after which cars were taken to Park Hill Inn, where a dinner was served.

The guests included Hon. George G. Raymond, Mayor New Rochelle; Hon. Benjamin Howe, Mayor Mt. Vernon; Hon. Nathan A. Warren, M. D., Mayor Yonkers; Hon. Louis F. Haffen, President Borough of the Bronx; Hon. Joseph A. Goulden, Hon. William S. Bennet, Hon. John E. Andrus.

INFORMATION FOR THE BUYER.

Purchasers of real property are frequently desirous of knowing whether certain articles in the premises they agree to buy will come to them under the agreement as part of the real estate. This depends upon whether such articles are "fixtures" or not in the eye of the law. The rule as to what shall be deemed fixtures varies somewhat when the question arises between a landlord and tenant and between a buyer and seller of real estate. For instance, mirrors fastened to the sidewall by an iron clamp, and let into and glued to the mantelpiece, and constructed at the same time and with frames of the same wood as the mantel, would be held to be fixtures; while a mirror resing upon a bracket and connected with the wall only as picture frames usually are, would be held otherwise. Chairs furnished to a theatre or like structure, of a special pattern adapted to the place where they are set and screwed to the floor because they cannot stand alone, are held to be a part of the building.

There are three requisites to constitute an article a fixture as between the seller and buyer of real property; the article must be actually annexed to the land or house, it must be applicable to the use or purpose to which the part of the land or house with which it is connected is appropriated, and the person who annexed it to the house or land must have intended to make a permanent accession to the freehold. "While not agreeing as to the necessity for or the degree of importance to be attached to the fact of actual physical annexation, yet the authorities generally unite in holding that, to consitute a fixture, the thing must be of an accessory character and must be in some way in actual or constructive union with the principal subject, and not merely brought upon it."

TO ATTACH WOODWORK TO CEMENT.—It occasionally becomes a problem to attach woodwork to cement, more particularly where it is necessary to place window casings in cement-block buildings. One solution that has been recommended is as follows: Make all the sills and caps two inches narrower to allow a 2x4 or 2x8 (according to the thickness of the cap or sill) to be inserted in the wall the same as would be done with cut stone. Also make the water tables the thickness of the wall in one solid piece 4 feet long, with spaces cored out for the joists. The foregoing information will be appreciated by the property owner who has occasion to make extensive alterations.

REALTY MARKET SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Sales More Numerous and Activity Renewed in Mortgage Loan Market.

THOUGH complaints are being continually heard on all sides that the real estate business is dead, the following figures will put some light on the true condition of the market. The size of the transactions, the money involved, is not taken into consideration, though it may be stated with perfect truth that larger deals have been closed during the first six months of 1909 as compared with the corresponding period in 1908.

The grand total of sales reported in the Record and Guide during this period was 2,365, as against 1,140 last year. These figures only take in sales reported by brokers. The total number of deeds recorded in the Hall of Records for Manhattan is 6,165, as against 5,102, while in the Bronx there were 3,772 recorded as against 4,040.

Another encouraging feature of the present realty market is that this gain has been consistent and not spasmodic. The total for every month is larger than the one during 1908, with the exception of the Bronx conveyances for the months of February and June. This latter total is in part accounted for by the recording of the deeds of several large auction sales held in the latter part of the preceding month. For example, there were 369 lots offered in the Hunt's Point section in one sale alone.

The total number of properties, with expressed considerations, was 460, amounting to $27,488,240, as against 351 aggregating $19,001,594. From January 1, 1909, to July 1, the assessed value of the property solid in Manhattan was $279,996,720, as against $242,839,800. The total amount loaned out on bond and mortgage for Manhattan and the Bronx during this period was $199,775,410, as against $174,957,457.

The figures of the sales reported during the first half of 1909 do not compare at all favorably with those of the first part in 1907. It must be remembered that while business showed somewhat of a falling off from boom times, still brokers were all making money and realty conditions were prosperous. The total number of sales made through brokers was 3,514, as against 2,365, as already stated. The number of deeds recorded for Manhattan alone was 7,646, as against 6,165. In The Bronx there were 4,937 deeds put on record as against 3,772 this year. Starting with July in 1907 there was a sharp reaction in activity and conditions did not commence to improve until September, 1908. Just think of a city like New York, when all the brokers combined only report between 20 and 30 sales during a week. These figures are not taken from any one week, but business was in this stagnant condition for many weeks in the latter part of 1907 and 1908. Business showed some signs of life in March, 1908, and from that time on the sales reported have been steadily on the increase.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING HELD.

A very enthusiastic meeting of the 23d St Improvement Association was held Wednesday, June 30th, in the Metropolitan Life Insurance Building, 1 Madison av. The meeting was held in one of the large offices of the company, and there was a very good attendance. Mr. E. Belknap, of George C. Flint & Co., presided, and Mr. William H. Silk acted as secretary. Mr. Louis Schrag reported for the Improvement Committee. This committee has been urging the resumption of the East 23d st ferries, which have been inoperative for some time. The matter was taken up with Comptroller Metz, who expressed himself favoring the plan. It was urged by several of the members, who spoke on this matter, that the resumption of these ferries meant much to 23d st interests. Shoppers who came from Long Island by automobile found this ferry most convenient. It is hoped that prompt action will be taken by the authorities for the resumption of the ferries.

The matter of express stations along the line of the new subway at 23d st was brought up by the Transit Committee; this committee consists of Mr. Louis Stern, Mr. Walter E. Maynard and Mr. Arthur H. Scribner. One of the reasons advanced by the meeting, why 23d st should be an express stop was, that its four new large buildings have as many employees who use the subway, as has all 14th st.

A resolution, which has been referred to the Committee on Improvement, was adopted, authorizing that committee to appeal to the Mayor and the proper authorities for protection against the nuisance of the street venders and peddlers who help to congest 23d street, also 6th av. Several of the merchants have called on the police for protection against this nuisance, but without result. This committee is determined to take this matter to the Mayor and demand the necessary relief.

In the absence of Mr. C. A. Gould, the chairman of the Publicity Committee, Mr. H. C. Smith, of E. P. Dutton & Co., submitted a report in which he referred to the work this committee is doing toward securing for the street due publicity.

The association has added some fifty new names to its already large membership, which consists of almost all the large business and real estate interests of 23d st and vicinity and promises to be the most influential organization of its kind in the city.

A partial list of those present at the meeting were: Louis M. Starr, Charles Scribners' Sons, Simon Lindau, Stern Bros., Dorlons, Black & Boyd Manufacturing Co., J. R. McAfee, H. Freud, W. H. McCord, Rev. Dr. H. P. Mendes, J. W. Cushman & Co., Louis Schrag, Alfred E. Schermerhorn, M. H. Harris, Otto Denecke, M. D. Hanlon, C. H. Welling Co., Jordan, Moriarty & Co., Le Boutillier Bros., E. P. Dutton & Co., Fifth Av Bldg. Co., Emile Kraft, Louis Delmarre, William H. Plummer & Co., and F. A. Seaman.

RIPARIAN LAWS.

BY WILLIAM A. GRETZINGER.

By the law of England the property in the bed and water of a tidal river as high as the tide ebbs and flows at a medium spring tide is presumed to be in the crown or a grantee of the crown, generally the lord of a manor, and the bed and water of a non-tidal river are presumed to belong to the person through whose land it flows, or, if it divides two properties, to the riparian proprietors, the rights of each extending to mid-stream (ad medium filum aquae). In order to give riparian rights, the river must flow in a defined channel, or at least above ground. The diminution of underground water collected by percolation does not give a cause of action to the owner of the land in which it collects, though he is entitled to have it unpolluted unless a right of pollution be gained against him by prescription. As a general rule a riparian proprietor, whether on a tidal or non-tidal river, has full rights of user of his property.

The principal rights enjoyed by riparian owners as such are the rights of increase of property by means of alluvion and the right of use of the water.

Alluvion is the gradual and imperceptible increase of land by deposit, a sudden and violent changing of the course of a stream by a flood does not change the property.

The limitations to which the right of riparian proprietor is subject may be divided into those existing by common right, those imposed for public purposes, and those established against him by crown, grant or by custom of prescription. Under the first head comes the public right of navigation, of an anchorage and fishery from boats (in tidal waters), and of taking shellfish (and probably other fish except royal fish) on the shore of tidal waters as far as any right of several fishery does not intervene. Under the second head would fall the right of eminent domain by which the state takes riparian rights, for public purposes, compensating and proprietor, the restrictions upon the fishery rights of the proprietor, as by acts forbidding the taking of fish in close time, and the restrictions on the ground of public health, as by the Rivers Pollution Act, 1876. The jurisdiction of the state over rivers in England may be exercised by officers of the crown, as by commissioners of sewers or by the Board of Trade under the Crown Lands Act, 1866. A bridge is created and supported by the county authorities, and the riparian proprietor must bear any inconvenience resulting from it. An example of an adverse right by crown grant is a ferry or a port. The crown, moreover, as the guardian of the realm, has jurisdiction to restrain the removal of the foreshore, the natural barrier of the sea, by its owner in case of apprehended danger to the coast. The rights established against a riparian proprietor by private persons must, as a rule, be based on prescription or custom. Among such rights are the right to bathe, to land, to discharge cargo, to tow, to dry nets, to beach boats, to take sand, shingle, or water, to have a seawall maintained, and to pollute the water (subject to the River Pollution Act). In some cases the validity of local riparian customs has been recognized by the legislature.

A fresh-water lake appears to be governed by the same laws as a non-tidal river. The preponderance of authority is in favor of the right of the riparian proprietors as against the crown. The law of Scotland is in general accordance with that of England. In the United States the common law of England was originally adopted, the States succeeding to the right of the crown. In Pennsylvania, North Carolina, South Carolina, Iowa, Mississippi and Alabama it has been determined that the common law does not prevail, and that the ownership of the bed or soil of all rivers navigable for any useful purpose of trade or agriculture, whether tidal or fresh water, is in the State (Bouvier, Law Dict. "River"). The Supreme Court of the United States in 1857 declared constitutionally an Act of Congress of 1845, extending the admiralty jurisdiction of the United States to all public navigable rivers and lakes where commerce is carried on between different States or with foreign nations. The right of eminent domain has been exercised to a much greater extent than in England in the acquisition of sites for mills under the powers of States legislation in encouragement of trade. The law as to subterranean water seems to be still unsettled. Some State decisions have recognized a public right to moor vessels and place cargo on the shore.

DEVELOPING LAND PROFITABLE.

There are approximately 150 companies hereabouts engaged in the business of sub-dividing acreage, most of them having but one property to handle, some being syndicates that liquidate when their holdings are disposed of. The largest developing company closed more business than any other half dozen, its total sales for the previous year having exceeded nearly $5,000,000. It is related that during the course of this company's business it has handled over 100 sub-divisions, comprising a total of nearly 70,000 lots of which between 25,000 and 26,000 have been in New York City. How are these lots sold you may ask? In the breezy answer of an old timer in the business ,"more suburban lots have been sold on a sandwich and a little poor music than in any other way, for at such times the people feel that they are surely getting something for nothing."

The business of the successful developing company, like all other thriving commercial undertakings, has its own system of detail, and woe to the ignorant capitalist who attempts to promote a suburban lot proposition unless he is familiar with the proper preparation and floating of such an enterprise. Generally speaking, the method of operation consists in buying a parcel of land within easy riding distance from the main arteries of trade. Usually the land acquired is undeveloped and may often be had at a farm acreage price. The next step is to survey the holding and plot it into city lots of an average size of 20x100. On this basis each acre of land will furnish about 15 lots including the necessary streets. Improvements are then installed, sometimes at a cost of from $1,000 to $1,600 per acre, according, of course, to the quality and character. Before actual work of this order is underway it is necessary for the promotors to expend a considerable sum in engineering fees for mapping grades and other incidentals. Right here it can be affirmed that grading is not always a simple or inexpensive operation, on the contrary it may be said to be one of the costliest betterments necessary in the creation of a retail homesite colony. This is particularly true with respect to grading done within the city limits where the grade of the streets is fixed by law.

When all is complete the real serious labor of the enterprise begins. Prices must be established with a due regard for relative locations, arrangements must be made with the transit lines for the special transportation of prospective purchasers, and an intelligent force of agents must be secured. Preparations for advertising in the meantime are essential, in fact judicious publicity in the columns of daily newspapers is imperative in order to expedite the marketing of sub-division parcels. It is said that one corporation carrying on a business of this kind in several of the largest cities, and which has an invested principal of more than $5,000,000, expends annually hundreds of thousands of dollars in advertising its sub-divisions. Its net earnings have approximated in the neighborhood of 7 per cent. on its original investment. In this connection it can be stated that the company alluded to was the originator of the free ticket, music and refreshment excursion, later so successfully adopted by followers.

The cost of the preliminaries in preparing a sub-division for retail is undoubtedly heavy, no matter where the holding is situated, but when the work is carried out on well defined lines the reward is correspondingly large.

LOAN OPERATORS ORGANIZE

As a result of a meeting recently held many of the principal realty operators in Manhattan and the Bronx have formed an organization for mutual protection. The keynote of the meeting was union wages, compliance with the law; the carrying out of contracts by both parties in a spirit of fairness and the submission of disputes to arbitration committees.

On the Board of Directors are the following:

Pincus Lowenfeld,	Israel Lippman,
William Prager,	Julius Weinstein,
Harris Mandelbaum,	Joseph Brody,
Harry Perlman,	Jacob Axelrod,
Elias A. Cohen,	Joseph Golding,
Benjamin Weil,	Frank Hillman,

Hyman Adelstein,	Isaac Polstein,
Irving Bachrach,	Samuel Wacht,
Isaac Taft,	Joseph Silverson,
Gerson Hyman,	Harry Goodstein,
Joseph L. Buttenweiser,	Samuel D. Davis,
Samuel Barkin,	Jacob Leitner.

SEVENTH AVE. EXTENSION.

A hearing was given by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment yesterday at the City Hall on the Seventh av extension improvement question. The Greenwich Village Public Service Committee is exceedingly active to have this work done, and at once. In a communication signed by Dr. Edwin Zimmerman, president, and Dr. R. S. Mackellar, secretary, attention is brought to the fact that property not only in the Eighth and Ninth wards will be opened up, but also all the property on the west side will be materially improved.

"When it is remembered," runs the communication, "that Seventh av, one of the widest and most central of Manhattan's avs is closed up practically at 11th st and cut off from the great business and financial districts, it will be seen how important it is to Manhattan's future to have this great avenue extended. Since Manhattan Borough pays more than 70 per cent. of the taxes of the entire city it will not be considered unreasonable if we ask for an improvement that is vital and imperative. We urgently ask you to meet us at the City Hall at the hour and day named above."

The admission committee is kept busy listing names of the property owners and business men who are offering every assistance to further this accomplishment of a great improvement that would benefit the Borough of Manhattan at large. The committee is in a flourishing condition, and at this meeting the number of eminent citizens who joined in membership speaks for itself.

USEFUL ROLL SCREEN.

The question of fly screens is one which has bothered the owner of property for many years. Not only is the suburban district affected, but also Manhattan. As a general thing, screens in windows detract from the appearance of the house, consequently a sharp lookout is always kept for something in the form of an improvement.

WINDOW EQUIPPED.

There is a screen manufactured which may be allowed to remain on the window the year round. It is the Invisible Roll Screen. In the summer time it performs its function keeping out flies and mosquitoes, while in the winter it can be used as a weather strip. This screen has been on the market upward of three years, and has met with considerable success. The screen portion rolls out of sight when not required, and can be operated in conjunction with the sash, so that the closing of the window pushes the screen into a case, which entirely encloses it. When in position with the window closed the apparatus is invisible, and this accounts for its name. It is so arranged that two screens can be placed on a window, one at the top and another at the bottom, thus making it possible to have both window sashes open and allow a free current of air to circulate through the room.

The screen is entirely made of metal and cannot warp or rust. It can be made to harmonize with the trim of the room, and can be attached to casement windows which open out as well as windows opening into the room. The windows can also be opened or closed without bringing the screen into service.

AN AID TO SELLING.—The speculative property owner will find it to his advantage to consider the installation of vacuum cleaning outfits in his improved holdings. The cost is not excessive, on the contrary, complete and effective plants may be had at from $55 upwards. As a means of clinching a sale innovations of this description are always invaluable. The air cleaning process has made it possible to have absolutely dust-free houses, drawing out from every portion, the darkest part of the cellar and the most remote corner of the yard, every particle of dust, and, marvelous to say, without disturbing anything in the operation.

LAW DEPARTMENT

NO GROUNDS FOR A SUIT.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

1. A owns a square block of property excepting one corner, a plot 50.3x116.3, which is owned by B. A and B have not been on friendly terms for the past eight years. One of A's houses, which adjoins B's property, and according to the Title Guarantee & Trust Co.'s survey is 6 inches on B's place, is sadly in need of a coat of paint. For several years A has only painted three sides of the house. Recently A started to paint his house, and after three sides had been painted placed his ladders and paint in B's yard without first asking permission, whereupon he was promptly ordered from the premises. A threatened to sue B for $400 damages to his house. Has he legally any grounds for a suit? 2. The above property is in the suburbs of Brooklyn, and recently, when one of the streets was opened and graded, both places were much lower than the street level, thereby taking water during rainstorms. B fills up the place a little higher than A's, so that the drainage from A's place will not run into B's place. A threatens to sue for damages for undermining his property or house. Has he any right to sue?

Answer.—No, to all questions.

NO COMMISSION IN THIS CASE.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

As brokers we leased to a client a piece of property for two years, inserting in the lease the right to renew for three years. The lessee avails himself of the right. Are we entitled to commission on renewal? The commission for two years has been paid.

Answer.—Unless your agreement for commission or renewal is in writing, we think your claim for such commission would be defeated by Sec. 21 of Chapter 417 of the Laws of 1897, known as the Personal Property Law, which provides that "every agreement, promise or undertaking is void, unless it or some note or memorandum thereof, be in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged therewith, or by his lawful agent, if such agreement, promise or undertaking by its terms is not to be within one year from the making thereof," the agreement, promise, or writing required by this act being evidently an agreement to pay commissions and not the written or printed lease. Compare, however, Editorial, Law Dept., Oct. 14, 1905.

NEW SUBWAY STATION.

The lack of a station at 190th st on the west side subway is giving rise to numerous complaints and has seriously retarded the development of what should be an important section of the city. The Public Service Commission, which has the matter in hand, was lately advised by the chief engineer that the cost of construction of a station in that vicinity will be approximately $350,000.

If built considerable real estate will be necessary for passageways, entrances and exits, but it is understood that certain property owners have contracted to give the city free of charge such real estate as may be necessary, so that the expense to which the city will be under will be limited to the cost of construction. The commission has already made requisition upon the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for the authorization of bonds to be sold by the comptroller thereunder, sufficient to meet the requirements of extra work under the contract dated February 21, 1900, as amended, with John B. McDonald, for the construction of the Manhattan-Bronx Rapid Transit Railroad, to the amount of $350,000.

The proposed station at 190th st will most likely contain elevators, particularly since its depth at that point will be 140 ft. The depth at 190th st, it was learned at the office of the chief engineer, is slightly in excess of that at 168th st. The Board of Estimate on Friday acted favorably upon the matter, and it is hoped that the work of improvement will now proceed without delay.

BRONX NEEDS SMALL PARKS.

It has well been said that the Bronx is most inadequately provided with small parks and children's playgrounds, for although there are something like 4,000 acres of land now in parks out of a total of 26,017 acres in that borough, these are not sufficiently scattered so that the children of the working element have easy access to them. The time for the inhabitants of the Bronx to take up this subject is now, and the Record and Guide agrees with the views of the North Side News that the plan for the widening of streets and determining of the districts involved, as illustrated at the City Planning Exhibit in the Second Battery Armory, 1891 Bathgate av, as well as the acquisition of sites for educational buildings, playgrounds, etc., can be carried out most economically at the present moment, while ground may be had at comparatively low figures. The old adage of Ben Johnson that the future is purchased by the present is particularly applicable in this instance.

THE WEEK.

THE market seemed to settle down to the usual summer level, the number of sales reported showing a material decrease and only a small number of transactions was closed. The underlying feeling on the part of property owners is one of confidence in the continued firmness of values, though there has been somewhat of a settling in values. The condition, at the present time is that should an owner wish to immediately dispose of a piece of property some concessions would have to be made, while on the other hand, should a piece of property be desired, the chances are that the full price would have to be paid. The mercantile buildings have a large number of vacancies at the moment, and business will have to pick up materially before these will be filled.

In speaking of the renting conditions in the downtown skyscrapers Herman de Selding, of de Selding Brothers, said in substance that offices having good light are readily disposed of and at good figures, while those less favored naturally suffer. He said that the tower part of the Singer Building was about 95 per cent. full, though on the lower floors there were a number of offices to rent. He said also that this condition was not confined alone to that structure, but in fact held good in all like buildings in the city. There have been so many new buildings erected during the past few years that the supply now exceeds the demand. The large percentage of vacancies that exist to-day should be laid for the most part at the door of the architect. As a general rule, affirmed Mr. de Selding, architects are prone to skimp on the shaft space. They build a building covering too much of the lot, while if, on the other hand, they devoted more space to shafts the lower floors would be rented more readily and at prices which would more than recompense the owner of the building.

Tht old Alston apartment house, located at the northeast cor of Madison av and 38th st, and transferred on Wednesday. This property was sold some time since to the Madison av and 38th st company, but title was placed in the name of the No. 250 Madison av company. The new owners announce that they will erect a 20-sty loft and office building on the site from plans now in the course of completion by Buchman & Fox, architects. This part of the avenue has always been considered immune from the encroachment of business, as the Murray Hill restriction was considered binding.

THE AUCTION MARKET

AMONG the offerings of the week that attracted attention were two 4-sty dwellings at the northwest cor of 5th av and 56th st, 50x100, belonging to Charles W. Morse. These properties were sold to satisfy a judgment secured by a second mortgage amounting to $346,961.63, the taxes amounting to $200. The property was subject to a prior mortgage of $315,000. This sale was the result of an action brought by the George Kemp Real Estate Co. They were purchased by the plaintiff for $751,300. It will be remembered that a couple of weeks ago Mr. Morse's residence, No. 728 5th av, in the same block, was sold in foreclosure for $354,958, which amount was considerably below the encumbrances.

The 6-sty loft and store building, Nos. 719 and 721 Washington st, located at the northeast cor of 11th st, 75x98.8x60x116.6, was knocked down to C. A. Woolsey for $170,700. The amount due on the judgment was $16,005.35. The property was subject to a prior mortgage of $150,000. The easterly portion of No. 87 Cortlandt st, located 79,7 ft. east of West st, 22x57.10x22x58, and improved with a 3-sty store building and the westerly portion of No. 87 Cortlandt st, 58.9 ft. east of West st, 20.9x57.6x20.10x58, and improved with a similar structure, were sold to Luther M. Whittaker for $71,550. The 6-sty loft and store building, No. 124 Houston st, 25.1 ft. east of Sullivan st, 25x100, went to V. Casazza & Bro. for $30,250. Lowenfeld & Prager bought for $45,800 No. 123 Houston st, located at the southeast cor of Sullivan st, 25x95, 6-sty loft and store building. The foregoing properties were sold at the stand of Joseph P. Day. No. 1489 1st av, located 50 ft. south of 78th st, and improved with a 5-sty tenement with stores, 25x100, was put up at voluntary sale at the stand of Bryan L. Kennelly, and knocked down to Louis Walter for $30,100.

At the stand of Joseph P. Day on Monday last the property, Nos. 3 to 9 Beekman st and Nos. 119 to 123 Nassau st, 100.4x145.9x irregular, and improved with a 9 and 10-sty building, known as the Temple Court Building, was sold to the plaintiff for $100. It was a sheriff's sale of all right, title and interest which E. J. Beales had an May 13, 1902, or since. This sale was the result of an action brought by the National Ulster County Bank against E. J. Beales, et al. The other properties advertised for sale on this day were adjoined. There were altogether nine properties offered for sale on Tuesday, of which six went to the plaintiffs in the various actions and three were disposed of to outside buyers. No. 160 East 100th st, 5-sty tenement, 25x100.11, was sold to Caroline Newman for $14,925, and the northwest cor of Matilda av and 239th st, 100x50, went to Mrs. Joseph L. O'Brien for $1,600, and an inside lot adjoining, 25x100, went to Patrick O'Rourke for $800.

REAL ESTATE RECORDS

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

4th.—The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

5th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

6th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

7th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

8th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1908.

9th.—T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torrens System.

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M" occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

June 25, 26, 28, 29, 30 and July 1.

Vol. LXXXIV. JULY 10, 1909. No. 2156

THE MUNICIPAL CAMPAIGN has not been assuming a desirable complexion from the point of view of those citizens who are interested, exclusively, in better and more economical government. The removal of Police Commissioner Bingham will have the unfortunate effect of making the administration of the Police Department once more an issue, and in this way attention will be diverted from the fundamental matter of more efficient and economical administration. Furthermore, it looks as if those property-owners who are interested primarily in municipal economy will find it difficult to cast a vote that will count decisively in favor of a better business administration of New York. As the Record and Guide has frequently pointed out, municipal economy under existing conditions in New York is less a matter of officeholders than of organization. During the past few years both Mayor McClellan and Comptroller Metz have earnestly and intelligently tried to keep down municipal expenses, but neither the executive officials nor the members of the Board of Estimate are empowered or are properly constituted for the purpose of securing an economical and efficient administration of the city's business affairs. It cannot be expected that this essential consideration will be brought out by the party speakers during the coming campaign. The opponents of Tammany will seek to hasten the responsibility for every difficulty, error, failure or excess upon the officials elected four years ago by Tammany, while, of course, the Democratic speakers will have to accept the challenge and will be able to make a strong argument on behalf of the personal good faith and the excellent record of the administration. But in the meantime the fact will be observed that even the best intentioned and most energetic officials cannot, under the existing system, introduce the necessary amount of economy into the administration of the city. It is only a relatively non-partisan association and set of candidates that can afford to make an issue, not out of the candidates, but out of the Charter, and the only non-partisan association that has been formed seems to be lacking in weight, coherence of purpose, and definiteness of program. The committee of One Hundred is already afflicted with internal divisions, and in its platform of principles has failed to emphasize sufficiently the necessity of reorganization. It looks, consequently, as if the election next November and the campaign preceding it would do little to promote the cause of good government. The cause of good government is primarily, though, of course, not exclusively, the cause of the Ivins charter; and the Legislature will never pass the Ivins charter in anything like its existing form unless public opinion pronounces emphatically and decisively in its favor. It is an extraordinary fact that after bitterly and continually reproaching the State Legislature for interference in local affairs the citizens of New York are apparently indifferent to the one serious and well-considered attempt which has been made to give the voters of New York an efficient and sufficient measure of home rule.

IT IS DIFFICULT to understand why any real estate company should want to build a twenty-story office building on the corner of Thirty-eighth Street and Madison Avenue. Office buildings of that size are justified only on very expensive property in very expensive business neighborhoods. They abound naturally in the financial district, and they will eventually become almost as numerous in and around Madison and Greeley Squares. But as yet no twenty-story office building has been erected anywhere on Fifth Avenue, or on any other avenue uptown. Several eighteen-story loft buildings have been constructed on Fifth Avenue, but the economic function of a work-house is very different from that of an office building. If huge structures, divided into small offices, constituted a good investment on high-priced Fifth avenue property, they would already have been run up in large numbers, and the fact that they are scarce even on that expensive thoroughfare shows that they are not likely to pay except at rare intervals. Why, then, should a twenty-story office building be planned for a corner of an avenue, whose development for business purposes is only beginning, and which in this particular vicinity has retained an exclusively residential atmosphere? We must leave the answer of this question to others; but while it is being answered the prophecy may be ventured either that no twenty-story office building will be erected at Thirty-eighth street and Madison avenue, or, if it is, the investment will prove to be a very expensive one to its perpetrators. There is every reason to believe that Madison avenue, between Thirty-fourth and Twenty-sixth streets and between Forty-second and Fifty-ninth streets, will be rapidly transformed into a business thoroughfare, but the blocks between Thirty-fourth and Forty-second streets are at present more valuable for residential than for business purposes. While they will not remain so indefinitely, it will be some time before large business improvements can be legitimately erected within the described district.

THE LATEST PROPOSALS of the Interborough Company have been submitted to public criticism for some ten days; and while they have been on the whole favorably received, they have not, we are very much afraid, been favorably enough received to secure their adoption. The Record and Guide has always believed that the city should continue to do business exclusively with the Interborough Company, provided that the corporation offered sufficiently favorable terms; but the difficulty has been that the company has refused to come up to the scratch. In 1907, when it was the only possible bidder on the routes laid out by the old Rapid Transit Commission, it would not accept the terms offered by the city, and its refusal was as much the result of the precarious condition of the company's finances, due to grave mistakes of management, as it was to the character of the proposed contract. Last spring the company spent a great deal of money in the attempt to persuade New Yorkers that it was doing a most generous thing in offering to build Subways with its own money on a seventy-five years' lease, and its failure at that time to place an accurate estimate upon the condition of public opinion was nothing short of ridiculous. Now it offers to build four instead of two-track Subway extensions up Lexington and Third and down Seventh avenues at its own expense and under the provisions for an indeterminate franchise prescribed in the new Rapid Transit Law. Our own opinion is that this offer is the most advantageous one which has been submitted to the city, and that it should be accepted; but we are afraid that the Public Service Commission will not see it in that light. The plans proposed by the Interborough Company are in absolute conflict with the Commission's own scheme for a Broadway-Lexington avenue-South Brooklyn Subway. The granting of the proposed extensions to the existing Subway would kill the Broadway-Lexington avenue route, and if a franchise for the Broadway-Lexington avenue route is granted the whole Interborough proposal falls through, because the company will not build south along Seventh avenue unless it can also build north along Lexington avenue. It is a case, consequently, of the Interborough company's plan or those of the Commission; and the Commission will be inclined to favor its own pet project. No argument has availed hitherto to shake its loyalty to a scheme which merely duplicates existing means of rapid transit from Forty-second street to the City Hall, and the Interborough Company in making its proposals should have considered more carefully this fact. It should have considered whether it could not have preserved its monopoly and done away with the dangerous competition of a Broadway Subway by making a generous rather than only a fair offer. The possibilities of traffic development in New York are such that it could have proposed to build not merely one additional four-track Subway, but two of them, provided the period to be occupied by construction was extended over six or seven years; and such an offer the Public Service Commission would have been obliged to accept. The offer, which has been actually made, they will probably reject, because the advantage of the Interborough Company's plan over its own is not sufficiently overwhelming and incontestable.

THAT the offer made by the Interborough Company is at its face value more advantageous to the city than the offer made by the Bradley-Gaffney syndicate, seems to the Record and Guide to be emphatically the case. The construction of the Broadway-Lexington avenue route would be of immense benefit to the upper East Side, but south of Forty-second street it would merely supply an additional Subway to a part of Manhattan already well served. The plan of the Interborough Company would do just as much as the rival plan for the upper East Side; but it would in addition provide the lower West Side with a Subway, which is most gravely needed. Both plans arrange for a Jerome avenue route in the Bronx, and both of them for an excellent service over the Manhattan Bridge. The syndicate's offer includes the operation of a South Brooklyn Subway, provided the city pays for construction, which is just what the city cannot afford to do. The old Rapid Transit Commission, which had thoroughly mastered the principles which ought to govern the laying out of Subway routes, would not have hesitated a moment between the two offers; but every action and public utterance of the existing Commission leads one to expect that it will reach a different decision. Whether this anticipation is correct remains to be seen; but if it is correct, and if the Public Service Commission abandons the advantages of a coherent and symmetrical development of New York's Subway system, there would be, as the Record and Guide has frequently pointed out, only one ground on which such an action could be successfully defended. If the New Haven Company was to operate a Broadway-Lexington avenue-South Brooklyn Subway the advantages of that plan might outweigh its disadvantages. Even then, we believe that a very much better entrance to Manhattan for the New Haven Company would be provided by a Third Avenue-Bowery route, and before granting a Broadway-Lexington avenue franchise to the New Haven Railroad the attempt should be made to satisfy it with a more easterly line of entrance, to which end the Interborough Company's proposal to build two express tracks under Third avenue should be rejected. On the other hand, if the New Haven Company could give good reasons for desiring a Broadway-Lexington avenue route, and that only, it might be worth while to let the company have it. But the difficulty now is that we are kept in the dark as to whether the route is really intended for the New Haven Railroad, and as long as no public official acknowledgment is made that the New Haven Company will operate the independent route, the balance of argument is against it. This is the aspect of the situation which needs clearing up; and as long as it remains ambiguous, the Record and Guide will support those parts of the Interborough Company's plan which apply to a new Subway construction—the Third avenue line alone excepted. Whatever happens all four tracks should run under Lexington avenue.

STATUS OF BUILDING CODE REVISION.

The new building code is still in the Committee on Buildings of the Board of Aldermen. It was the expectation that the committee would report at this week's meeting of the board, but Chairman Kenneally said that more time was needed for consideration. If, in view of the imminence of a stirring political campaign and the strong feelings that have been aroused by the revision proceedings, the whole matter should be put over until next year, it would verify some predictions.

The Record and Guide is authoritatively informed that the Building Committee still has two reports in view. One is signed by six members and the other by five. The signatures were affixed on Friday of last week, when the final vote on the adoption of the majority report was taken. Since then the committee has taken no action affecting the code.

The situation is complicated by the nearness of the time for the summer adjournment of the Board of Aldermen. There will be a regular meeting of the board next Tuesday, and one on or about the 20th of the month to fix the annual tax rate. The board will then, following the usual course, take an adjournment until September. If the report goes over now it is likely to be further postponed on account of the political campaign.

This is now the third year that the Building Committee has been working continuously on the code, and the powers would like to have it disposed of, but in a fairly satisfactory manner to all interests affected. Certain amendments have been made to the majority report since it was sent back to the committee, of which some information was given in these columns last week; but the minority members are still dissatisfied.

REDISCOVERING THE HUDSON.

Hudson River traffic has been increasing more rapidly than is generally realized, and when taken in connection with the expansion of the metropolitan district the fact has a new significance. Where people go in numbers for a day's outing they subsequently go to live. Coney Island, with the intervening lands, is an example; the baseball parks in most cities are another. Hudson River trains, steamboats and automobile roads were crowded during the holidays as never before. Twenty years ago it was thought that steamboating on the Hudson had entered upon a permanent decline, but more steamboats have been built for this river during the last five years than ever before in the same length of time, except possibly in the early days of steamboating. Oftentimes the regular lines cannot accommodate all the traffic that offers. One of the central Hudson ferry companies only last week contracted for the building of a third ferry boat, as the automobile traffic has exceeded the capacity of the two boats now on the lines; and one other ferry company had to charter an extra boat for the recent holidays.

This year the Hudson-Fulton celebrations have generated or revived a wonderful amount of interest in the Hudson River country among New York people, for most of the travel is from New York, and this is the important thing to remember. It has long been a mystery to the building interests here in the city why the business and residential overflow from Manhattan has been so slow in moving up the river. The president of an important cement company was captivated at once when he studied the advantages of the Hudson Valley as a site for a cement mill, and his company is now preparing to build a mill in the shadow of the Poughkeepsie Bridge. Manufacturers on the Hudson command not only the New York and New England markets by either rail or water, but they also get their coal at a more moderate price than we do here in the city, because they are nearer the mines; they get the same freight rates from railroads as New York City shippers do, and all the elements making up the costs of production are less up the river than in the city. As a region for the production or manufacture of building materials and building equipment for this market, it is not easy to see where the Hudson is surpassed. Once it was an iron and machinery center to a much greater extent than it is now, and various other industries long settled on the river have not expanded numerically in the last quarter century. Why it is, no one can tell, except that it is alleged that the New York Central lines have not encouraged local traffic and local enterprise as much as real estate interests require.

While there may be different opinions as to the responsibility of the railroads, it is realized that they are getting into a position where they will be able to do a great deal for the Hudson River counties if they are so disposed. The counties on the west side of the river are hoping for the time when trains from the West Shore will run into the Grand Central Depot, and that this will be the next great improvement undertaken by the New York Central lines after the completion of the terminal improvements now in hand is considered highly probable. The feeling of State pride counts a great deal in real estate development; a native of New York State on general principles prefers to live within its boundaries to going elsewhere; and the fact of the matter is that old "York State" has never derived from the metropolis that measure of benefit from its growth and prosperity that she considers herself entitled to by reason of political and family ties—certainly not so much as New Jersey and Long Island. A railroad tunnel to Weehawken would work a greatly desired change in the relations between the up-State counties and the metropolitan district. It would not only give the West Shore a direct run into town, but would also let the New York Central lines utilize some of the New Jersey meadow land for car-storage, in the same way and for the same reason that the Pennsylvania is utilizing the lands at Sunnyside on the Long Island meadows. No one can figure the exact time when the Hudson River boom will set in, but the time is the only uncertain factor.

THERE COMES A TIME when every man needs the good offices of his ancestral church, and then he feels that he is entitled to its ministrations if he has contributed regularly to its support. So it is with the building, material and equipment trades; there are times when they wish their representative paper to say a word for them, if not to stand out and fight for them, and they feel better entitled to its good offices if they have been regular contributors to its work.

—Six Otis traction elevators, capable of lifting a load of 3,000 lbs., at a speed of 600 feet per minute and operating on direct current of 110 volts pressure, are installed in the Metropolitan tower, five of which terminate at the forty-first story and the sixth at the forty-fourth story. Two of these elevators are arranged for lifting safes and will handle a load of 5,000 lbs. The twelve lower stories will be served from the elevators in the adjoining section. Despite the enormous height of this tower, a passenger stepping into an elevator at the ground floor can be carried to the top in less than one minute.

—The City of Binghamton awarded a street paving contract last week at the lowest rate for a brick pavement it has ever obtained, namely $1.58 per square yard.

CONSTRUCTION

DEVELOPMENT OF THE WEST BRONX

Notable Operations in the Section Between Aqueduct and Jerome Avenues—Mostly High Class Dwellings—Street Builders at Work

THE Borough of The Bronx is developing very rapidly this season, and if actual construction maintains the usual proportion to the projects on file, this will be the biggest year for building the borough has ever had. The plans of the first six months exceed those filed during the whole of the year 1908. A large amount of work has already taken visible shape, especially on the upper East Side, but there is also considerable building on the West Side of the borough—more than has been seen in that section in a number of years.

The West side building movement is the one possessing the newest interest, and part of it is the effect of the two large sales of lots in the vicinity of Washington Bridge two years ago. It is interesting to recall that in April, 1907, Auctioneer Joseph P. Day put under the hammer 1,100 lots for the Ogden estate, and in June, 216 lots for the Century Realty Co. These lands are connected with the Broadway subway by the several trolley lines running to and across Washington Bridge, and when one has time and wants to save a nickel it is not too far to walk to the subway. The projected Jerome av elevated branch line will be a little handier and will save the nickel. It needs no gift of prophecy to see that the moment the contract is signed for this line there will be a building movement in the West Bronx that will be a reminder of the up-building of the West Side of Manhattan when the first elevated railroad was being put through.

STREET BUILDING.

While the present building movement is partly in anticipation of rapid transit on Jerome av, it follows also in part from the very fair transit facilities that now exist, and finally from the public work that is being done there, which last factor has supplemented the lot disposals by opening and completing streets, as laid out on the city map. McComb's rd has been widened to 100 ft., and Nelson av, Brant pl and 175th st, from McComb's rd to Nelson av, are among the thoroughfares that have been graded near Washington Bridge.

Aqueduct av, the broad parkway (156 ft. wide), that forms the geographical backbone of the ridge between Jerome av and the Harlem River, is the center of this year's development rather than Jerome av, and all the way from Washington Bridge to Kingsbridge rd extends the zone under consideration. "The 5th av of the West Bronx" the parkway has been called, and this designation also indicates the best judgment of the time as to its future. There is no building as yet directly on the avenue near Washington Bridge, but there is at the north end. Several old mansions surrounded by lawns and the parklike grounds of the Academy of the Sacred Heart are pleasant features of the west side of the avenue; and all the new building operations this side of Fordham are in the section lying between Aqueduct and Jerome avs. The general aspect of the topography is parklike, and the roads have many agreeable curves and grades—and a few that are not so agreeable, but which will eventually be managed. The change from the gridiron uniformity of the street plan in other parts of the city ought to be very acceptable to newcomers.

ALONG THE RIDGE.

Three new houses on Nelson av, some 300 ft. north of 175th st, on lots that were disposed of at the sale of the Century Realty Co., are built of stucco on wire lath over a wood frame, and are attractive 2-family dwellings. Mr. Brant, the builder who erected them, died last fall, but his name will be perpetuated by one of the streets, "Brant place." On the opposite side of Nelson av a red brick house for 3 families has been finished and rented by Mr. Hoey, and Turner & Holme, builders, have finished two 3-family brick houses in the same neighborhood. All the houses were quickly rented.

Inside lots on Aqueduct av brought at the auction $3,600 and up; on Nelson av the prices ranged between $1,400 and $2,000; on Featherbed la, from $2,500 to $3,175; on West 175th st, $1,600 to $3,025, and on McComb's rd, $1,200 to $1,850. Eugene Stratton & Co., who have an office on Nelson av, report increasing activity in the section, and a steady improvement in values. The portion of the old Montgomery estate, lying west of Aqueduct av, has not yet been subdivided for building purposes, but several thoroughfares, including Montgomery, Andrews and Popham, will eventually be cut through, and when they are the location will invite a very high type of improvement.

A GEOGRAPHICAL COBWEB.

As Tremont av winds down the hillside from Aqueduct av to Jerome, it crosses or meets four other avenues and two streets, as marked on the city map, making a network of streets that is developing into an important residential center. The largest operation of the season for the West Bronx is now being completed here, consisting of nineteen 2-family brick houses, situated on Tremont and Davidson avs, and also on 177th st. Eighteen are semi-detached and one stands alone. They were built from plans by William L. Rouse, the architect of the "Hendrick Hudson" apartment house on Riverside Drive, the owner and builder being Mr. J. Massimino. They are large and substantial dwellings in a modified colonial style of architecture.

At the corner of Tremont and Grand avs Wm. R. Lowe, as owner and builder, is erecting three single family houses from the plans of Neville & Bagge, an improvement of exceptional quality for what has been considered a suburban section. One of the residences stands alone and the other two are semi-detached.

Klein & Jackson, lawyers, of 36 Wall st, are improving a large tract, comprising 200 lots, by building streets and sewers in this same neighborhood. Grand av, West 177th st and Davidson av are the thoroughfares that are being improved. The members of the firm have also filed plans for two high-class single dwellings. No apartment houses have yet been erected hereabouts, and all the building going on now and that has occurred in previous years in this section has been for private dwellings only.

Another center of interest in the West Bronx is in the University Heights section, particularly on Aqueduct av. The Aqueduct Realty Co., of 38 Park Row, has finished two high-class frame dwellings, which are valued at $14,000 each. South of 183d st William C. Bergen has been a large builder of private dwellings for several years and has greatly improved the section. Grand av, both north and south of 192d st, has had a high-grade development in recent years, but only one dwelling is under construction at the present time.

At the corner of Kingsbridge rd and Aqueduct av Wm. J. Taylor of 5-7 East 42d st, has commenced work on his general contract for the new buildings of the Hebrew Infant Asylum, which is to cost approximately half a million dollars. Large grounds will surround the buildings. Also on Kingsbridge road the Fleischman Realty and Construction Co. (170 Broadway), has finished twelve single-family brick dwellings in a row. All have large piazzas and each contains eight rooms and bath. Again on Kingsbridge rd H. H. Singhi, the builder, has finished six brick dwellings, and has six more in course of erection on Norris av, around the corner, and six more in 193d st, in the rear of those on Kingsbridge rd.

ALL PRIVATE DWELLINGS.

The reader will notice that every operation that has been referred to has been for either one or two-family houses. This is the sort of development that The Bronx is very desirous of, as apartment houses will come without urging. The region is all new, and is one of parks, parkways and institutional grounds; it is entitled to a high-class population. There is no bad construction to be eliminated, and it is entirely possible to make the West Bronx superior to any suburb now within the limits of the greater city. All the growth so far tends in that direction. The city authorities have done their part in laying out a beautiful street plan, several institutions have laid out grounds and erected costly buildings, and the rest of the responsibility is up to the builders and investors.

TEACHING THE GAS RANGE.

Why should not teaching the gas range be as good a phrase as teaching the piano, or the violin, or any other instrument of human endeavor? At any rate, it is the only phrase which precisely expresses the work which a corps of bright women are doing in the employ of the Consolidated Gas Co. It is their business to teach the use of the gas range to any one who may be having trouble with a range, whether rented or bought, and to "leave the customer satisfied." That last is part of the general orders given. Any one of the seventy or eighty thousand households using the company's rented ranges, or any one who is using any kind of gas range or stove, is at liberty to send a card or note to the gas office, asking for instruction in the use of gas for cooking. Sometimes it appears that the range is in need of repair, in which case the nature of the trouble is reported at the office and a man sent to make the needed repairs. In a great many cases, however, no actual repairs are needed, the trouble being simply that the housewife or maid has not grasped some essential point of difference between a gas range and a coal stove.

SIX MONTHS OF BUILDING IN THE BRONX.

ALTHOUGH more than half the territory of The Bronx is outside of the fire limits, only a very small portion of the construction in that borough is now of wood. Even in the section where frame dwellings are permitted, many owners prefer to build of brick. Of the 696 frame dwellings projected during the first six months of this year, 300 were brick, and of the total estimated cost of all construction ($22,000,000 in round numbers), over $19,000,000 worth was in masonry of some sort. Frame construction has always been considered cheaper than brick, but at the present time, with the prices of masons' materials very low, the difference is said to be small. At The Bronx Bureau of Buildings it is being said that the statistics show little difference in cost between brick dwellings and frame dwellings of the same dimensions.

This year The Bronx bureau is comparing the figures of the first six months (not with the corresponding period of last year) with the record of the whole year of 1908, and in the report with which the building superintendent, Hon. Patrick Reville, has favored the Record and Guide, the total estimated cost of the new building projects for the first half of this year exceeds the total for the whole of 1908. The apartment house projects to date exceed those of any entire year, except 1905. In the years 1902 and 1903 The Bronx planned for less than $7,000,000 worth of new buildings in each year. In 1902 the new tenement-house law was interfering with speculative work—or at least the builders had not yet become accustomed to it—and 1903 was the year of the great building strikes. In 1904, when peace reigned, and the architects and builders had ascertained what they could do under the new law, the building projects for the whole year amounted to $23,000,000, in round numbers. In 1905 they reached the total of $38,000,000; in 1906, $27,700,000; in 1907, $20,000,000, and in 1908, $21,415,160. TO REBUILD A HARLEM BRIDGE.

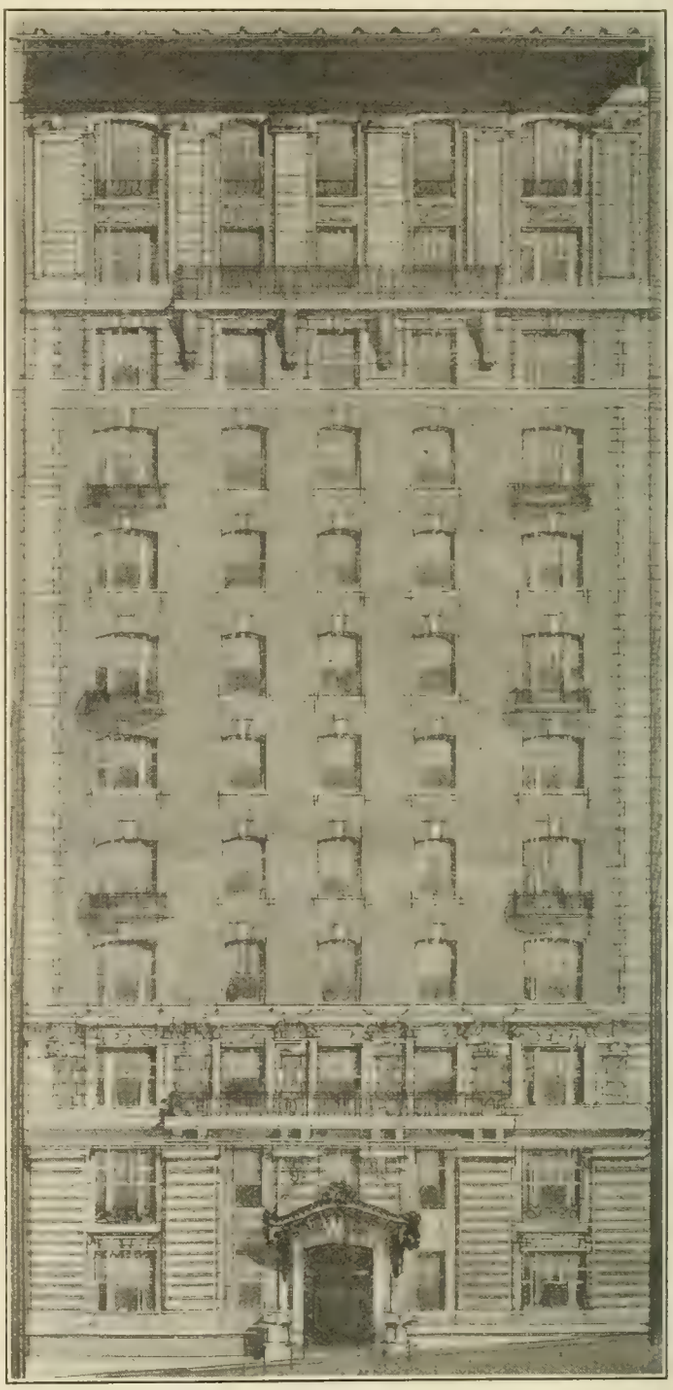
Plans have been prepared by the Department of Bridges for the construction of approaches and footwalks on the railroad bridge crossing the Harlem River and the Putnam Division of the New York Central Railroad at 158th st. The approaches are to be of concrete and steel, and are to include tender's houses and comfort station. The approach on The Bronx side will be about 343 feet in length, while that on the Manhattan side, including concrete sidewalk, will have a length of about 182 ft. The estimated cost is $50,000.

At the same time the New York Central Railroad Co. intends to overhaul and strengthen the bridge throughout. It is not the intention, however, to change either its location or its dimensions in any manner so as to interfere with the construction of these proposed new approaches.

The bridge was constructed in 1880 by the West Side and Yonkers Railway Co., under an agreement with the city. In this agreement it was provided that the railroad company should construct the bridge with foot-ways, and, when completed, keep and maintain said bridge and its foot-ways in complete and perfect order.



Approaches to these foot-ways, however, were not constructed until the year 1892, when a supplementary agreement was entered into by and between the parties mentioned, providing that certain easements over the properties of the said railway company should be allowed and granted to the City of New York.

A THICKLY POPULATED SECTION.

The temporary approaches constructed at that time have been in use ever since. The structures are of wood and are now becoming old and difficult to maintain and keep in a satisfactory state of repair. The footpath crossing this bridge is largely patronized by people residing in the vicinity or section lying between Sedgwick and Jerome avs, on The Bronx side of the river and extending as far north as High Bridge. This section, during the last few years, has built up rapidly and is now thickly populated. A granite stairway has been erected leading from the easterly end of the approach on The Bronx side, at Sedgwick av, up the steep slope to Summit av, making a short cut from the above-described section down to and across the railroad bridge to the elevated station at 155th st.

APARTMENTS FOR SEVENTY-NINTH STREET.

The two-elevator apartment houses about to be constructed on the south side of 79th st, between Riverside Drive and West End av, for the Edendale Construction Co., of 198 Broadway, will be of the highest type of fireproof construction. There will be 12 stories, the two houses covering a plot of 130 ft. frontage, each house having two apartments to a floor. The fronts will be of limestone, terra cotta and brick, and the apartments will be high class, with suites of seven and eight rooms, two and three baths, hardwood finish throughout, vacuum cleaner and passenger and service elevators. Building operations will be started as soon as possible and all contracts will be awarded without delay. The cost of the two buildings together will approximate $600,000. Messrs. Schwartz & Gross, B. N. Marcus, 347 5th av, are the architects.

—New York, says a contemporary, leads in the use of stone as a building material and marble for interior decoration. But isn't that true of all high-class building materials? We venture to say that no city in the world, in this age, surpasses New York in the use of fine materials—not even London, Paris or Vienna.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS IN REINFORCED CONCRETE.

The "Mushroom" System Saves Headroom—How to Tell a Sound Building —Latest Standards of Practice—How Deeply Should Reinforcement Be Covered.

By LEONARD C. WASSON.

At the meeting of the National Fire Protection Association in this city a singularly informing statement was read concerning the present status of reinforced concrete construction, by the head of the Aberthaw Construction Company of Boston. One rarely reads more instructive words from a practical builder.

FROM the earliest use of this material, reinforcement chiefly in the form of bars of various sections were embedded in the concrete to take up direct tension only, concrete being required to take care of compressive stress as well as shearing stresses, both vertical and diagonal. The arrangement of beams, girders and panel has changed little and has followed closely the arrangement common in wood and steel construction, the essential difference being in the present use of the reinforcement.

Fifteen years and more ago a beam or girder was reinforced with straight bars embedded near the bottom of the member and extending but a short distance over the supports. There were no bent-up bars and no stirrups and no steel in the top of the member over the support. Such beams carried very heavy loads and are still doing service. Some few that were overloaded showed cracks, and these, together with the cracks which have developed in a similar way in test specimens, have furnished the data for the more recent arrangement of the reinforcing metal.

The next step in advance was the use of stirrups, set either vertically or at an angle, embedded in the beams and their ends projecting a short distance into the panel. These were embedded near the ends of the beams or girders. A little later, in addition to those stirrups, some of the main bars were bent diagonally upwards at an angle of about 45 degrees from about the quarter point of the span, and then were carried across the top of the beam at the support and for some little distance into the adjoining span. These tied the beams together across the support and formed continuous beams, thus increasing their strength for a given weight of metal, as compared with the same weight of straight bars at the bottom only, besides tying the building more thoroughly together.

ALL TIED TOGETHER.

The latest development which has not as yet come into general use, but which ought to be encouraged is of tying all the reinforcement rigidly together that goes into a beam or girder and so fastening it into place in the forms that it cannot possibly be moved while the concrete is being placed. When bars were placed loosely it was an easy matter to displace them by an inch in height, which makes quite a difference in the strength of the resulting combination, and the ordinary workman or even the foreman does not appreciate how important it is to set the bars exactly right. It adds a little to the expense of the steel reinforcement in place to make up the units and place them rigidly in the forms, but, on the other hand, it saves somewhat in the placing of concrete so that the resultant extra cost is comparatively small and is entirely justified.

Years ago claims were made of the advantage of one type of reinforcing bar over another, and, also, certain types of mesh reinforcement in the panel were claimed to be much better than others, with the result that when interested parties made their designs the amount of metal used was not based so much upon engineering principles as upon the commercial point of selling; and it was not uncommon to have the reinforcement stressed to nearly its elastic limit and the structure therefore had a very small factor of safety. To-day it is well recognized that a sufficient area of cross section of metal must be used to keep the working stress within reasonable limits, irrespective of the particular type of reinforcement used, and while deformed bars give a better bond than plain bars, either squares or rounds, and are therefore to be desired, nevertheless the results obtained with the plain bars are so good that the owner is not justified in paying more than two or three dollars a ton difference in price between deformed and plain bars.

THE "MUSHROOM" SYSTEM.

The latest development in floor construction and one which has come to the front very quickly, is the so-called "mushroom" system of flat floors. These are flat panels without any beams whatsoever to support them, bearing on enlarged heads on the columns, the reinforcement running directly between columns and also diagonally across the panels. The expense of these floors is no greater than in beam construction in any case, and in many cases it is a little cheaper. The advantage is that HEADROOM CAN BE SAVED, which reduces the height of columns and walls, making a saving in the building. In this way, a flat ceiling is obtained without the expense of a false flat ceiling, and from a fire protection standpoint it is desirable, because it is so much easier to throw a stream of water to any part of a large room without danger of it hitting a beam or girder and being deflected to the floor before reaching the farthest limit a horizontal stream can throw.

This type of floor can be used on spans as wide as are ordinarily used in beam construction. The writer has built floors for 125 lbs. live load per square foot on spans 20 feet by 23 feet to centres of columns, using a slab 7 inches in thickness. He has also used a slab 10 inches thick on spans 24 ft. each way with a live load of 250 lbs. per square foot. The panel should be approximately square. If one dimension is more than 20% greater than the other, economy ceases in this type of construction, and it is then preferable to use beams with a panel between reinforced in one direction only.

Numerous fire tests have been made to determine both the resistance of concrete to actual test and also THE DEPTH TO WHICH THE REINFORCEMENT MUST BE EMBEDDED to prevent its being damaged. The consensus of opinion of engineers is that there should be at least one inch of concrete between the nearest point of a bar to the ceiling in panels, at least two inches below the steel in beams and girders, and also two inches of concrete outside the vertical bars in columns.

Fire underwriters are always interested in knowing whether a particular structure is properly built or not. There is very little difference in outward appearance between one of perfect construction (that is, in regard to size and placing of steel, size of members, etc.) and one which is imperfect; and the only positively sure way to know is either by inspection or by test. There is no type of construction where more painstaking care in providing for every detail is necessary than in reinforced concrete. Concrete is either good or bad. There is no half way about it, and if bad defects are manifested before the builder is clear of his work, he is usually the one to suffer. When possible, limit the competition to reputable builders of experience who have demonstrated their ability to erect the work in hand and who are known to always do good work. If this is not practicable, then the work should be inspected as it goes along.

PRECAUTIONS.

A precaution to assist inspection as previously stated is the setting of the steel rigidly in place before pouring the concrete. The quality of the sand and stone used must be as carefully inspected as the cement, and a sufficiently rich mixture required to allow for inequalities of mixing and placing. With well-graded materials and first-class workmanship a floor can safely be built with a mixture of one cement, three sand and six stone, and as insurance against uneven or poor workmanship to-day it is quite common to specify a mixture of one—two—four, which with thoroughly first-class workmanship gives a stronger result than is necessary, and with ordinary or careless workmanship ought to give a job which is still strong enough. Incidental to the process of construction while the concrete is still green and much weaker than it will be with age, IT IS LOADED AS HEAVILY AS IT EVER WILL BE in actual service, and always it is loaded sufficiently to give a fair idea of its strength. Where there is any doubt of its strength, load tests can be applied. With these safeguards in addition to those provided by the engineer, architect or building department, the underwriters need have no fear that a building they are asked to insure is structurally weak.

As a basis for the proper regulation of construction I can offer nothing better than the building code recently perfected by a joint committee of the American Society of Civil Engineers and other societies, and approved with slight changes by the National Association of Cement Users.

RELATIVE COST.

Regarding the cost of this type of construction as compared with others, the large use has proved conclusively that it will compete, because the item of cost is considered paramount in 99 out of every 100 structures. For large buildings the structural frame is almost always cheaper than the steel. Thin curtain walls cannot be built as cheaply on account of form work, which is constant for a thin wall as well as for a thick one, but if the wall must be sixteen inches or more in thickness concrete is cheaper than brick. In small structures, such as dwelling houses, concrete is materially more expensive than brick or wood, because the form work is more irregular, cannot be used over, and because of the greater expense of supervision. This is why it is not commonly used in small dwellings, and probably will never be much used. It has been used and can be economically used for large dwelling houses, especially those of simple design, where the form work is nearly as easy of execution as in an office building or mill.

—Stucco has long been popular in European house construction, and now polished granite veneered fronts are coming into favor for city residences, as well as for business buildings. Not that cold prison-like granite of other days, but handsome new stones, some of them of almost brilliant coloring.

A COMBINATION OF NEW AND OLD MARBLE.

The wonderful variety of materials that have become available for structural and decorative purposes during recent years is responsible for the remarkable advance in architectural art quite as much as the improvement in public taste and the more careful training of architects.

Owing to improved methods of quarrying and transportation, we now take tribute from quarries in all parts of the world, and the New York architect, stone-cutter or marble worker is offered the same material which was used by Phidias and Michael Angelo, as well as stone and marble from the newer quarries. The new building of the Dime Savings Bank, at DeKalb av and Fulton st, in Brooklyn, bear evidence.

It is seldom that the material of which a present day building is constructed can boast of a history of 2,500 years, but the exterior of this bank is entirely of Greek Pentelikon marble, with the exception of the granite base, identical with that used in the construction of many of the most famous buildings of antiquity, among them being the Parthenon, the Propylaea, the Erechtheion and the Temple of Zeus Olympus at Athens.

The history of this marble is intensely interesting. It is obtained from Mount Pentelicus, which is somewhat less than four thousand feet in height and situated about eight miles northeast of Athens. Standing on the Acropolis one sees to the right the summit of Pentelicus, which in the olden times was crowned with a statue of Pallas Athene, and the white stone walls and waste heaps of the ancient quarries dipping in a long line toward the valley, where the monastery of Penteli is situated. Here formerly the ancient community of Demos Penteli stood, which formed the headquarters of the quarrymen, masons and sculptors employed in the Pentelikon quarries. To the Greek sculptors and builders the marble taken from this mountain was known as "Pentelikos Lithos." The Italian marble workers of a later generation, who found it in large quantities in the ruined buildings of ancient Rome, treasured it as one of their choicest materials under the name of Marmo Greco Fino. Most of the ancient quarries were situated on the south side of the mountain, which is nearest to the city of Athens, and which has a less steep slope than the northern side. The stone was taken from the pits down a steep-paved incline plane that can still be seen. On this pavement are the grooves made by the ancient stone wagons showing the wheels to have been 4½ feet apart. The back of the wagon dragged on the ground and acted as a brake.

The marble from the south slope is known as "Monastery" marble, and is fine grained; the color being a milk white. It contains traces of ferric oxide, and this in weathering gives the stone a beautiful golden "patina," which excites the admiration of every visitor who has seen it in the ancient buildings of the Acropolis.

On the north side of the mountain are two ancient quarries adjacent to the ruins of a chapel dedicated to Dionysus. For this reason the stone from the northern slope is called "Dionysus" marble, and in many respects is superior to the "Monastery" variety, its grain being somewhat coarser, more fully chystalline, and more translucent. It is of a delicate cream white color, and consequently has greater warmth than the majority of white marbles.

The Pentelikon quarries were extensively worked long before the beginning of the Christian era. All of the famous buildings of Athens are of this material and give evidence of the splendid weathering qualities of the stone. On the Erechtheion, for instance, ornaments still exist which are to-day as sharp in form and contour as if they had just left the hand of the sculptor, despite the lapse of more than 2,000 years; yet this is not in a tropic climate, as every year the country is covered by snow and visited by severe frosts.

If the stone that was used in that crowning glory of Greek art, the Parthenon, was dull and lifeless, it would still have a fascination for the modern architect because of its association; but as it is one of the most beautiful of all white marbles, and can be had in America at a price which makes its use for structural work possible, the gain to the architect is inestimable.

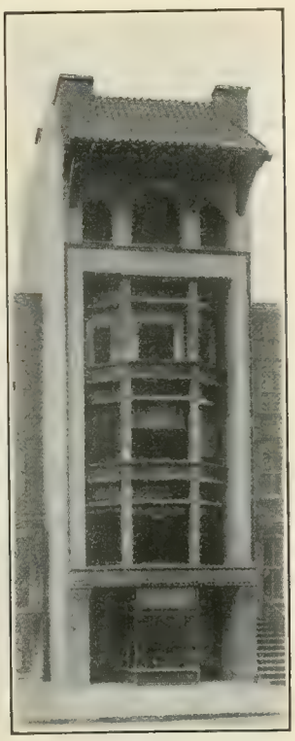
The interior of this bank is not less interesting than the exterior, and some say that there is no bank in Greater New York which surpasses this one in the richness of its interior finish. The marble used is the famous Connemara Irish Green, sometimes called "Royal Irish Green." This is a genuine serpentine green marble, intermixed with stone of different colors, running from a light gray to a deep greenish gray, forming one of the richest and most magnificent marbles in existence. A great deal of care was taken by the architects in selecting this marble, and Mr. Mowbray, the architect, visited the quarries to pick out the blocks.

MATERIALS AND EQUIPMENT OF THE GIMBEL BUILDING.

The city talks of widening 32d st at the north side, between 6th and 7th avs, as an approach to the Pennsylvania Depot, but the Thompson-Starrett Company proposes to go ahead with the Gimbel store "until notified," as the building is planned to cover the full block between 32d and 33d sts on Greeley sq.

The site is now being cleared. There will be three basements, one of which will be a terminal for the McAdoo Subway roads. The steel will come from the Bethlehem Steel Company. The W. G. Cornell Company, with offices in the Everett Building, recently obtained the plumbing contract.

Twenty-four hundred and six steel columns, or ribs, will sustain the building, and twelve vast entrances, with seventy-two doors, will admit the public. There are to be forty-five show windows—in all, 914 lineal feet of them.



A NEW VIEW OF A GREAT PROJECT.

Thompson-Starrett Co., Builders. D. H. Burnham & Co., Architects.

A mile and a half of banister will run along the enclosed stairways, and eight thousand automatic sprinklers will form a self-acting fire company to protect the stocks—the building can't burn.

Fifty electric elevators—forty-one of them for passengers—will be housed in a mile and a half of shafts, and the combined traveling power of the elevators is to be thirty miles an hour.

Over four thousand horse-power of boilers will be required, of which eighteen hundred horse-power will force steam through twenty-five miles of heating pipe, and eighteen fans will pump in fresh air and draw out vitiated air through fifty miles of

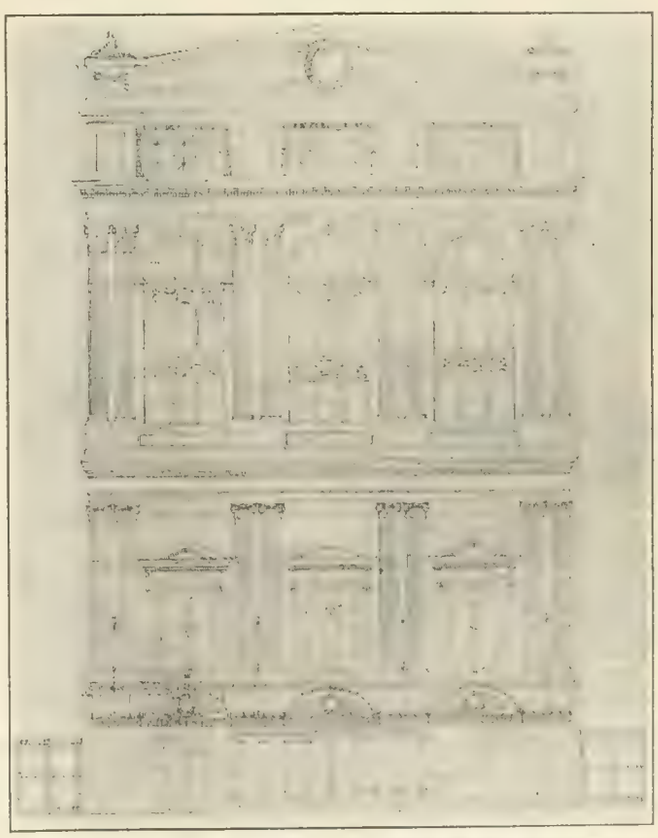
MRS. EDDY'S DRAWING-ROOM.



MANY people will be interested to know how Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy has furnished her new home at Newton, Mass.—the color tones she preferred in the decorations and the woods she chose for her furniture. As the head of the Christian Science movement, which has interested more people in less time than any other religious theme in our day, she is the lady whose simple little "not yet" kept New York from having a beautiful temple erected on Riverside Drive and dedicated to the new faith;—or, at least, so the story runs.

A Boston letter says that the main hall which runs straight through the house, together with the straight stairway, is carpeted in rich dark red, and furnished with a few mahogany pieces. Opening on the left, immediately beyond the main entrance, is the large drawing-room.

The furniture is old gold and mahogany, and the decorations are all in a general color scheme of tea rose. The soft, silky carpet and the wall tapestries are in this tone and afford a perfect setting for one of the most precious of Mrs. Eddy's many prized possessions. This is a rug made of the backs of thirty-six elder duck skins, and it is usually displayed over the back of a small couch placed between the windows of the left side. A handsome Louis Quinze centre table, in gold and onyx, is one of the pieces typical of the furnishings. Mrs. Eddy's study and bedroom are furnished in mahogany.

THE NEW SHUBERT THEATRE.

Plans are now practically completed by William Albert Swasey, 47 West 34th st, architect, for the new theatre and studio building soon to be erected by the Shubert Bros., of 1416 Broadway, in the north side of 39th st, about 100 ft. east of Broadway. The structure, of course, will be strictly fireproof, seven stories, with a front facade of terra cotta. The floor filling will be of reinforced concrete. The theatre will take up the lower floors, and the upper four stories will be for studios. Every modern convenience, including a vacuum cleaning plant, an electric elevator, baths, electric lights and steam heat, will be installed. The old building occupying the premises is now being demolished and building operations will be started as soon as the site is available. The Thompson-Starrett Co., 49 Wall st, holds the general contract.

Year's Second Half Opens Strong.

The second half of the business year opened strong in building material departments. Leaders report conditions favorable to optimism. Even the cement interests are hopeful. The week opened well, considering the three, and in the majority of cases, four-day recess. What is more it developed strength as the week wore on. Brick went up twenty-five cents. The market continued good and some large new orders were placed. Cement is still at $1.33 dock New York, with some large orders placed on short deliveries. Iron held its own. Southern No. 2 went up fifty cents. Steel fell behind, because most of the big orders were placed in the latter part of last month to hold over this month and part of next. Retail lumber dealers have entered upon their busy season and the wholesalers, their worst. Business locally, from the former's viewpoint, was said to be good considering market features and conditions. Stone was inactive.

Brick Market Steady—Prices Move Up.

A fine market, steadily increasing demand and a better quality of brick coming in, have combined to produce a slight advance in the price of Hudson River hards. A general improvement in the trade is reported, and it now begins to look as if the Summer as well as the Fall would be a busy season for both wholesalers and retailers. Fewer wash brick are coming in, although the quantity entering the local market is still far above normal. Excepting for a few showers the last fifteen days of June brought ideal brick-making weather and enabled the manufacturers to restock. The manufacturers are setting in now. In another week they will begin to burn, and about the last week in the month they will cool. That will make it about August 1 before really good brick will begin to come into the local docks.

TYPHOID FEVER IN ONE YARD.

With the exception of a yard at East Kingston and Smith's at Kingston, all the Hudson River companies are working up to capacity, at least up to such capacity as the labor supply will permit. In the first case, fifty cases of typhoid fever has developed within the last ten days and the yard has been crippled in consequence. In the case of Smith's, about half the racks in that establishment collapsed during the week, entailing a loss of brick in process of manufacture as well as disabling a large part of the plant's equipment. Men were put to work at once repairing the damage done, and it was said that within the week the plant would be able to turn out its usual quota.

LABOR SCARCE AT KILNS.

Up-river manufacturers are complaining at the scarcity of labor. In one case, a Fishkill manufacturer is making but is unable to load at the same time. The only way in which he can make deliveries is to put his men at work in the kilns and then shift them all over to the barges, stopping work at the kilns temporarily. While it is usual for the brickyard employees to get "wanderlust" at this time of the year, it seems that there is an unusually large number of men leaving the up-river establishments this Summer. This is probably due to the early Spring exodus to New Jersey, at the time of the strike. This has had a great deal to do with the difficulty the manufacturers have experienced this year in getting ahead of the demand.

PLENTY OF TRUCKS NOW.

Last week it was reported that the local distributers were having trouble in obtaining enough trucks to get counts to the various jobs. Conditions changed back to normal as soon as the hot wave passed over. It was explained this week that it was not so much a case of trucks being scarce, but horses. Owners and drivers refused to take out their horses, and one brick company that had some rush deliveries to make, offered unheard of prices to a certain well-known team renting firm, but his terms were not accepted. Truck drivers would take their teams out from 6 A. M. to 9 A. M. and from 3 P. M. to 5 P. M., but during the middle of the day kept their animals safely housed.

BIG CONTRACTS FOR CANDEE, SMITH & HOWLAND CO.

Among some of the contracts recently closed by the well-known building material firm of Candee, Smith & Howland Company are for the following jobs: Borgfeldt building, Irving pl and 16th st, 6,000,000; remodeling and reconstruction of old Parker building, 4th av, and to Hotel Florence, 13,000,000 (6,000,000 for former and 7,000,000 for later); for the 17th st and 5th av building, 3,000,000; for the skyscraper block to be erected on the Iselin property, between 26th and 27th sts, in Madison av, 2,500,000, and a number of others.

Other firms have reported equally large contracts, among them the John P. Kane Co., the Empire Brick & Supply Co. and Sayre & Fisher Co. Some of these contracts have not yet been entirely closed.

EXPECTS A GOOD SUMMER.

General George Moore Smith, of the Candee, Smith & Howland Company, when asked for his opinion as to the outlook for the second half of the year, said:

"Brick meets a good stiff market, with prices fair, and no evidence so far apparent of the manufacturer trying to shade or raise. There is a lot of big business in sight, not only for us but for others, and I do not look for a single dull period between now and the first of the year."

Cement Takes on Renewed Activity.

Something like renewed activity was reported in the cement market this week. The large inquiry which had previously been cited brought several large orders, but instead of the trade taking heart at this, their encouragement seemed to come from the thought that this probably will be the last month under which the price agreement will remain operative. Among the orders recently closed were two through Candee, Smith & Howland for between 15,000 and 20,000 bbls. of Atlas and Alpha for various contracts it has recently closed. Other large sales were reported by the Edison, Lawrence and Trowel companies, but figures were not made public.

STRIKE AT THE EDISON MILLS.

A week ago yesterday nearly all the men at the Edison Portland cement mills at New Village, N. J., went out on strike. Vice-President W. S. Mallory was in Atlantic City at the time. He hurried to Philadelphia, and from there went to the scene of the trouble.

Orders were given to rush in 150 strike breakers, and work was resumed the following day, although the output was necessarily reduced. By Wednesday, according to reports received by F. B. Marsh and officials at the company's local office, 1133 Broadway, the trouble was practically over and the men were returning one, two or three at a time.

A few weeks ago, it is said, the company gave its employees a picnic to which a number of friends of the employees from other towns were invited. It is thought that it was during the picnic that the seeds of discontent were sown. The men, who had demanded more pay, for the most part returned to work under the same schedule as heretofore.

CEMENT BUSINESS DURING THE LAST SIX MONTHS.

A local authority, who has a turn of mind toward statistics, has prepared for his own use a rough sketch of the business done during the six months just ended with a view to noting the actual effect of the price compact. He would not consent to make public the entire compilation, but he said that the business of the leading cement companies during the last quarter was greater in the number of barrels sold than during the first quarter by 18%. He explained that this did not indicate that the licensees made money. On the contrary, he said that his figures showed that they were losers to the extent of an average of 5%. Another authority, discussing the subject of supply and demand during the period of the restriction on prices, summed up the situation this way:

"CANNOT CHOKE OFF DEMANDS."

"Contrary to the public opinion regarding the cement situation, the fact that the price has been placed practically below cost, does not hamper the supply or demand. At first thought it appears that all the dealers in the country should rush right in and buy all the cement they could at $1.33. They would, if the licensee would sell for longer than 60 to 90 days. To-day they will hesitate to sell at the present prices longer than on 30-day deliveries.

"The cement men have been busy, all right, but they have not been making any money. I do not expect it to last much longer, however. You cannot choke off the demand or supply of Portland cement no matter what price you make, or what conditions you levy."

Southern Iron Advances.

The Tennessee Coal & Iron, Sloss and Alabama Consolidated closed the first half of the year with a fifty cent advance in No. 2 Southern. This was said to be due to the fact that they had booked more orders than they had realized. The holiday following Saturday and Sunday and the fact that the iron business practically suspended business of any size since Friday noon of last week, had the effect of bringing about a lagging market this week. There was one exception, however, when one big pipe company closed for 25,000 tons.

EXPECT A QUIET MONTH.

Iron and steel men visited this week said that they did not expect to have a very busy month. "July," said one man, who keeps a finger constantly upon the pulse of the iron market, "is usually an off month. More than one-half the buyers cover in May or June and by July have filled for almost the entire third quarter." Steel men do not expect an active July, either.

JUNE'S BUSINESS BETTER THAN MAY'S.

June's steel business was considerably over that of May, and May's was over April's by over 200,000 tons. It is believed June's advance of 30% over the business of the preceding month will be the high record until September 1, because most of the Summer work has been contracted for and that the real Fall business will not come until after the first week in September.

BUSINESS NEAR NORMAL BASIS.

A steel man discussing the condition of the steel business from the viewpoint of the late depression, said: "My belief is that business is where it should be today. A comparison with our books for the last seven years shows that the business of this year was in excess of all other years save 1906 by 12%. It is only 2% behind that of 1906. There is plenty of money in the market now, loans of almost any size are easy to get, and one does not hear nowadays of business timidity due to financial or industrial conditions. The trouble is for the most part local. I believe that the conflict of interests in the redrafting of the local building code has done more to retard the progress of Spring building construction than anything else I can think of."

MORE FIRMS ENTERING BRONX.

While the Church E. Gates Lumber Co. has been doing a large business in the Bronx, it was not until the comparatively recent past that it decided to establish a branch of its big plant in that section. It is spending almost $1,000,000 in the construction of a mammoth turning and finishing plant on the Southern Boulevard in the Oak Point section. This plant will be a model of its kind when it is completed. The Murray & Hill Company is also building a woodworking mill in the neighborhood, one that will cover 17 lots. The Cuttler Hammer Co., a Chicago concern, is also establishing a mill in that section at a cost of $105,000.

Stone Market Uneventful.

Big contracts out of town continue to feature the local stone market. Prices remain stationary and a quantity of big work is beginning to show itself. The Woodbury Granite Co. reports a good inquiry. Competition is keen for local work and prices are being shaded somewhat more closely than usual. There is a better demand for granite. Marble holds its own. Sandstone showed a slight falling behind, while bluestone gained a little during the last fortnight. There are no changes in prices.

SLATE MOVING UPWARD FOR YEAR AND A HALF.

E. J. Johnson, of the E. J. Johnson Co., 38 Park Row, said this week that he had noticed a continued improvement in the demand for slate for the last year and a half. The question had been put as to whether the first half of the year had been up to his expectations and what the last half held out in the way of encouragement. He said:

"Structural slate up to eighteen months ago was slow. Since then there has been a marked improvement and constantly increasing sales until the first of the year. Looking back over the last six months I think that business has been up to my expectations and the indications are good for a busy Fall."

Kenney-Renner Co. Gets Big Contract.

The Kenney-Renner Co., general plumbing contractors, of 135 West 24th street, has just signed contracts for the installation of plumbing and heating equipments for the nine new fireproof buildings being erected on somewhat new lines, as far as this city is concerned, by the Shea Construction Co., for Richard M. Montgomery, at Webb av and 188th st, the Bronx, and for which George Keister, of 12 W 31st st, is architect. The Kenney-Renner Co. makes a specialty of this kind of work and also of installing plumbing equipment for theatres, having had the contract for the Astor and the Stuyvesant, both of which figured up to about $10,000.

Considerable interest attaches to the award of the contracts for the nine Bronx buildings because of their unusual features. The walls are to be of terra cotta tile and floors of the same material but centered on reinforced concrete beams, the roof is to be of Spanish tile and the only parts of the buildings that will contain any wood will be the windows and doors.

The Kenny-Renner Co. was established in 1905 and incorporated in 1907, with John J. Kenney, president and treasurer, and F. A. E. Renner vice-president and secretary. The firm has been remarkably successful and has handled some big contracts including some important public school work. Mr. Kenney was formerly connected with the Welles-Newton Co., and Mr. Renner was formerly in the plumbing supply business. Both have had wide experience in high-class work and their company is equipped to handle any kind of plumbing work with competency and despatch.

Safeguarding the Water User's Interests.

Something new in the economical management of property, whether it be business, industrial or residential, has been developed from small beginnings in the Water Supervision Company, 3 Park Row, this city. To-day, this company is saving thousands of dollars to thousands of water rent payers, besides saving the city millions of gallons of water that would otherwise be going to waste, by its system of water-meter inspection, done by meter and plumbing experts employed solely by this company.

Lindon Bates, Jr., an engineer, and a member of the New York State Assembly, upon his return from an investigation of European water works, said that the increasing inadequacy of New York's water supply was not waste so much as leakage. While a faucet or pipe is dripping, dripping, dripping, minute in and minute out, day in and day out the year round, the little mechanical contrivance in the basement is ticking, ticking, ticking away the tenant's or landlord's dollars and cents, whether it be for willful waste or unconscious leakage.

The mission of the Water Supervision Company is to detect this leakage in its early stage. Monthly inspection of the meter will give an infallible clue to anything wrong with the piping. Perhaps the service pipes are too large. The company's experts will tell the landlord or tenant about it. Possibly a reduction in size will save surplus taxes. Perhaps the faucet is worn out. A new one will also save additional rent. Perhaps there is a leak that drop by drop is eating away a foundation wall, or endangering the health of first floor tenants by making the cellar damp. The company's inspectors look after that, too.

The company has hundreds of letters from clients showing that the employment of this system pays, and the fact that once they have it they find that they cannot get along without it, shows the pracical utility of the service.

The "C. Q .D." in Elevator Service.

A company of richly gowned women and gentlemen in evening dress alighted from a cab in front of a prominent hotel the other evening and, laughing and chatting over some funny situation in the play, they had just seen, entered the elevator and started upward to their apartments. One of the gentlemen was bound to his room where he expected to change his apparel and depart for the midnight train for Chicago, where a contract involving hundreds of thousands of dollars was to be signed.

Suddenly, between two floors the elevator car came to a halt. The conductor could not budge it, the brakes held fast. The elevator in the next shaft stopped and conveyed the message to the desk that eight persons were in a stalled car between floors, prisoners. To them, the situation looked hopeless, the gentleman who was scheduled to leave the city in an hour, saw the loss of that important contract due to his missing the train that departed from the Grand Central station in an hour. Gloom pervaded the car. But what was to be done? The hotel engineer found that expert knowledge was required to locate the cause of the halt, but he worked away.

In the main office things were different. As soon as the clerk was informed of the fact that the car was stalled, he called "Morningside 310," and in half an hour an auto stopped in front of the hotel with one of the Electric Elevator and Machinery Maintaining Company's experts aboard. He found a little staybolt out of place, which had caused safeties to act. It required ten minutes to repair the defect and the nervous contractor caught his train.

This is only one example of the work that the Electric Elevator and Machinery Maintaining Co., 1 Beekman st, does. It has a system of inspection and maintainence over electric elevators and machinery connected with them, under yearly contracts. The lifts are always kept in repair, the electrical equipment has the care of experts and furthermore, this force is available to those who have the service day and night. In case of an accident a representative of this company can be called at any hour. It looks after and repairs all kinds of electrical office equipment, repairs controllers, winds armatures and in fact does a general electrical contracting business.

Modern Concrete Grouting Device.

Harvey Farrington, of 45 Broadway, New York, has something modern in the way of concrete expansion anchors which he is introducing in the local market. This device is on the same principle as his well-known expansion bolts and grapples, both of which has received country-wide inquiry and constantly increasing sales. This device consists of the ordinary lag screw accompanying an anchor which is driven into a well. A coil of wire inside of this anchor is internally tapered and is expanded by screwing the lag into the receptcale. It is claimed for this particular device that it does not crumble the concrete, thus, it is said, increasing his holding power. The wire being flexible, contracts a little while being driven into the hole, and thus gives a strong friction hold on the walls of the hole. Mr. Farrington supplies these bolts, anchors, grapples, etc., to electricians, plumbers, steamfitters, telephone companies and metal workers, and also to the trade in general.

New General Contracting Firm.

There has recently been organized a new general contracting firm under the name of "Manning, Fish & Company" which has opened offices at 103 Park av, in the Terminal building. The officers are John P. Manning, president; Charles L. Fish, treasurer, and Robert H. Grimes, secretary.

Messrs. Manning and Fish were connected with Milliken Brothers (Inc.) for a number of years, and they have been identified with important building operations in and outside of this city for some time. Mr. Manning is the son of Henry S. Manning, formerly senior partner of Manning, Maxwell & Moore, who is associated with many prominent corporations in New York City and in the West. Mr. Fish is a graduate of the Worcester Institute of Technology and was formerly in the contracting department of Milliken Brothers for a number of years. It is understood that Manning, Fish & Co. are well equipped financially and have sufficient monetary backing to warrant their handling jobs of any size, as shown by the fact that they have important contracts pending which will be awarded them, it is said, upon completion of plans now being draughted.

OF INTEREST TO PROPERTY OWNERS.

Valuable Information Given Weekly Showing Status of Municipal Improvement Proceedings in all Branches.

The Record and Guide is regularly publishing for property owners and others information relative to the opening of streets, regulating and grading, curbing and flagging of same, as well as the construction of sewers, permanent and temporary.

The reader will understand that municipal improvements of this order are assessed against the owners of property, both improved and unimproved, situated within the district directly benefited. For example a given street is going to be paved. In all likelihood not only will the property be assessed that faces on the street directly in front of where the work is going to be done, but also property will be assessed in adjoining streets and thoroughfares which might receive the benefit of such improvement.

That the various stages of carrying through these proceedings may be followed with intelligence by the property owner they have been divided into three classes:

1. Public Works.
2. Condemnation Proceedings.
3. Assessments.

1. Under the heading "Public Works" will be printed petitions asking that improvements may be made, and the successive initiatory proceedings, including mention of the probable district that will have to bear the assessment.

Under the second heading will follow the announcement of the application for the appointment of Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment, later followed by their various reports and findings. Fuller explanation of the foregoing will be found as the reader proceeds.

Under the third and final heading will follow the details relating to the confirmation and the entry of assessments with a statement of the time within which they may be paid, without incurring penalty for arrears. In other words, if payment be not made within a given time, an interest charge, upon the amount due is exacted by the city, which must be paid by the owner of the property.

PUBLIC WORKS.

To specifically illustrate the successive steps in a proceeding for a public improvement, let it be assumed that a new street is required in some section of any of the five boroughs comprising the city of New York. A movement of this kind is usually started and agitated by some property owner, an association of property owners or perhaps considered by a board of trade. A petition is presented to a regularly established local board, whose function is to give the proceeding the first or initial official hearing and if deemed advisable by that body, recommendation for its adoption is made to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. This latter body meets nearly every Friday morning at 10.30 o'clock in their room in the City Hall and has jurisdiction over all public improvements.

If the board approves of the petition the area of assessment (that is to say boundary lines are fixed, and all property owners who have holdings therein are assessed in proportion to the amount of their real estate contained within these bounds) except where physical betterments are concerned, such as regulating, grading and curbing streets, laying sewers and flagging sidewalks as well as fencing vacant lots, in which case the Board of Assessors determine the area of assessment and the assessments for benefit. Motion is then made by the Corporation Counsel for the appointment of commissioners to condemn.

CONDEMNATION PROCEEDINGS.

The next step is the appointment by the Supreme Court of three Commissioners of Appraisal, of which one is designated as a Commissioner of Assessment. The commission hears all objections made by property owners as to title and value. When every one has had a hearing preliminary reports are prepared by the commission containing the amount of awards and assessments which in its opinion the various owners are entitled to. These reports are subsequently filed for examination and objections by property owners or parties in interest who may be dissatisfied with the findings of the commission.

Public hearings are then in order, and objecting parties are given an opportunity to register their disapproval of the findings. The commission then prepares and files a copy of its final report in the County Clerk's office followed by the presentation of its report to the Supreme Court for confirmation.

ASSESSMENTS.

The report of the Commissioners as approved is then transmitted to the Comptroller for the payment of awards and the collection of assessments, who in turn publishes the date of confirmation or when the assessment should be paid and entry of the assessment in the "Record of Titles of Assessments." A statement is made giving the time within which such assessment can be paid, without a penalty. If an assessment is not paid within 60 days after the date of entry, it is subject to an interest change at the rate of 7 per cent. a year.

Claimants should make their claims for damages upon the blank form prepared by the Board of Assessors.

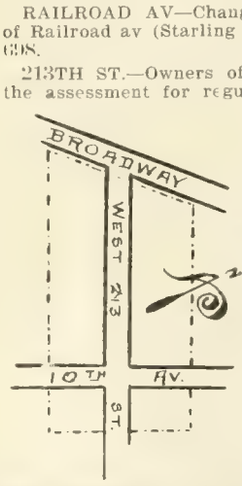
NEREID AV—Change of grade in the regulating and grading of Nereid av (238th st), from 1st st (Bullard av) to White Plains road. No 595.



147TH ST—Change of grade in the regulating and grading of East 147th st (Dater st), from the Southern Boulevard to St Marys Park. No. 596.

CLASON POINT ROAD.—Change of grade in the regulating and grading of Clason Point road, from Westchester av to the East River. No. 696.

POPHAM AV—Change of grade in the regulating and grading of Popham av, from West 176th st to Montgomery av. No. 600.

RAILROAD AV—Change of grade in the regulating and grading of Railroad av (Starling av), from Unionport road to Glebe av. No. 698.

213TH ST.—Owners of real estate in 213th st are notified that the assessment for regulating, grading, curbing and flagging, etc., that section between Broadway and 10th av was confirmed by the Board of Assessors on June 29 and entered on the same day in the Record of Titles of Assessments, kept in the Bureau for the Collection of Assessments and Arrears of Taxes and Assessments and of Water Rents. The assessment must be paid within 60 days after the date of entry, otherwise interest will be collected thereon at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, to be calculated to the date of payment from the date such assessment became a lien. According to law an assessment becomes a lien upon the real estate affected thereby 10 days after its entry. The area of assessment includes both sides of 213th st, from Broadway to 10th av, and to the extent of half the block at the intersecting avs. The diagram shows approximately the extent of the assessment. Payment of the levy must be made to the Collector of Assessments and Arrears, in Room H, 280 Broadway, Manhattan. All payments made thereon on or before Aug. 28 will be exempt from interest.

COLLEGE AV—Change of grade in the regulating and grading of College av, from East 167th st to East 172d st. No 708.

HOW TO FILL PLASTER CRACKS.—Mr. Property Owner, are you aware that cracked ceilings usually convey the impression to a prospective purchaser that your building is of flimsy construction? It's a fact, nevertheless! When cracks appear in plastered ceilings or side walls remedy them before they become hideous openings. During the settlement of a structure these imperfections frequently occur, generally at the junction of ceilings and walls. One remedy which can be applied is a covering of wire and muslin. Wire netting with about a quarter-inch mesh should be bought, and a foot or two of the material tacked to the wall or ceiling so that it makes a uniform concave curve. Bad ridges and hollows should be filled in with plaster of paris and muslin pasted over the whole. Care must be taken that the muslin sticks fast to the wire.

ELECTRICITY AND PROPERTY VALUES.

BY F. W. COHN.

It is a source of surprise to electrical engineers that so many property owners remain indifferent to the value of modern electric wiring. Property owners, as a rule, are people of shrewdness and far-sightedness, and therefore it may safely be assumed that as a class they are keenly alive to their own best interest. Yet in the one matter of electric wiring for light and power they are singularly backward. During the recent financial depression, when every one was hungry for work at any price, and it was possible to secure the wiring with fixtures complete of a 3-sty private dwelling for as little as $500, it was confidently expected that a larger number of property owners would seize the opportunity to install electricity at a low rate. That this did not take place would seem to demonstrate that general vehicles of public intelligence have not sufficiently drawn the property owner's attention to this matter. Money expended in electrical equipments in new buildings is to-day a matter of course even in the cheapest flat houses. The reason for this added outlay is obvious. The appearance of the combination gas and electric fixtures is far more ornamental than the old style gas fixture, making the apartment more attractive.

The convenience of electricity is to-day known to even the poorest classes, and tenants refer with pride to occupying an apartment where there are electric lights. The presence of electric lights therefore improves the rentableness of the premises. This in turn improves the value of the property to an investor, and the sum invested for the electrical equipment is returned twice over when the builder sells. This part of electrical installation requires no comment, as the builder already knows from experience the value of electric wiring, and rarely fails to avail himself of it. It is more particularly with the owners of the finished private houses that the demonstration of the utility and value of electrical installations needs to be made. The matter of improved value of the building and improved renting ability applies here as in new buildings. Many house owners do not know that an up-to-date electrical contractor can install in their finished house, under parquet flooring and behind the most expensive wall panelings, electrical wires of approved make absolutely enclosed in steel, and absolutely fireproof, without so much as leaving a scratch on the woodwork or plaster of any ceiling, wall or floor. He can take their gas fixtures and turn them into far more beautiful electric or combination fixtures at a moderate cost. For all this fixture work and wiring he will charge about $500, thus securing a greater visible return for the investment than can be secured in any other way.

The air of up-to-dateness which can be introduced into an old-fashioned high stoop brownstone private dwelling simply by installing electricity is proof sufficient of the desirability of resorting to these improvements. The writer has personal knowledge of a number of cases where loss of money due to low rentals and empties far exceeded the cost of installing such an improvement. The great flexibility of electricity which will supply you with light, cook your meals, iron your clothes, take you up stairs, sweep your floors, sharpen your knives, blow cool breezes in summer and furnish warmth in winter, and even take the place of a hot water bag, need only be once experienced to be desired forever. The cost of electric lighting with the Edison carbon filament lamp is just about equal to that of gas. With the introduction of the new Tungsten lamp, however, the cost is two-thirds less than gas. That is to say, where 50 candle power of light through gas will cost two cents per hour, 50 candle power of light through electricity using Tungsten filament lamps will cost two-thirds of a cent per hour. Added, therefore, to improved property value, improved renting ability and up-to-dateness, may be added the refinement of artistic environment, increased comfort, greater health through purer air and ultimately greater economy.

ENORMOUS DEAL CLOSED.

The announcement of the closing of a contract between the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Co. and the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Co., as joint lessees of the new Grand Central Station, by which these interests will build two 12-sty buildings to cover the two blocks bounded by Lexington av and Depew pl, 46th to 48th sts, caused a good deal of comment in the real estate world. This property is to be leased to the Merchants and Manufacturers' Exchange, and was represented by the Nichollas-Ritter Realty and Financial Co., of St. Louis. E. P. V. Ritter is the president and its New York office is located in the Flatiron Building. The deal involved the enormous sum of $13,000,000, including the buildings to be built, which will cost, it is said, $6,500,000. The new structures will conform with the new station, and the construction will be done by James Stewart & Co.

The Merchants and Manufacturers' Exchange will have a capitalization of $1,000,000 and will have among its directors Mr. Ritter, George C. Smith, of the Westinghouse Companies, director in the Carnegie Trust Co. and other financial companies; Alexander M. Stewart, of James Stewart & Co. and the Stewart-Kerbaugh-Shanley Co., engineers and contractors; Liston L. Lewis, of Keener & Lewis, attorneys, and Charles E. Spratt, of the New York Furniture Exchange.

LAW DEPARTMENT

LOAN BROKERS' COMMISSIONS.

An interesting case on this subject, and one emphasizing the fact that in spite of the unusual burden of proof thrown on the loan broker's shoulders, though not on his brother the sale-broker, of showing not only performance on his part of the agreement, but also "why the loan did not go through," yet that he may still recover his commissions by accepting and successfully carrying that burden, is before us.

Not only was the case complicated and prejudiced against the broker by the fact that the title did not go through, so that his employer, who was purchasing as well as borrowing on the proposed purchase, did not get the loan, but the broker himself was not able to secure it within the time understood by all parties to be required.

The facts were these, and as being often present in such dealings (either one or all), will well bear recital.

There was no mention in the contract of the time for its consummation, but it was not disputed that it was agreed between the parties that the loan should be completed March 20th .... The loan was to be made on property to be purchased .... The title company wrote on the 19th of March suggesting that the title was complicated and that the company wanted at least another week to complete the search. Plaintiff (the loan broker), communicated this letter to the defendant (borrower and purchaser), but defendant made no answer, and plaintiff thereupon had his party present at the office agreed upon, ready and willing to make the loan provided the title was good. It developed upon the title company's investigation that the title was not good, but the defendant (borrowing purchaser), completed the purchase, taking a purchase money loan back from the seller in lieu of the expected one from the broker's party.

The court on appeal from a judgment in favor of the broker, and in affirming it, says:

"It is clear that the plaintiff (broker) had performed his part of the contract; he had procured the party who was willing to make the loan, provided the security offered was free from incumbrances, and the defendant never having been able to show a clear title, the plaintiff is entitled to recover."

In plain English, the borrowing purchaser chose to take a defective title rather than lose a bargain; and in place of rejecting it and protecting the broker and himself by refusing it and claiming damages, he dodged the need for the broker's promised loan if the title were good, by accepting a purchase money loan back from the seller—all, of course, perfectly legitimate, but in law as well as equity throwing upon him the payment of the broker's earned commission.

INADEQUATE WATER PRESSURE.

Owners and occupants of dwellings and apartment houses in upper Manhattan, more particularly north of 150th st, are being greatly inconvenienced by the inadequate supply of water in that section. It is affirmed by the owner of a dwelling on 162d st near St. Nicholas av that it is now impossible for him to draw water from faucets on the upper floor of his domicile. So serious has the shortage become that the matter has been brought to the attention of the local property owners associations including the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association, which latter body at its meeting held recently appointed a committee to investigate the matter and suggest an effective remedy for the evil. At the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity it was stated during the week that the insufficiency in the water supply on Washington Heights is due to two reasons, small mains and poor facilities for pumping. At the present time the water pressure in the locality referred to is maintained by a pumping station situated at 174th st and Amsterdam av, and although the outfit was large enough to meet all reasonable requirements up to the period of the recent building boom, it can no longer be depended upon to properly perform the work of keeping up an adequate pressure under present conditions.

TAX RATE TO BE INCREASED.

In all probability the tax rate for 1909 will be $1.710. The rate last year was $1.61407. The figure for the assessment will come to approximately $7,250,000,000, which is very close to the estimate made by Lawson Purdy, the head of the Tax Department, some time since. The present increase is only $92,000,000 over last year.

Mr. Purdy gives many reasons for this condition, including the recent panic, the effects of which are being felt by his department at the present time. This is directly due to the fact that realty booms came to a sudden stop and values ceased to enhance. On account of the State gas decision there is an additional loss of $18,000,000 and the $24,000,000 which has been put into subways cannot be put in the assessments. The holding up of the 4th av subway in Brooklyn has also had a detrimental effect on realty values across the river. Brooklyn was also a sufferer from the stoppage of the East River ferries. There was a gain of $490,000,000 in 1908 over 1907.

OUTLOOK IN THE BRONX PROMISING.

Realty Brokers Look for Increased Activity Next Fall in This Borough.

THE BRONX has been through a trying period during the past two years, and it is hardly to be wondered at if some brokers are discouraged. During the boom times it was not an unusual thing for a broker to sell a given piece of property two, three or even four times, while to-day he is elated if he can make a single sale. It is questionable whether there be any class so optimistic as the real estate man. He is always looking at the silver lining. In The Bronx there is good reason, when the real merit of his "goods" are looked into. He is offering an article which is sure to enhance in value. It is only a question of time. The growth of the city has been northward for many years, and will continue to be so. To be sure the opening of tunnels and bridges over the East River will divert a large amount of traffic to the eastward, but when all is said and done The Bronx is getting, and always will get, its share of the increased population.

The past six months, when compared to the first six months of 1908 or the corresponding period in 1907, shows a considerable falling off in the volume of business actually transacted. This borough has not responded as quickly as Manhattan, but that condition is only natural. Manhattan is naturally the leader in all movements. Some years ago it was the first to start the boom, then The Bronx, and when the period of inactivity commenced it was the first to feel the effect. The boom lasted in The Bronx considerably after Manhattan property was stagnant.

INVESTORS REPLACE SPECULATORS.

Jacob Leitner, who has his office at Prospect and Westchester avs, when asked for an expression of opinion on the present condition and outlook for Bronx realty, said:

"A reaction in real estate cannot be engineered by the few, and a depression, such as we have had, is slow to recuperate. Once started, however, it increases in momentum, and values rise until they reach a figure in keeping with the property and its location. The speculators have ceased to be the predominating class in apartment house trading and are now displaced by the investors, who are investigating the small apartment houses which they are enabled to buy cheaper because of the present lower cost of production and subject to only a first mortgage by reason of the now liberal mortgage market. The demand for these smaller houses is already recognized and still growing, and undoubtedly will grow until it reaches the larger apartment houses and then gradually until it embraces real estate, improved and unimproved, of every description. Among the real estate men who are supposed to know, it is the consensus of opinion that there will be a gratifying demand for property this fall."

Charles F. Mehltretter, of Mehltretter & Karges, No. 703 Tremont av, said:

"The outlook for business during the summer months is not encouraging, as there does not seem to be much demand at present. We predict a pretty brisk business in the fall. There are a number of things that have to be adjusted before The Bronx market gets back to its normal condition. A large amount of new buildings of the apartment house class, are at present in the course of erection, and mortgage money is easy. The outlook is promising. At present most of the sales put through are in the form of trades. In my opinion there will be an active market in the fall."

EXPECTS QUIET SUMMER.

Edward J. Fitzgerald, of Fitzgerald & Broderick, 446 Tremont av, said:

"The spring market in The Bronx has not met general expectations and present conditions indicate that business will be very quiet for the next two months. However, taking into consideration the large number of inquiries from clients, the outlook for fall business is gratifying. The professional speculator is strongly in evidence, particularly in the purchase of unimproved and flat properties, more especially on the east side where transit facilities have brought about a large development, yet, the home buyer and investor as well, has been noticeable and promises to be a growing factor. Our principal field of operations, Mt. Hope, University Heights, Kingsbridge, Bedford Park, etc., awaits only the favorable determination of the rapid transit situation to develop a large buying movement; there are indications at present, that this section is being closely watched by several well-known and shrewd operators. We are optimistic, very, and expect a considerable activity to accompany the advent of fall weather; in fact, we rather look for the movement to begin, perhaps, even earlier."

Edward Polak, of 4030 Third av, gave his opinion as follows:

"The present real estate conditions in The Bronx are better than they were a few months ago. Conditions appear to be slowly but surely improving. I firmly believe they will continue to improve all summer. While I do not wish to pose as a prophet, in my opinion business will have so improved by the fall, that confidence will have been fully restored by that time. At present the small investor is doing the larger share of the buying. The speculator is trying to make the burden easier which he took upon his shoulders during the boom. When he adjusts his holdings so that he can conveniently carry them, he will be in a frame of mind to buy. By that time the market will be in such a progressive condition that he, too, will have confidence to speculate once more."

OUTLOOK BEGINNING TO BRIGHTEN.

Frank Gass, of 2215 Westchester av, took the following optimistic view of the situation:

"After a dull winter and spring, the outlook in the real estate field in The Bronx is again beginning to brighten. With the new rapid transit bill passed and the anxiety of various syndicates to build new subways into and through The Bronx to the Mount Vernon line on one side and to Pelham Bay Park, via Westchester av, on the other, the investor seems to again realize that the outlet from Manhattan must of a necessity be north. It seems to have been the rule that 'railroads follow the people,' but with these two branches of the subway completed, the growth of population in this section will no doubt be enormous. There is no other section in Manhattan or The Bronx which offers inducements to the small investor than along the lines as these new routes are laid out, and it will be only a very short while that the small investor will have this opportunity, as with the new subways completed, or even before that time, prices of real estate will so rapidly advance as to be beyond his means. Therefore the opportunity for the home-seeker is now; for from now on the prices will again begin to rise. It does not need a real estate expert to observe what the conditions will be in the future, for the ordinary layman has only to look casually at a map of The Bronx with its splendid street system and wide thoroughfares, together with its beautiful parks and water fronts and their system of connection, to observe that this borough offers probably the finest opportunity for investors and home-seekers of any of the five boroughs composing Greater New York.

James E. Callan, who has his office at No. 569 East 177th st, said:

"Bronx realty, in my opinion, is in first-class condition. It is held in strong hands. The people have recovered from the bank panic of two years ago. A dollar's worth of realty cannot be purchased for fifty cents (although a broker might try to make you believe it, when he offers you a BARGAIN). I do not look for a rush of business this summer, but think it will gradually improve, and 1910 will give us all we can desire (without wanting the earth). The investor is in the market and the good class of bidders. We have not the professional speculator and do not want him. He wants to buy $100,000 worth for $50,000 and then ask $200,000 for it, and if he does not get it in a week or ten days, he says The Bronx is going to the dogs. People looking for homes are coming to this part of the city, and those that I have dealt with have the cash to pay down; not like old times where $500 to $1,000 cash bought almost any parcel. Though prices are a great deal higher to-day than ever before, investors realize that the longer they wait the more they will have to pay."

BIG BOOM COMING.

William A. Cokeley, of 1325 Fort Schuyler av, referring to the conditions in the eastern part of The Bronx, said:

"In my opinion the outlook for action in the realty line in this section is very bright, not, however, during July and August, but beginning with September, I feel that the section of The Bronx known as the Annexed District or District of Chester, is in the wake of a boom such as we have never felt before, for the following very good reasons. Firstly: The New York, Westchester and Boston Railway Co. has announced that it will let the contract for the construction of its line from West Farms to the city line of New Rochelle within the next week or two. This will bestir action in Neill estate, L. G. Hunt estate, Bronx View Park, Morris Park, Arden estate, and all that undeveloped but most beautiful Eastchester locality, all of which the railroad traverses, with both express and local stations settled upon. Secondly: The Public Service Commission has in no mistaken language, stated that whoever bids for the Broadway-Lexington route will have to include both the Westchester av and Jerome av branches. This will promote action all along the easterly part of The Bronx; Gleason estate, Unionport, Dore Lyon, Cebrie Park, Westchester and Throggs Neck being directly affected. For these reasons I predict for the next five years a remarkable activity for the East Bronx. The investor is the buyer to-day."

A member of the firm of R. I. Brown's Sons said:

"From the inquiries we have for property at the present time it appears that the outlook for business during the summer and coming fall months is good, the class of inquiries coming mainly from substantial builders desiring lots advantageously located for improvement with the better class of eight-family, or larger, apartment house. They explain the reason for this that this class of house meets with favor among that class of purchasers who desire a home and an income from the balance of the property. The mortgage market at the present time is exceedingly brisk and money is easy to obtain where a fair and reasonable amount is asked for the security offered. We feel that as soon as it is definitely determined that there will be more subways built a stronger demand will be created along the lines of such proposed routes, as they will pass through sections ripe and ready for improvement, by reason of the completion of the streets and the installation of sewers."

OBJECT TO ADDITIONAL RESERVOIR.

Henry R. Towne, president and chairman of the Committee on Water Supply of the Merchants' Association of New York, referring to the suit to enjoin the Aqueduct Commission from constructing additional reservoirs in the Croton watershed, said:

"In 1905 the city definitely decided to obtain an additional water supply from the Catskills. Plans were prepared and adopted for the delivery of additional water to the extent of 500,000,000 gallons per day, at an estimated cost for construction of $161,000,000. Contracts have been let for the principal dams and for most of the aqueduct line connecting the reservoir in the Catskills with the Croton Lake. Upon completion of this portion of the work, already in progress or soon to be let, 250,000,000 gallons of water can be delivered into the Croton Lake, where it will be available to supplement the existing Croton supply. Under the terms of the contracts and at the present rate of progress, this portion of the new works will be completed and able to deliver 250,000,000 gallons of water daily, in about four years from the present date.

"As the city is thus already making ample provision for the immediate, as well as for the distant, future at an expense of $161,000,000, it is obvious that further additional provision is superfluous, and that any outlay for such superfluous supply would be wasteful.

"It is contended by the Aqueduct Commission that an additional supply should be secured from the Croton system to guard against possible shortage of water pending the delivery of water from the Catskill system. This assumes that the proposed new Patterson reservoir in the Croton system will be completed several years before the Catskill system can deliver water at Croton Lake.

TWICE THE ESTIMATED TIME NECESSARY.

"The Aqueduct Commission states that the Patterson reservoir can be built in three years. In the case of every similar work hitherto undertaken, the legal preliminaries necessary before actual construction can be begun, have occupied upwards of a year. In this case important and unusual legal obstacles exist. More than usual delay at the outset is therefore likely. Two years is allowed for construction. The record of the Aqueduct Commission shows that in most instances twice the estimated time has been required to build the works undertaken. In view of the preliminary legal obstacles, four years is a moderate estimate of the time required to build the proposed Patterson reservoir. As stated above, water from the Catskills will in all probability be available at that time. As there is no reason to suppose that the Patterson reservoir will be completed before the Catskill supply becomes available, the former has no value as a measure of insurance against a water famine, as all risk will have ceased by the time the means of prevention has become available. Further development of the Croton system as an emergency measure is therefore unwarranted.

"Many engineers of prominence have made studies of the safe yield of the Croton watershed. Among them are John R. Freeman, J. J. R. Croes, Rudolph Hering, William H. Burr, James H. Fuertes. Their conclusions are stated in reports to the Merchants' Association (1900 and 1906); to Comptroller Coler (1900); to Commissioner Monroe (1903), and to Mayor McClellan (1905). They are substantially unanimous in the opinion that the safe daily yield of the Croton Basin is from 290,000,000 gallons to 300,000,000 gallons. The term 'safe yield' indicates the quantity available for use during protracted dry periods, and comprises the minimum stream flow during such periods, plus the available stored water of sanitary quality fit for use.

MUCH WATER GOES TO WASTE.

"In periods of excessive or concentrated rainfall, the storage capacity may be exceeded and much water go to waste. Such a condition has several times prevailed in the Croton system during two or three years past. It has been assumed by part of the public press, and maintained by the Aqueduct Commission that if the water which now goes to waste were retained by an increase of storage capacity, the average daily quantity thereby available for the city's use would be so greatly increased as to render resort to other sources unnecessary for many years to come. It is the consensus of opinion of all waterworks engineers of acknowledged standing that it is in the highest degree uneconomical to impound all the flow of any stream, so that no water shall go to waste in times of flood, for the reason that as flood waters are of irregular recurrence and often wide apart in time, the average daily quantity of water which can be obtained from the necessary extensive reservoirs is relatively small, and the relative cost very high. Hence the cost of constructing works for the retention of flood waters is out of all proportion to results attained. To illustrate this: The existing Croton system (which gives a safe yield of 300,000,000 gallons per day, and an extraordinary present yield of about 325,000,000 gallons), has cost about $90,000,000, which includes cost of aqueducts as well as reservoirs. If enough reservoirs were built in the Croton Valley to retain all the water which now goes to waste in wet seasons, the cost for reservoirs alone would probably reach more than the entire cost of the existing system, while the average daily supply would be increased only about 47,000,000 gallons.

"All the engineers who studied the subject agreed as far back as 1903, that the development of the Croton system had reached its economical and sanitary limits; that while more water could readily be impounded, the additional daily supply thereby secured would be uncertain; that the quantity made available would not be sufficient to warrant postponing the construction of adequate works elsewhere; that the cost per million gallons of daily capacity for more reservoirs in the Croton Valley made further development uneconomical and therefore undesirable; and that, therefore, further outlays by the city for the purpose of increasing its water supply should be applied to the construction of an entirely new system, namely, the Catskill system. Moreover, the Aqueduct Commission itself adopted the plans for the existing Croton reservoir on the expressly stated grounds that it would afford all the development of the Croton watershed that was economically desirable. It was therefore commonly expected that with the completion of the Croton dam and some few subsidiary works, the functions of the Aqueduct Commission would be completed and the life of that commission terminated.

"Despite this overwhelming weight of expert opinion that no further works in the Croton Valley were economical or desirable, and the undertaking by the city of the more important Catskill enterprise, which completely superseded the necessity for further development of the Croton system, the Aqueduct Commission has since constructed two additional reservoirs, namely, the Cross River and the Croton Falls, and now propose the construction of a third. The construction of the Cross River and Croton Falls reservoirs was possibly justified as an emergency measure to secure the city against a possible water famine pending the completion of the Catskill system. These reservoirs are to be regarded not as essentially a desirable portion of the Croton system, but as a temporary expedient in the nature of insurance against disaster. As shown above, no such reason justifies the construction of the Patterson reservoir.

APPROVAL OF PLANS ASKED AND REFUSED.

"Chapter 490 of the laws of 1883, the act creating the Aqueduct Commission, regards that body as an instrument for constructing works planned by the Department of Water Supply. It provides that the plans for new works shall be prepared by the Department of Water Supply, perfected in detail by the Aqueduct Commission, and before final adoption must have the approval of the Commissioner of Water Supply. The Aqueduct Commission has asked of the commissioner the approval of these plans, which approval has been refused. Despite this refusal, the commission, by a resolution of date March 23, 1909, has declared that by custom and usage such approval is unnecessary and explicitly states its purpose to proceed regardless of the approval of the Commissioner of Water Supply.

"From the circumstances set forth above, it is obvious that all the needs of the city as to additional water supply will be properly cared for by the new Catskill system, and that such new supply will be available in about four years. The proposed projects of the Aqueduct Commission are therefore wholly unnecessary. Without reference to any additional supply from the Catskill source, it is clear that the consensus of opinion of the most eminent waterworks engineers is against any further outlay by the city for new reservoirs in the Croton Basin, that the proposed Patterson reservoir is undesirable in itself, and that the outlay necessary to construct it will involve a waste of at least three and one-half million dollars of public money, inasmuch as any additional water which will thereby be provided will in effect serve no useful purpose."

DEVELOPMENT OF LONG ISLAND'S NORTH SHORE.

C. B. Sanders, representing Jacob C. Rogers, of No. 18 East 34th st, in the development of the north shore of Long Island in the location of large estates there, showed during the week how the wealthy Manhattanite seemed to be migrating toward Long Island in his search for the picturesque in home sites. Mr. Rogers makes a specialty of shore front estates, his operations extending from Little Neck to Huntington, including Port Washington, Manhassett, Roslyn, Oyster Bay, Locust Valley and Wheatly Hills.

Speaking of the tendency toward this territory Mr. Sanders pointed out that even the Meadowbrook Hunt Club has been shifting the scenes of its courses from Westbury toward the highland, most of the runs now being held in the Piping Rock section, where there is more rolling territory. Citing some instances where estates have been established or are about to be located, in that vicinity, Mr. Sanders pointed out that Stanley Mortimer and H. G. Phipps, the steel man, have their estates near the water along the north shore within the area covered by Mr. Rogers, and that in the Port Washington section Clarence H. Mackay's estate is located. In Roslyn, Great Neck and Little Neck, which are only fifteen miles from 34th st and Fifth av, or a little less than three-quarters of an hour, Howard Gould, William and Isaac Guggenheim and William Bourke Cochran have their estates, and Mrs. Frank Gould has just purchased a large tract near Port Washington on which she expects to establish an estate. In the Oyster Bay section Paul Rainey and C. I. Hudson, the broker, have established extensive homes. The fact that the Long Island Railroad is now double-tracking its line through that section and the additional fact that it will soon electrify the road will, it is said, aid in the development of that section.

IMPROVING LOTS WITH DWELLINGS.

It is apparent to real estate interests hereabouts that there is an increased tendency on the part of vacant lot owners in the outlying districts to improve their holdings by the erection of moderate priced dwellings. This seems to apply to all communities within the 20-mile circle from the City Hall in Manhattan, although distinct evidences of a quickening in this direction are noticeable as well in more remote parts. Many reasons can be assigned for the marked improvement alluded to, but the consensus of opinion points to the local growth of rapid transit as being the most potent factor in bringing about the welcome change. Nor is this condition to be found solely within the commuting zone; on the contrary, it has communicated itself to many of the cities and towns of adjoining States.

In referring to the home building situation in New York the American Contractor observes that while immense, pretentious and costly construction is now being carried on in New York City on a scale that breaks all records, not only of the city in question but of the entire world, while apartment houses are multiplying in number and increasing in size, the home building movement is developing quite a remarkable way. New York, it reasons, has never been a city of homes, the vast majority of its people living in rented homes, hotels, apartment buildings and tenement houses; that the decided improvement within recent years of the two last mentioned classes of abodes has exerted a tendency to keep down genuine home owning even on the part of those possessed of good incomes and large resources. Going further into interesting details, it says:

CONDITIONS FAVORABLE TO BUILD.

"The construction of flat buildings, using the term in its broadest sense, continues in New York, and that without abatement, but in the meantime, more houses, to be ocupied as homes by their owners, are being built, particularly in the suburbs, where land values are still quite low. Conditions for the further development of this house-building movement are at present quite favorable in New York. During the past year, since the advent of the so-called panic in the fall of 1907 in fact, such property has, very generally at least, appreciated in value. The exceptions are chiefly in speculative sections, where the installation of street improvements and public utilities are a matter of the future rather than of the present. In such sections building operations have been deferred to a considerable extent, with the result that land values have somewhat declined. The movement is being encouraged in many ways. The development of rapid transit which is bringing lands but lately only available for farming purposes within comparatively easy reach of the manufacturing and business portions of the city, is making in that direction. Another influence, and that a decided one, is the position now being taken by the great operating real estate companies. Instead of constructing houses for renting purposes, as the rule was a few years ago, they are now educating prospective customers to the buying and building point. In this propaganda they are adducing many arguments which are brought home to those to be influenced."

The arguments advanced above are logical, with the exception of the statement with respect to real estate companies erecting houses for income which, generally speaking, is incorrect. In this regard it may be asserted that the past experience of operating or construction companies has proven conclusively that houses built for renting are not an altogether satisfactory form of investment.

INDUCEMENT TO OWNERSHIP.

One of the greatest inducements to home ownership is the feeling of absolute independence which one can enjoy, and this is being emphasized constantly in innumerable ways. The American Contractor is not slow to appreciate this when it quotes the following from a recent writing by a prominent realty man of this class:

"A most important consideration to the man of family is the sense of security and mental serenity and poise which come to the home owner. Few business men who are very careful in their administrative expenses give consideration to the fact that thirty-three per cent. of the rental paid ordinarily is sufficient to carry all interest, taxes and fixed charges on their places of abode; this meaning that practically sixty-six per cent. of the rent paid might be saved in the home ownership. Coincident with the above are better health conditions invariably brought about in the family by reason of suburban life."

Another good reason for the stimulation in the home building movement is attributable to the disposition of money lending institutions to be more liberal in their accommodations to applicants for building loans.

WHY NOT BUILD TO ORDER?

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

Perhaps one of the most singular conditions exists to-day in the realty world that can be imagined, viz., we see builders erecting large structures throughout the city in many instances on speculation. In other words, they are building with a view to inviting tenants whom they have not in sight at the time of beginning their work. Whereas, upon the other hand, we note mercantile concerns of admitted strength and ability, who are willing to sign leases for a period of from 15 to 21 years, in sections that are unquestioned as to future improvement, vainly seeking to find quarters, desiring to have buildings erected for their sole or partial use.

Some of these tenants, of whom we have personal knowledge, are among the oldest houses of their class in their respective trades. They desire nothing but substantial, plain buildings, such as might be suitable for any other kind of mercantile use and in active and accessible parts of the city.

Why is it that a builder would rather run the risk of putting up structures for tenants unknown to him, when he can build to order and, on the completion of the building, without the loss of a day, begin his income, which is at a rate of from 6 to 8 per cent. net, from the time of taking possession?

I am speaking of practical concrete subjects, which have been called to the attention of our office this spring, in fact, are now knocking at the door.

Builders tell us that they are busy. Some going so far as to say that within the next six weeks to two months they will be refusing contracts. We read on all sides of the activity in the structural steel business and note the advancing price of lumber and building materials, all of which show activity. Surely it is a better proposition for a conservative builder to build for a tenant on an assured income basis than to erect, say apartment houses in sections of the city where pioneer work is ahead of them and they are obliged to seek for tenants.

Are the builders, or are the loaners of builders' money responsible for such a condition as appears to exist?

TITLE COMPANY'S NEW HOME.

The Title Guarantee & Trust Co. has taken possession of its handsome new building on the south side of 149th st, just west of 3d av, in The Bronx. The company has erected from plans by John Philip Voelker, architect, a 3-sty building with a frontage of 50 ft. The second and third stories were rented from the plans to Woods' Business School, for a term of five years.

The company will occupy as its own office, the easterly of the two stores on the ground floor. The office of the company which is in charge of Mr. George A. Love, is now fitted up with separate rooms for closing of titles and contracts, so that all of the work incident to closing a title can be done as well in the Borough of The Bronx as in the company's offices on Broadway. The front of the building is composed almost entirely of plate-glass windows and these, together with the large light courts on either side of the building and the large skylights, make every inch of the interior available for daylight work. The improved "plant" is expected to be a great convenience to real estate men and investors in the northern part of the city.

THE WEEK.

THE market viewed as a whole was rather uninteresting. Inactivity—that was the watchword. Only a small number of sales was reported, though several of importance were included. The only real stumbling block in the way of an active market is impatience. If the present owners of realty will be content to hold on to their possessions higher values will be created, which always means activity. It is a queer state of affairs but a true one nevertheless. The average investor is unwilling to purchase in periods of depression, when prices are low. He almost invariably enters the market when prices are inflated and there is a general rush to "get aboard." If the same calm judgment was used in buying real estate that is employed in ordinary business, far more money would be made, and consequently less dissatisfaction would result.

There are many sections of the city which have not had their normal increase in values of late years. Investors should seek these parts of the city and a handsome profit is sure to accrue if patience is practiced. As an example the old Greenwich village until recently was for years left absolutely alone. To be sure there was a serious stumbling block in Trinity corporation, which owned large tracts of property. When this corporation announced its willingness to sell some of its holdings, a demand for property all through the section was created, the result being a material advance in values.

The announcement of the signing of a contract between the New York Central Railroad Co. and the New Haven Railroad Co. on one side and the Merchants and Manufacturers' Exchange on the other was of prime importance. It is announced that twin buildings, 12 stories in height will be erected on the site which takes in the two square blocks bounded by Lexington av and Depew pl, 46th and 48th sts. It is said that the transaction involves, all told, about $13,000,000, the buildings being estimated to cost about $6,500,000. Architecturally the new structures will conform with the new Grand Central Station, which will materially add to the beauty of that section of the city.

There were several interesting leases closed, including that of the Art Building, located at No. 1418 Broadway, adjoining the northeast cor of 39th st. This property has a frontage of 25.7 ft. on Broadway, the northerly line being 114.2 ft., the easterly line 24.8, and the southerly line 107.3. Abutting and having a frontage on 39th st is the Parker Building. The Audubon Apartment house adjoins on the south and the Empire Theatre, with a frontage on 40th st adjoins on the north. The structure is 7 stories in height and the building has a depth of 104 ft. The lease is for a period of 114 years, and the aggregate rental is about $1,000,000.

In addition to the foregoing lease the property including Nos. 14, 16 and 18 Wall st, known as the Stevens Building, was leased to the Bankers' Trust Co. for a term of 21 years with renewals for a period of 84 years. The aggregate rental is estimated at $7,000,000. A new 16-sty structure will be erected on the site next May, when the present lease on the structure expires. The present building, which is 7 stories in height surrounds the Gillender Building at the northwest cor of Wall and Nassau sts, running around it in the shape of an "L". It faces the Sub-Treasury at No. 3 Wall st. The Wall st frontage is 69 ft., while the frontage on Nassau st is 28.5 ft. It has been stated that the new building will cost $1,500,000. While nothing definite could be learned as to the terms of the lease, still it is understood that the rental is on a net 4 per cent. basis, the property having been appraised at $2,000,000. This would mean an annual rental of about $80,000 or a total of $6,400,000 for the entire term.

Another lease worthy of notice was that of Nos. 514 and 516 West 33d st. The term of this lease is 21 years, and the statement is made by interested parties that the sum involved is $100,000. It is located in the Pennsylvania section. The lessees have decided to erect a 6-sty loft building on the property. The upper portion of the Hotel Bartholdi, located at the southeast cor of Broadway and 23d st, was also disposed of by lease to Louis Markel, proprietor of the Hotel Normandie. The Childs Dairy Co. secured control of this property some time since and are the lessors in the present deal. The hotel will be run on the same plan as the Normandie.

THE AUCTION MARKET

AT THE stand of Samuel Marx the 3-sty loft and store building, No. 256 6th av, located 70.7 ft. north of 16th st, 21.5x65, was sold. The amount due on the judgment was $9,441.27; taxes, etc., $830. This sale was the result of an action brought by M. N. Valentine against E. R. Heyzer. The property was purchased by the plaintiff for $83,200. At the stand of Charles A. Verrian a 7-sty loft and store, building No. 117 Lewis st, located about 250 ft. north of Stanton st, 25x100, was knocked down to George Kocher for $36,186. The amount due on the judgment was $10,111.61; taxes and other charges amounting to $742.47. The property is subject to a trial mortgage of $25,000.

The two 6-sty tenements, Nos. 542-552 East 82d st, were sold at the stand of Joseph P. Day. These houses are 40x102.2 each, and the sale is the result of an action brought by Leo Levy, et al., against F. H. Nadler, et al. The former house was subject to a judgment of $17,860.94; taxes, etc., $1,881.10, and was subject to a mortgage of $32,000. This property was bought in by the plaintiff for $45,866. The latter house also went to the plaintiff for $47,866. The judgment in this case was $17,837.04; taxes, etc., $1,181, also subject to a mortgage of $32,000.

Bryan L. Kennelly sold No. 360 9th av, a 4-sty tenement and store, 18.6x100, to John Zimmerer, of Seward, Neb., for $20,200. This sale was held by the administrators of the estate of Mathias Bach. At the stand of Samuel Goldsticker, No. 431 East 72d st, a 4-sty tenement was sold to Rocco Russo for $13,500. The amount due was $3,612; taxes and other charges amounting to $823.27. Property was subject to a mortgage of $9,000. Herbert A. Sherman sold No. 237 East 81st st, a 4-sty stone front tenement, 25x102.2. Mr. Isman has the theatre property under a long lease. The property in the present deal was held at $210,000, and if this price was paid it would make a record price for this character of property of $175 per sq. ft. Mr. Isman took possession of the Broadway Theatre property a few months ago, having closed negotiations for it in March, 1908. In December, 1907, when it became known that he was seeking the property, it was reported that his purpose was to acquire the whole block as a site for a department store. At that time he stated that he intended to erect on the site a skyscraper business building. The theatre is now under lease to the Shubert interests for 10 years, and will be converted into a big music hall.

The buyer is the firm of Black, Starr & Frost, jewelers, who will raze the present building, together with 4 West 48th st, a 4-sty and basement dwelling, which was also included in the deal. The size of the latter plot is 25x100.5. It is announced that the new owners will occupy the new building. The corner house has figured in several deals during the past 10 months. The price paid for the combined plot, the brokers say, was more than $700,000. The Cook property has been one of the best indexes of the increasing demand for 5th av property in the gradually extending retail section. It was purchased by Mr. Cook from Columbia College, in 1894, for $205,000, and Mrs. Boardman's lot was valued at the same time at $55,000, showing an advance in land values since 1894 of $310,000. In October last Mrs. Cook sold her property to Andrew J. Connick, Martin D. Fink and Max Marx for $440,000. They resold it a few weeks later to George G. Heye, a client of Albert B. Ashforth, for $480,000. Mr. Ashforth sold it for Mr. Heye to J. D. Tichenhauser, who contracted to pay $550,000, but did not take title. The Collegiate Reformed Protestant Dutch Church occupies a plot 100x200 at the northeast cor of 5th av and 48th st.

$1,000,000 Deal Near Herald Square.

L. T. Alton, president of the Herald Square Mortgage Corporation, closed a lease on the property 1418 Broadway, and known as the Art Building, for 114 years, at an aggregate rental reported to be approximately $1,000,000. This property adjoins the cor of 39th st, and connects with the Parker House. The property is at present under a 10-year lease. The extension is for 105 years, a long period when the prominence of the location is considered. The building itself has had an unusual history under its present lease, having been first in the hands of Felix Isman, the Philadelphia operator. Mr. Isman sold his interest to Harry Levey, the cleanser, who in turn assigned his interest to Mr. Alton. He immediately remodeled and improved the building at an expense of about $60,000, and turned it into an attractive office building, introducing several innovations, improving the appearance and adding comfort to the interior. The space in almost the entire building has been taken by tenants whose business is mainly professional or with professional clients. That any building on this stretch of Broadway could have been secured on a long lease like this one for 114 years, and at such a rental as $1,000,000 caused much comment among real estate men. What enhanced value will attach to this particular leasehold during the next 25 years is problematical, but conservative operators estimate that the property at the end of that time will readily sell for the balance of the lease for $1,000,000, leaving them about 90 years to run. Property values along this stretch of Broadway have steadily advanced 10% a year during the past decade, and with the new 42d st McAdoo tunnel, the opening of the Pennsylvania station at 33d st, and the completion of the Grand Central station at 42d st, the greatest arteries of the city's trade will eventually be opened here, and this stretch of Broadway, between Herald Square and Times Square, will have as many big department stores as it now has hotels and theatres.

The Bankers Trust Co. Leases Stevens Building on Wall Street for 84 Years and Will Erect 16-Story Structure.

The Bankers' Trust Co., at present located at 7 Wall st, leased 14, 16 and 18 Wall st, a 7-sty structure known as the Stevens Building. The company has obtained a ground lease of the property for a period of 21 years and renewals for 84 years. The price paid could not be definitely ascertained, though it is understood that 4% on a valuation of $2,000,000 is the basis. This would aggregate a sum about $6,400,000. A new building, 16 stories in heights, is going to be erected on the site. This property forms an "L" around the Gillender Building, at the northwest cor of Wall and Nassau sts. The frontages of the property are 69 ft. and 28.5 ft. on Wall and Nassau sts, respectively. The present building was erected in 1880. In 1840 Joseph Sampson purchased it and it has never been transferred out of the family since. The present lease was secured from Mrs. Adele Livingston Sampson, through Henry P. Davidson, of J. P. Morgan & Co. He negotiated the transaction as chairman of the executive committee of the trust company. Frederick H. Allen, a son-in-law of Mrs. Sampson, who has resided in Paris for some years, was her representative. The trust company will occupy the basement and ground floor in the new building, which will be fitted up as one of the finest banking rooms in the city, with lofty ceilings and a floor space of 65 by 115 ft. In its new home the trust company will have as it neighbors the 20-sty office building of the Hanover National Bank, the Astor Building on the west, running from Wall to Pine sts, and the slim 13-sty Gillender Building on the east; the First National Bank Building, the American Surety Co.'s Building, the New York Real Estate Security Co., and the Schermerhorn Building. The erection of the new building will mark the third important real estate change that has occurred in the financial district in the last six months. The southeast cor of Cedar and Nassau sts was recently purchased by the Fourth National Bank for about $1,400,000 from the Germania Life Ins. Co., and more recently still the Bank of Montreal acquired the 11-sty building at 64 and 66 Wall st for a sum reported as $800,000. No. 1 Wall st, only a short distance away from the Stevens Building, was sold a few years ago at $4 per square inch, the highest price ever paid for real estate in this city. The unusual phenomenon of the erection of so large a building by a financial institution on leased ground is assigned by brokers as due to the prohibitively high price at which property in this block is held for sale. The Bankers' Trust Co. was organized in 1903, and has a capital of $1,000,000. Edmund C. Converse is its president, and among its directors are Stephen Baker, Samuel G. Bayne, Edwin M. Bulkley, Frederick T. Haskell, A. Barton Hepburn, Thomas W. Lamont, Albert H. Wiggin, and Samuel Woolverton.

REAL ESTATE RECORDS

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

4th.—The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

5th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

6th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

7th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

8th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1908.

9th.—T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torrens System.

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M" occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

July 2, 3, 6, 7 and 8.

THE NEW BUILDING CODE which passed the Board of Aldermen during the past week is in certain respects an improvement on any code of building regulations as yet enacted in New York; but at the same time it arouses the opposition of the great majority of people interested in New York real estate and building. This opposition is justified; and can be justified, quite apart from the injustice which it works upon certain types and methods of concrete construction. The fundamental complaint is that it will increase the cost of building in this city without, at the same time, doing anything effective to diminish the fire risks. In view of the validity of this complaint, the improvements which have been made in certain sections of the code avail nothing. The fact remains that building will be more expensive, while the city will be to a very small extent better protected from a disastrous conflagration. New Yorkers will have to pay more, but they will get nothing really worth having for their money. All the actual and fundamental problems in respect to the height of buildings and the danger of fire-contagion have been avoided, and the net result will be a code which will demand another drastic revision within a few years. We doubt, however, whether New York will ever get a satisfactory building code out of a board that is so subject to underground influences as the Board of Aldermen; and it is certain that no satisfactory code will be passed by any local legislative body until expert opinion understands better what the real object of building regulations should be. The real object of a building code should be to make good construction as cheap as possible, whereas the object of code makers in the past has been to penalize a builder just as much as they can in case he has to make his building fireproof. The consequence is that practical builders and the makers of building codes are always at cross purposes and that no loyal co-operation can be obtained in the interest of good construction. The further consequence is, as we all know, graft, graft, graft! It is all as usual; but the usual unfortunality is based upon a fundamental division of interest and point of view between the experts and the practical builders, and therein the grafters find their profit.

THE OPENING OF THE M'ADOO TUNNELS, terminating at Greenwich and Cortlandt streets, will unquestionably have a most important effect upon the real estate situation in Manhattan and the whole metropolitan district. Hitherto the business men who lived in New Jersey and came to business every day in New York have been obliged to sacrifice a certain amount of time in return for the pleasures and advantages of suburban residences, and the consequence has been that many families continued to live in Manhattan who would under ordinary conditions have preferred a house in a convenient suburb. The new tunnels will diminish by a good many minutes the advantage which New York building sites have enjoyed over those of New Jersey; and the consequence will undoubtedly be a certain shifting of population. Not only will a larger proportion of the annual increase of inhabitants seek homes on the other side of the Hudson, but for many years there will be a certain migration of families now living in Manhattan and the Bronx to Hudson and Essex counties. This migration will have a certain effect upon residence property in Manhattan. It will not affect tenement house sections, or the more expensive land on which private dwellings and high-grade apartment houses can be built, but it will diminish the demand for the medium-priced flat. Just how far the migration will go cannot be predicted in advance; but the certainty that it will take place should make builders cautious about erecting very many new tenements of that class. On the other hand, the new tunnels will, of course, benefit business property in the financial district and in the newer mercantile district. It will mean that a larger proportion of New Yorkers will waste less time and energy than they do at present in daily traveling, and that they will live under pleasanter and more wholesome surroundings. Their business efficiency should, consequently, be increased. Of course, Manhattan will lose a good deal of business because the money these people spend upon living will not go into the pockets of New York tradesmen; but even this loss will be mitigated by the very condition which brings it about. The mere fact of improved communication under the Hudson will encourage the residents of New Jersey to spend more money in the larger shops and places of amusement uptown. In this way the opening of the downtown tunnels will indirectly contribute to the prosperity of the retail and theatre districts. The only business neighborhood in Manhattan which may suffer from the trolley tunnels is the older mercantile section. Business men working in that vicinity will not derive any advantage from the improved means of communication; and this fact may swell the migration of wholesale firms to new locations farther uptown.

VICE-PRESIDENT REA, of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, believes that the corporation he represents has a grievance against the city, because nothing has been done to provide the new Pennsylvania Terminal with subway connections. Although the Pennsylvania company has been at work seven years and has spent more than $100,000,000 in establishing its terminals in Manhattan, not a definite step has been taken to give its 300,000 daily patrons any opportunity of spreading over the city. Neither was Chairman Willcox, of the Public Service Commission, able to make a wholly convincing reply to this criticism. It is true, of course, that a Seventh avenue subway route was laid out, and was submitted to public competition, and it is true that the city officials cannot be blamed for the fact that the Interborough Company refused to bid. But the attitude of the Public Service Commission since this fiasco has been wholly inimical to a Seventh avenue subway. It has persisted in laying out a Broadway-Lexington avenue route, which merely duplicated the existing subway south of Forty-second street, and which increased very much the difficulty of obtaining a bidder for a Seventh avenue subway. The Interborough Company is willing to construct an extension south from Forty-second street under Seventh avenue, but only on condition that it can also construct a subway north from Forty-second street under Lexington avenue. If consequently the Public Service Commission insisted on its Broadway-Lexington avenue route, the Seventh avenue subway was apparently indefinitely postponed. The Interborough Company would not build it without a Lexington avenue extension as well, and no other bidder would be likely to appear until the time came for a new West Side route running the whole length of the island. It did look, consequently, as if the Public Service Commission had made its plans, as Mr. Rea charged, without any consideration of the needs of the patrons of the new Pennsylvania Terminal.

WITHIN the last few days, however, the situation in respect to a Seventh avenue subway has altered for the better. It is now stated in the daily journals that the contracting syndicate that wants to bid on the Broadway-Lexington avenue-South Brooklyn route is prepared also to bid upon a Seventh avenue subway. The route they proposed would run from Canal street and Broadway, where it would connect with the Manhattan Bridge and the financial district, up Hudson street and Seventh avenue to Thirty-fourth street, where it would turn east and connect with the Lexington avenue. There can be no doubt that this proposal, in case it actually becomes substantial, very much increases the strength of the position of the Bradley-Gaffney syndicate. The system which they propose to build would then be tolerably complete, and would meet all the more pressing needs for subway construction in Manhattan. Moreover, their route would have certain peculiar advantages over any route which has as yet become a matter of serious discussion. It would, for instance, give the dense population of the upper East Side a much better connection with the Pennsylvania Terminal and the retail section than it could get under any other plan, and it would have the additional advantage of connecting Brooklyn with the middle West Side of Manhattan by the line over the Manhattan Bridge. On the other hand, it would have certain serious disadvantages, compared to the alternative proposals of the Interborough Company. It would tend to make a Seventh avenue subway merely an episode in a system that was really intended for the benefit of other parts of the city. Instead of providing for two longitudinal subways, one on the east and one on the west side, it would substitute a complicated system, under two managements, containing two subways north of Thirty-fourth street and south of Canal street, and three subways between Canal and Thirty-fourth street, and these subways would follow indirect and devious routes. Moreover, under this new proposal the whole upper west side would have no direct means of connections with the Pennsylvania district. Unquestionably the Interborough Company's plan remains the one which offers the maximum of advantage with the minimum of cost, and which would contribute best to the development of a comprehensive and well-balanced subway system. At the same time, as we have said, the repeated willingness of the Bradley-Gaffney syndicate to construct this additional line does strengthen its position, and the wonder still increases as to the real names and resources of this bidder. The Seventh avenue subway would cost an additional $25,000,000. Who are these men, who can promise so confidently to spend $125,000,000 upon new subways? Where is the money to come from? It seems to the Record and Guide that these questions should be answered?

GOOD TIMES have come again in most of the operative building trades. The measure is not yet full for some of the allied industries, but business is flowing in fast and will get around to everybody presently. All the mechanical trades are now busy, and the chief executive of the Consolidated Board of Delegates assures the Record and Guide that some few cannot get sufficient help. Early in the Spring the same authority predicted that, with a large number of operations being put under contract simultaneously, there would be a congestion of work in the summer, under a natural course of events. The tendency of affairs now is toward a verification of this opinion, and in that crisis some jobs may have to stand awhile if working forces here are not reinforced from outside. Reports from other cities is that their mechanics will be well engaged also. Out of a total of fifty important cities, representing all sections of the country, statistics of plans filed during the month of June exhibit an average gain of 19 per cent. in the estimated cost of the projects. Only thirteen out of the fifty showed a loss, as compared with the corresponding month last year. Here in New York the record of the current year so far is more than 100 per cent. ahead of last year's for the corresponding period. As this is midsummer, new plans are coming out less rapidly, but actual construction activities are expanding every week. Wages are immovable under the arbitration plan, but the prices of material, which have been very moderate, are now in the ascending scale—structural steel for example. It is just three years since the first signs of the great depression in business were noticed by the real estate and building interests. Building money was getting tight, and they had to slack up in their activities. They thought that the money market would improve after awhile, but it kept getting worse for them. This was more than a year before the crash in Wall Street, and it illustrates what a truthful business weather vane the building trades are. The next time the bottom drops out of the material market as it did three years ago this summer, get out your umbrellas, for it is going to rain.

RELATIVE COST OF FIREPROOF CONSTRUCTION.—Assurances from two architects of note within a few weeks that, unfettered by red tape, they could erect substantial fireproof buildings for within five per cent. of the cost of ordinary construction, have arrested general attention. Mr. Flagg frankly told the Code Commission that in his opinion as a long-practiced architect some of the laws required too much. That is, too large an expenditure. ("Too much" is New York's great failing.) Investors and operators were surprised to hear that the difference between adequate fireproof and ordinary construction is really so narrow. Certain important elements in fireproof construction have had a rapid development, and certain materials entering into this kind of construction have been reduced in cost. Mr. Flagg did not specify any particular system of fireproofing, but other architects and engineers have since stated that it is possible under several different systems or combinations of systems to build structures in which the fire hazard is practically negligible at a cost within ten per cent. of that of the slow-burning type. A parallel statement from the Bronx building bureau, that the statistics of the plans filed in that borough show little difference between the cost of frame and of brick dwellings, indicates that this proximity of relative costs extends to all classes of buildings. Mr. Flagg's contention seems to be that building costs under the New York code are unnatural, and he instances the "wind-bracing" fetich as an example.

UNATTRACTIVE PROPOSITIONS.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

I have read with great interest the letter of Mr. De Selding which appeared in your last issue. During the past thirteen years of activity as architect and builder, and incidentally landlord, I have threshed out scores of propositions made to me by brokers of good standing who wanted business buildings erected for responsible tenants. In each and every case the rents offered by these tenants were too low to make the proposition attractive to a builder; the rent offered being invariably a net rental of 5 per cent on the appraised value of the ground and 6 per cent on the cost of the building.

The tenants generally have very fixed ideas as to the cost of construction of business buildings, ideas chiefly gathered from experience as grocers, skirt manufacturers and printers. They know more about the cost of buildings than the men regularly engaged in the business, and it is surprising that they do not go in the building business, seeing how cheaply they could build, or think they could. Furthermore, they generally consider themselves so responsible that they should not be asked for any security on a long-term lease. There is no need of going into detailed figures—the facts are too plain. A builder has to pay 4½ per cent. for a three-year mortgage which, with brokerage, really amounts to 5¼ or 5½ per cent per annum; his building loan money costs 6 per cent.

By what subtle process of mathematics a man can pay out 6 per cent on money which earns 6 per cent, and still have a balance of profit left, is beyond ordinary imagination.

The builders and loaners of building money are not responsible for these conditions of which Mr. De Selding writes, but the fault is entirely with the so-called high-class responsible tenants who think that their money is greener than the ordinary man's.

I have no doubt that many such propositions are knocking at brokers' doors, and I feel equally sure that they will continue to knock for a long time to come.

TREMONT, AQUEDUCT, OGDEN AND SEDGWICK AVENUES, WEST SIDE.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

When you published your "Opportunity Number" I sent you my opinion of the district that spreads in a fan shape on the Bronx side of the beautiful Washington Bridge. The recent start of apartment building operations on Tremont, Aqueduct and Ogden avs (and adjacent streets) bears out my judgment of the splendid opportunities which were and are still afforded to bright and intelligent builders and operators.

The Ogden sale dispersed the lots in a panic year; and while some of the fancy parcels sold at fair prices, the average was very low for property so accessible to the 181st st subway. The West Side for values is always the growing and staying side of this city. Nature has done more, proportionately, for this West Side than for the Lower West Side, as the property lies on high ground, with excellent drainage, &c., and with wide streets.

A general building movement may also be looked for on Sedgwick and Undercliff avs, the former for business purposes and the latter for apartments. Tremont av, west of Jerome av to the Harlem River, will be a leading thoroughfare; in fact, the avenue is nearly completed to the river. Ogden, Tremont and Sedgwick avs have the best trolley facilities, too. The class of people seen in the surface roads is unusually good, as the lines lead to the New York University, the Catholic Home (whose trustees shrewdly selected land of coming great value) and other large institutions.

I again offer the prophecy that the district above alluded to has an immediate possibility second to none—IF FIRST-CLASS HOUSES ARE BUILT. J. M. L.

BUSINESS BUILDINGS ON MADISON AVENUE.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

The building at the northwest corner of 38th st and Madison av will not be an office building, but is planned to accommodate tenants who desire all-light loft space at considerably lower rates than can be obtained on the same street west of Fifth av for inside space.

Plans for an apartment house on this site were completed, but have been abandoned for the reason that it was impossible to get sufficient ceiling height for a 10-sty building, Madison av at this point being only 75 ft. wide, and as an apartment house can only be erected to a height of once and a half the width of the avenue, the ceilings would hardly be 10 ft. in the clear. Three corners on Madison av near this property are about to be changed from residences to business buildings, and I feel quite certain that a business building on this site will be a far better investment than an apartment house. Yours truly,

FREDERICK JOHNSON.

AMENDED BUILDING CODE IN THE BALANCE

Acting Mayor McGowan Will Hear Objections Next Wednesday—Some of the Changes Made in the Second Report—Criticisms From the Minority Committee—Other Representative Opinions of the Ordinance

IF Acting Mayor McGowan so wills it, there will be a new Building Code in town in a few days. The responsibility was put upon the Acting Mayor by the Board of Aldermen on Tuesday, when the majority report of the Building Committee was passed by a majority of ONE. In Committee the decision had turned on ONE vote also. The deciding vote was 40 in favor and 38 against.

At the last the question turned mainly on party lines. The Democratic organization in Manhattan Borough, representing the majority of the Board, carried the day. The Brooklyn Democratic organization voted with the Republicans for the minority code. These were the general lines of division, but Alderman Doull was a notable exception. President Cromwell and President Gresser voted with the minority, and President Ahearn and President Coler with the majority.

The opposing forces were led by Alderman Kenneally and Alderman Doull. Irrespective of their politics and personal preferences regarding the code, both men exhibited during the long campaign qualities with which any statesman might wish to be equipped in a similar fight. All the way through it was a hard fight. Mr. Kenneally was patient under great provocation, and Mr. Doull unfaltering in his courage and loyalty to what he considered his duty.

It was the regular weekly session of the Board of Aldermen. Two reports came from the Building Committee, the majority report being presented by Alderman Kenneally, and the minority report by Alderman Doull. The clerk read the communication accompanying the minority's revision, and the first vote was on the adoption of the minority report, and finally upon the adoption of the report of the majority. Many of the aldermen thought it necessary to explain their vote, and some spoke on both roll calls. The detailed vote on the majority report follows:

A PUBLIC HEARING.

Mayor McClellan is absent from the city, and the next regular meeting of the Board of Aldermen will not be held until September 15, but a special meeting will be held next week to fix the tax rate. Under these circumstances the Acting Mayor, Hon. Patrick F. McGowan, will have more time in which to consider the code than is usual. Before passing on it he will hold a public hearing —next Wednesday morning. He was inclined at first to think that there had been hearings enough, but he has been showered with protests against the code and with appeals from architects, builders and contractors for an opportunity to be heard. Apart from this hearing, it is understood that he will also have a conference with the Corporation Counsel and with a number of representative architects and engineers.

It is probable that the new code will be vigorously wielded as a political campaign document. Both the Citizens' Union and the Committee of One Hundred have issued statements. The former attacked the provision vesting extraordinary powers in the superintendent of buildings. The Committee of One Hundred says it shows the need of a non-political administration.

Allan Robinson, President of the Allied Real Estate Interests, has sent an open letter to architects, engineers, contractors and real estate operators, urging them to write to Acting Mayor McGowan to ask him to veto the code. Numerous trade organizations are holding meetings. Representatives of the reinforced concrete construction companies, cinder concrete fireproofing companies and the metal reinforcement manufacturing companies, met on Wednesday in the rooms of the Building Trades Employers' Association. They contend that the new code will not only destroy the business of over thirty companies engaged in the city in this class of fireproof construction, but will throw out of employment over 15,000 skilled union laborers.

A special meeting of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects was held on Thursday, and a general meeting of the Building Trades Employers' Association on Friday, to protest against the code.

THE AMENDED CODE.

A great number of recommendations were made to the Building Committee to amend provisions in the first Majority Report. At eight public hearings representatives of many interests, trades and societies affected by and concerned in the revision presented pleas and protests, and between times many written briefs were forwarded to the committee. Some of these suggestions were incorporated in the minority code, which failed, and a number in the Majority Report, which is now the only one under consideration.

THE BOARD OF REGISTRATION.

The first change of importance noticed in comparing the Amended Code with the original is in Section 6, where it is provided that the Board of Registration shall consist of but THREE members instead of five, as specified in the first revision. The power of appointment and removal given to the Superintendent of Buildings by the first revision is eliminated in the second. The members of the Board of Registration will now consist of one architect, one engineer and one mason builder. The Master Carpenters asked for the representation of every trade on this board, if the city fathers were determined to have such a board, but, in accord with the Building Trades Employers' Association as a whole, they could not see the necessity or propriety for licensing the various building trades.

Hereafter, by this ordinance every master builder, every architect, every engineer engaged in the construction of buildings, and every erector of steel and iron work, must register. In other words, he must get licensed, if he can prove his competency. There are a number of law questions involved in this new revision, and this is one of them. The Building Trades Employers' Association, through its legal counsel, contends that the Board of Aldermen has no power to license trades.

The Building Trades Employers stated also that the definition of the word "APPROVED," as used in the Code, with reference to materials, should be amended by adding after the words "Superintendent of Buildings," the words "AND THE BOARD OF EXAMINERS." The recommendation has not been followed.

POWERS AND DUTIES OF THE SUPERINTENDENT.

Section 8, relating to the powers and duties of the Superintendent of Buildings, is unchanged except in one particular. Subdivision 9 originally contained these words: "WHEN IT IS CLAIMED THAT AN EQUALLY GOOD AND MORE DESIRABLE FORM OF CONSTRUCTION CAN BE EMPLOYED IN ANY SPECIFIC CASE, or where there are practical difficulties in the way of carrying out the strict letter of this Code," etc. The words printed in capital letters have been stricken out of the amended report. The change is very important.

The clause which has been eliminated gave entire power to the Superintendent of Buildings to say what materials and what form of construction may be used in any particular building. It empowered the Building Superintendent with authority entirely different with what he had before and one which was entirely contrary to the provisions of the Charter which specifically provide what the Superintendent of Buildings shall do, for Section 410 of the Charter specifically provides that the Superintendent shall see that the Building Code is strictly complied with, unless there are practical difficulties in the way, in which case he may permit a variation. Section 411 of the Charter provides that the Superintendent must in all other cases see that the Building Code is strictly complied with, and if any dispute should arise in respect to (1) the matter of construction or materials to be used, or (2) if it should be claimed that the rules and regulations, or provisions of law, do not apply, or (3) an equally good or more desirable form of construction is being employed, THEN THE OWNER MAY APPEAL TO THE BOARD OF EXAMINERS. In other words, subdivision 9 of Section 8 originally gave to the Superintendent all the power that the Charter gave him in Section 410 and, in addition, gave him all the power that is given by the Charter in Section 411 to the Board of Examiners.

Mr. Butler, of the firm of Eidlitz & Hulse, counsel for the Building Trades Employers' Association, pointed out this particular antagonism between the Charter and the Code, and evidently the commissioners have been advised that they were in error in this respect.

Mr. Lawrence Veiller, a high authority on building laws, discovered other particulars in which the code makers had misinterpreted the Charter. (See Record and Guide June 19.) Mr. Veiller called attention to the fact that the Legislature, in this Charter, gave the Superintendent power to vary or modify certain rules and regulations of the PRESIDENT OF THE BOROUGH. This is a very different thing from modifying the Building Code. Also the power to modify the provisions of "THIS CHAPTER," namely the chapter of the Charter dealing with the Building Department, which is a very different thing from the Building Code; and also the power (and the exact language should be marked and noted with great care) to modify or vary any EXISTING law or ordinance, but this only under certain well defined, limited conditions. The Charter went into effect January 1, 1902.

CERTIFICATE OF OCCUPANCY.

Section 14, relating to certificates of occupancy, is unchanged in the amended Code. It was contended by the Building Trade Employers' Association that the entire section should be stricken out, for the alleged reason that it opened too great a field for arbitrary power and unfair advantage without corresponding benefit. It was said that it is rare that any difficulty has been experienced from the premature occupancy of any building.

If the Building Committee would not strike out the whole section, then the builders asked that the word "may" in the second subdivision be changed to "shall," so as to direct the Superintendent of Buildings to issue a permit for the occupancy of a portion of any building, provided that portion has been completed according to law, and its use would not endanger life, limb or property. As has been said, the Committee has made no change. In similar cases the courts have held that the word "may" has the effect of the word "must," but the cases had to be taken to court.

HEIGHT OF REINFORCED CONCRETE CONSTRUCTION.

In Section 17 the height of reinforced concrete buildings, limited to 75 ft. in the first revision, is changed to 85 in the second. The concrete interests strongly urged the committee to put no limitation on the height of reinforced concrete. Professor Burr, of Columbia University, in a public statement, says that under proper design there is no need for a limit of any kind on this class of buildings, and that already buildings of reinforced concrete have been reared in this city to a height of 150 ft.

FIRE LIMITS.

For the Borough of Manhattan there is no change from the first revision in the fire limits. Marble Hill is the only part of the borough left outside of the limits.

In the Bronx the line starts at 161st st and Harlem River and runs easterly. Practically the existing lines remain.

LIMITS OF AREA.

In Section 20, subdivision 8, where it was stated in the original Code that buildings which occupy corner lots fronting on three or more streets may occupy the entire lot area, the amended report inserts in parenthesis the words "except theaters, opera houses, tenement houses and buildings of Class C."

For the last three subdivisions of Section 20 (Nos. 9, 10 and 11) five new subdivisions have been substituted, the effect of which is to make more clear what was intended by the original sections.

OPENINGS IN FIRE WALLS.

The Employers' Association asked that the fourth subdivision of Section 21 be amended so as to leave no question but that there may be more openings in fire walls than would total eighty square feet, but the Code makers instead of complying, have consolidated the last four paragraphs into two and make them clear without reducing the restrictions.

ENCLOSURES FOR STAIRWAYS.

Section 28 is amended by omitting the requirement for an enclosure for stairways on the entrance floor.

OUT GOES THE PATENTED STANDPIPES.

In Section 32 the provision for a standpipe having a nozzle which can be operated and the stream therefrom directed from the street level has been eliminated.

VICTORY FOR THE FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The Code Commissioners also backed water in the matter of authority over auxiliary fire equipment. The provision for an Auxiliary Fire Equipment Bureau, under the authority of the Superintendent of Buildings, is stricken out, and in subdivision 11 the words "Fire Department" is substituted for the "Superintendent of Buildings."

The Building Trades Employers' Association asked that Section 36 be amended so as to permit the use of cinder concrete for covering cellar floors, but the Committee has made no change.

CEMENT AND CEMENT MORTAR.

Section 62, relating to cement and cement mortar has been entirely rewritten. Tests are prescribed for both Portland and natural cement, sand and cement mortar.

WALLS.

Congressman Calder, of Brooklyn, and in fact, the builders of the city, asked that Section 108 be changed so as to permit of brick walls of one story, when eight inches thick, to be carried up to a height of twenty feet, for 1-sty and basement extensions, to dwellings. No change has been made in this respect.

Brooklyn builders especially desired that the present regulations for the building of dwelling houses for private families, and for two-family houses, continue in effect. For years, it has been sufficient for all practical purposes for the side walls and partitions of these buildings to be eight inches in thickness, but now the side walls must be twelve inches. This provision will greatly increase the cost of one and two-family houses, and will affect Brooklyn more than any other borough.

The Building Trades Employers' Association asked that Section 115 be so amended as to permit the use of wood floors, sleepers, interior doors, sash trim, base chair rail and picture mouldings in store and loft buildings as are permitted in office buildings over one hundred feet high, but no change is made.

CINDER CONCRETE.

It is generally recognized among architects and builders that the new Building Code, as it goes to the Mayor for his approval, is a "compromise code." That is, the code recommended by a majority of the Building Code Revision Commission was altered, after a series of public hearings, in accordance with some of the demands of the concrete interests.

These alterations, in the opinion of the advocates of the Majority Code, should remove all the objections that were based on supposed discriminations against concrete. Even the experts who were most emphatic in their assertions of the value of cinder concrete as a fireproofing material, said that the cinders should be anthracite cinders, clean and free from refuse. In amending the Code, the Building Committee of the Board of Aldermen extended the field in which cinder concrete might be used, but stipulated that the cinders must be of the right sort.

The amended Code specifies that only "clean anthracite steam boiler cinders" must be used in cinder concrete construction. At the same time, the provision limiting the height of buildings in which cinder concrete may be used has been stricken out. In effect, the amended Code says to builders: "You may use cinder concrete, but it must be good cinder concrete."

INCREASED COST OF BUILDING.

Both Mr. Rudolph P. Miller and Mr. Charles H. Israels state that it is rather difficult to give a definite opinion at this time in relation to the added cost of construction made necessary by the requirements of the Code, particularly in view of the fact that while they are familiar with the Original Majority Report they do not pretend to be thoroughly familiar with the Amended Majority Report.

Mr. Miller states that in his opinion THE PERCENTAGE OF INCREASE IN THE COST OF FIREPROOF BUILDINGS UNDER THE NEW CODE WILL BE ABOUT 3 PER CENT, over that required by the existing Code, and that about 2 per cent of this increase can be properly attributed to the increase in fireproofing.

Mr. Israels made the following statement to the Record and Guide: "In my opinion the cost of fireproof buildings under the Majority Report as passed by the Board of Aldermen will be increased about 10 to 12 per cent over the existing conditions. In my opinion there would be AN INCREASE IN THE COST OF FIREPROOFING OF ABOUT 20 PER CENT upon the assumption that the prices for hard tile are likely to be raised, and considering also the mandatory requirement as to the spacing of the beams. On the other hand, certain reductions will be permitted on account of the decrease in thickness of the exterior walls, which in my opinion should bring the total increase down to 10 PER CENT.

—A lumber dealer said: "I have been in the business for forty years and have watched the markets very closely, but I have yet to see the tariff on lumber have any effect on the price of it. Supply and demand does that."

SUMMARY OF THE MINORITY CODE.

POINTS WHERE THE TWO CODES DIFFER, AND CRITICISM OF CERTAIN PROVISIONS.

THE minority members of the Building Committee, namely, Aldermen R. S. Doull, John D. Gunther, G. A. Colgan, Jacob J. Velten, a Robert F. Downey, in presenting an ordinance also entitled "The Building Code," said in some introductory remarks thereto:

The object of preparing a revision of the building laws of the City of New York is to change the laws to meet the requirements of our time. The city is building up so rapidly that further and better restrictions must be made to protect its buildings against destruction by fire. The building code as presented to this Board by a majority of the Committee on Buildings does not place any additional safeguards around building operations in this city. The sole purpose, apparently, which justifies, if, indeed, it can be called a justification for its preparation, seems to be for the purpose of legislating some methods of construction out of the City of New York and by so doing compel the usage of certain materials which would tend to create a monopoly in the hands of a few people.

Although the city has grown tremendously since the adoption of the present building code and a vast number of houses have been erected in districts beyond the present fire limits, no increase of those fire limits is recommended in the majority report in any borough of this city.

PATENTED STANDPIPES AND PAINTS ELIMINATED.

The minority of the committee won a decided victory when the majority committee consented to eliminate the objectionable clause requiring a patented device to be placed on all existing standpipes in the city, but even with this provision stricken out the section is objectionable because it gives to the Superintendents of Buildings the power to locate the standpipes, which authority is vested by section 762 of the charter in the Fire Department, and, therefore, would be of no force if adopted.

We congratulate the majority in eliminating the section requiring a certain pigment to be used in painting structural iron work, thus proving the correctness of the position of the minority of the Building Code Revision Commission, in opposing this provision on the ground that it would create a monopoly in favor of a certain manufacturer of paints.

We object to section 29 of the report of the majority which provides that enclosures for elevators in fireproof buildings, when of brick, shall have walls eight inches thick, when of reinforced concrete six inches thick, and when of terra cotta four inches thick. The thickness of these various materials in the report of the majority places the fire-resisting qualities of a 4-inch terra cotta partition as equal to that of an 8-inch brick wall, which is wrong, improper and dangerous.

THE PROHIBITION AGAINST CINDER CONCRETE.

We strenuously object to sections 116, 117 and 118 of the majority report. In the report submitted by the majority of the Building Code Revision Commission the use of cinder concrete for fireproofing was absolutely prohibited. An amendment to these sections was offered at the last meeting of the Committee, with the apparent object of permitting the use of cinder concrete for fireproofing. The substitute offered and which passed the Committee and is a part of the majority code, while it permits of the use of cinder concrete for fireproofing, places such restrictions around it as to make its use absolutely prohibitive. It provides that in buildings over 100 feet in height, cinder concrete may be used only for segmental arches, and a minimum weight of one and a half pounds of metal reinforcement per square foot is required in the arches, whereas the present law and custom requires one pound per square foot. The added weight of metal is simply an additional expense to the public without serving any useful purpose. Another unjust discrimination imposed by the proposed code is the exclusion of cinder concrete from use as fireproof protection to columns and girders, which the experts at the public hearing testified was the best kind of protection.

In buildings 100 feet or less, cinder concrete is permitted to be used in both flat arches and segmental arches, provided it is reinforced with steel rods or bars.

FLAT SLAB CONCRETE CONSTRUCTION.

Under paragraph 3 the thickness of flat slabs of cinder concrete is required to be not less than one inch for each foot of span between the beams, not including any portion of the slab, projecting below the underside of the reinforcing steel. The average spans between steel beams in buildings is between 5½ to 7 feet. In a 6-foot span the required thickness of a flat slab would therefore be 7½ inches, whereas the present requirement is only 4 inches, consequently approximately double the amount of concrete would be required as compared with the present code. The effect of this would be to add approximately 33 1-3 per cent. to the cost of flat slab concrete construction. In addition to this the extra weight would require heavier steel construction, thus adding to the cost of steelwork of future buildings, as well. The effect of this unnecessary and unreasonable depth of cinder concrete floor as required by the proposed amendment is to absolutely exclude cinder concrete from use in future buildings when placed in competition with hollow tile and other fireproofing allowed in buildings of 100 feet or less in height. These sections were undoubtedly drawn for the purpose of deceiving the public, by showing some desire on the part of the majority to change the fireproofing sections of their report on account of the criticism in the newspapers. These sections as drawn, contemplates a form of construction that it is impossible to follow, and their adoption would create a monopoly in this city in favor of the hollow block or terra cotta form of fireproofing. The fireproofing section of the majority code was condemned by representatives of the board of delegates of labor men of the County of New York, who claimed that the adoption of this section would throw a large number of laboring men out of employment. The delegate of the Carpenters' Union, who appeared before the Committee, claimed that his craft was largely interested in making centres and headers for the use of concrete fireproofing, and if the sections as proposed were adopted it would throw a large number of carpenters out of employment. These statements were not and have not since been denied.

FLOOR AREAS.

We strongly oppose section 21 of the majority report, permitting large unbroken floor areas in non-fireproof buildings. Buildings of such large unbroken floor areas are known as fire breeders, and to be extremely dangerous to life and property from the spread of fire, and we believe it to be essentially to the interest of the city to place reasonable restrictions upon unbroken floor areas between fire walls as is done in the minority's code.

Section 138 of the majority report gives the Bureau of Buildings the sole power to make rules and regulations governing the installation and maintenance of elevators, escalators, amusement and similar devices, both public and private. This wide and unusual authority was never contemplated by sections 410 and 411 of the charter. Your committee feels that some restrictions governing the installation of elevators, etc., should be made. We think it unwise and unfair to the public to permit the rules and regulations governing these devices, dealing as they do with life and limb, to be made by one individual. The minority code, in sections 161 to 179 inclusive, has specific provisions governing these important devices, and no amendment was offered at the public hearings to any of these sections. In many other sections of the majority report the widest possible discretionary powers are conferred upon the Superintendents of Buildings, power never contemplated by the framers of our charter.

We object to paragraph 51 of section 137, which reads that "standpipes, gas pipes, electric wires, hose foot-lights and all apparatus for the extinguishing of fire and guarding against same in theatres after being installed shall be in charge and under the control of the Fire Department."

It will be noted that the Fire Department only has control after the fire extinguishing apparatus has been installed. This is a violation of section 762 of the charter, which gives full power to the Fire Department to supervise its installation and can have no effect in the event of its adoption.

A BACKWARD STEP.

A careful reading of the code as presented by the majority, will disclose no excuse for its preparation. It is no improvement over the present code. It does not protect as well as the present code, and if it is adopted it will be a serious backward step in the progress of our city and a menace to its welfare. When we consider the vast values that are concentrated in this city, the dire calamity which would follow a large conflagration, we must realize that the greatest possible care should be taken in drafting new laws to prevent the possibility of such a disaster. This the majority has signally failed to do.

The code presented by the minority is the result of the consensus of opinion and suggestion of building experts who appeared before the committee at the public hearing and is based upon the best and safest practices known in modern building construction. Its provisions have been approved by the New York Board of Fire Underwriters, the Chief of the Fire Department, and by the principal builders, labor organizations and architects in this city. We do not claim it to be an ideal code, but it is conceded to be a far better code than the present one. It protects each and every building industry in this city, free from any suspicion of favoring any kind of material or any type of construction. It provides an "open door" to all building materials which have passed the required tests and are safe and proper to be used.

BIG BUILDINGS IN CONCRETE.—The two 6-sty factory buildings which the Turner Construction Co., of 11 Broadway, Manhattan, will next erect for the Bush Terminal Company in South Brooklyn will be two of the longest buildings ever constructed in New York. The size of each is 750x75 ft., six stories; and they will be built of reinforced concrete. There are three buildings of reinforced concrete of this type which the Turner company has already constructed for the Bush Terminal Company that are 600 ft. long. The decision to make the new buildings 750 ft. is worthy of note as an interesting commentary on the success of the previous buildings, which are used for rental purposes purely.

OPINIONS OF THE AMENDED CODE.

DOES NOT PROTECT COMMUNITY.

Lawrence Veiller, former Deputy Tenement House Commissioner, said:

"It makes little difference whether the concrete interests or the hollow tile interests have been protected in the new building code, so long as the provision remains which gives the Superintendent of Buildings the power to vary, modify and set aside any provision of the code, or all of them, at his pleasure in particular instances without any safeguards whatever to protect the community.

"What a farce it is to go through the empty formality of seeming to enact a voluminous and detailed building code dealing in the most minute way with the conditions under which buildings may be erected, when all the while THERE IS REALLY NO CODE WHATEVER in effect, the whole matter resting in the pleasure of one city official."

HARDSHIPS AND LIMITATIONS FOR CINDER CONCRETE.

Mr. A. L. A. Himmelwright, manager of the Roebling Construction Company, on being asked for his opinion of the amended code, said:

"The amended building code, if it were to become a law, would be a disgrace to the city and a menace to the entire community.

"The proposed code as originally submitted by the majority commission and as printed in the City Record on May 20, was full of serious objections, and many of its provisions clearly tended toward the creation of monopolies by special interests. As finally passed by the Board of Aldermen, it was claimed that the amendments corrected some of the most flagrant objections to the code. A careful analysis and comparison, however, discloses the fact that the code as amended has been changed in innumerable places and generally for the worse, so that it is now INFINITELY WORSE THAN BEFORE AMENDED.

"In so far as the section on fireproofing is concerned, this was almost wholly rewritten, and instead of prohibiting cinder concrete by exclusion, as was the case with the original report, the amended code now places such hardships, restrictions and limitations upon cinder concrete so as to make it equally as prohibitive under the amended code as when it was prohibited by exclusion.

"Without going into all the details of my calculations, I am confident that I am conservative when I state that the net practical results of the proposed code, so far as fireproof construction is concerned, would be to exclude all fair competition and extort from $3,500,000 to $5,000,000 annually from the taxpayers and property owners of Greater New York, for which they would receive no value and which would go as profits into the coffers of the National Fireproofing Company."

AS IT SEEMS TO THE HOLLOW TILE INTERESTS.

Commenting on the code in its new form, an officer of a large fireproofing company said to a representative of the Record and Guide:

"I do not believe that the very engineers who appeared before the Aldermanic committee, on behalf of concrete, would appear to-day and say that the provision now incorporated in the code was unfair. They admitted, when questioned, that cinders ought to be anthracite cinders, that they ought to be clean and free from refuse. If a new code failed to make such a requirement, it would be distinctly dangerous to the city.

"At the start the concrete interests get some consideration from the public because they said they had been discriminated against and that an attempt was being made to put them at a disadvantage. But now they have received remarkably liberal consideration, and their present protests make it apparent that they 'want everything.'

"When the second city of the world admits cinder concrete to buildings of height, while many cities of Europe condemn that type of construction altogether, the cinder concrete interests should not complain merely because it is insisted that their cinders be of good quality.

"The effect of this code would be to compel GOOD construction, whether of hollow tile or concrete. If the recommendations of some of the objectors were adopted, the code would invite bad construction."

Notes of Interest.

The Board of Estimate has voted to appropriate $875,000 for the work of changing the Chambers st station of the Brooklyn loop line of the subway from a four-track to a six-track way. It is estimated that an additional appropriation of $1,000,000 will be required for the acquisition of other property.

Contracts for new subways will be offered to bidders in the early fall. Chairman Willcox, of the Public Service Commission, said this as he was preparing to sail for a five weeks' trip abroad. "There will be no cessation of work on account of my vacation," said Mr. Willcox. "The commission will have a busy summer getting ready the forms of contracts for subway construction, for the Broadway-Lexington, the Broadway-Lafayette and the Canal st lines, so that they may be advertised in the early autumn. In order that the detailed plans may be whipped into shape as soon as possible, the commission has made many additions to its engineering staff. The plans for the 4th av route, Brooklyn, are, of course, completed, and the contracts have already been let for city construction, but have not been signed owing to an injunction brought by a taxpayer."

PROF. BURR SAYS DEFECTS REMAIN.

Prof. William H. Burr, of Columbia University, consulting engineer of the Board of Water Supply and formerly a member of the board of consulting engineers of the Panama Canal, who is believed to be the engineer to whom many of the technical provisions in the Minority Report was submitted for criticism, said this week that "it is difficult to escape the feeling that there is foundation for the charge, already so strongly pressed, that the proposed code has been drawn so as to deter, if not prohibit, concrete construction, both plain and reinforced. There is little or nothing in the building field that could be more detrimental to the city's interest."

Professor Burr said that certain provisions of the code were the more objectionable because the original defects had been somewhat modified, giving the impression that the original objections had been entirely done away with. The amended code raises the limit for concrete buildings from 75 to 85 ft. He declared that reinforced concrete buildings had already been reared to the height of 150 ft. in this city, and that under proper design there was no reason for a limit of any kind.

Referring to the requirement of the code that the cinders should be washed and screened with a screen with a quarter-inch mesh, Professor Burr said:

"Such a prohibitory specification as that stated gives color to the charge which has been made so often in connection with this majority report that the intention is to rule out, as far as possible, concrete construction."

As to the question of steel reinforcement Professor Burr said:

"Again, the requirements of steel reinforcement for the cinder and stone concrete floor arches and the steel anchorages to the supporting steel beams are severely right, with no corresponding requirements for the hollow tile and terra cotta arches. The effect is to give to the concrete construction a handicap of cost from which the hollow tile and terra cotta floors are exempt. There are a number of other features having the same coloring of favor for the hollow tile and terra cotta construction which ought not to be found in such a code. The provisions in question, as they stand, are not well considered and not necessary for the best type of construction."

WHY STONE MASONS AND SETTERS ARE HARD TO GET.

Inquiry was made this week into the cause of the scarcity of stone masons and setters about which contractors have complained of late, and it was said that it was due to the rush work that is going ahead upon the Pennsylvania and New York Central terminal improvements and also into the widening of Fifth av, where setters are mostly employed. Cutters are being hired to set stone during the emergency, which, according to stone men, shows no indication of immediately passing.

J. S. Henry, Secretary of the General Arbitration Board of the N. Y. Master Builders' Association, made this statement to the Record and Guide:

"The stone masons and stone setters are busy now, about 80 per cent. being actively employed as against only 40 per cent. a month or two ago. When the stone masons and stone cutters get busy the indications are considered good for all the building trades. It shows that within a short while the steel riveters and the bricklayers will be busy. The tilers are busy now finishing up old work. The fact that the masons and stone setters are engaged shows that the new business is underway, and I look for busy building times this fall. There is a great deal of big work going on now. This will take care of the men who usually do not get the first work and the other construction work will keep this branch of the trade busy until late in the Fall."

It is said to be unusual that artisans in these trades should be scarce at this time of the year. Upon reliable authority it was learned that the contractors on the Pennsylvania terminal work, facing a woeful lack of masons and setters, paid double wages to good men to permit the contractor to keep up with his schedule. The masons work on foundations and rough stone, and the setters do the cutstone work.

There are many big buildings in course of erection where skilled workmen of this class will be in demand, among them being the Gimbel Bros. and the Municipal Building. The trade seems to look upon the situation as a foretaste of the busy Fall long prophesied.

Steam Shovel in Fourth Avenue Excavation.

Thompson-Starrett Co., general contractors for the Bryce-Hewett buildings, being erected on Fourth av at 29th st, are using one of Canavan Bros.' steam shovels in excavating for foundations. There is little solid rock less than 20 ft. from the surface in the section of the city bounded by 14th st and 30th between 3d and 5th avs, it is said, and the use of this appliance for removing debris has been resorted to. Refuse and earth is taken out of the site at the rate of 3 yards a minute. The excavation will go only so far as to permit of one basement, the foundations of which will rest on piers footed on bed rock. It is expected that by the middle of next month deliveries of structural steel will be in progress.

THE VENTILATION OF BUILDINGS.

How the New Factory Law Is Being Enforced—Its Requirements Considered Excessive and Impractical—Is Landlord or Tenant Responsible?

LANDLORDS are having their attention newly called by the State Factory Inspectors to the subject of ventilation. The appointment of a medical inspector of factories last year made it possible for the State Department of Labor to test the air in factories. Hundreds of experiments have been made and the commissioner says that these declare the wisdom of the Legislature in strengthening the law. The enforcement of new provisions of law relating to ventilation "marks an epoch," according to the department; certainly the authorities have succeeded in arousing the owners of loft buildings used in whole or part for factory purposes.

The fresh-air crusade has been proceeding by trades; cigar factories, laundries, printing-houses and, recently, clothing and kindred trades have received attention from the inspectors. Owing to a limited force, their work was, until recently confined to the Borough of Manhattan. That they have encountered opposition is admitted, but they say that this is passing away. The installation of a suitable ventilating system in a modern loft building requires no inconsiderable outlay of money, but Inspector Walling says it is the purpose of the department to prosecute the work with vigor. The law reads as follows:

"The owner, agent or lessee of a factory shall provide in each workroom thereof, proper and sufficient means of ventilation, and shall maintain proper and sufficient ventilation; if excessive heat be created or if steam, gases, vapors, dust or other impurities that may be injurious to health be generated in the course of the manufacturing process carried on therein, the rooms must be ventilated in such manner as to render them harmless, so far as is practicable."

Mr. Walling interprets the law as follows:

"As defined by Dr. John S. Billings, perfect ventilation means that any and every person in a room takes into his lungs at each respiration air of the same composition as that surrounding the building, no part of which has recently been in his own lungs or those of his neighbors, or which consists of the products of combustion generated in the building, while at the same time he feels no currents or drafts of air, and is perfectly comfortable as regards temperature, being neither too hot nor too cold."

OWNERS PROTESTING.

Dissatisfaction with the requirements of the State authorities is being expressed, first on the ground that they are excessive; second, that they are in effect impractical; third, that tenants and not owners are responsible under the terms of leases.

The State is proceeding against the owners in this crusade and is not molesting tenants. One particular case has been taken to court to test the question whether the owner or tenant of the building is liable for the statutory penalty when the lease definitely specifies that the tenant shall keep the premises in such order as may be required by the Board of Health, the city ordinances or any other legal authority.

It appears from inquiry among owners that their claim is that the usual amount of heating radiation in lofts is insufficient to take care of the large quantity of fresh cold air that would be introduced by forced ventilation, and that the cost of heating the fresh air introduced would increase the average cost of heating the building about three hundred per cent., without counting the cost of installing and operating ventilating machinery.

PRINCIPLES IN CONTROVERSY.

The crusade has not only stirred up considerable feeling because of the expenses imposed, but also because of the apparent hardships inflicted in some cases. Laws are sometimes as inflexible as steam rollers. They make no allowances; everything in their path is crushed to one level, and this is why controversy has arisen in this case.

A prominent estate in this city leased in the year 1903 a loft in West Broadway "for the sale and manufacture of cigars," and the lease contained a provision that the tenants should keep the premises "in such order and condition to conform in all respects to the rules and regulations of the Board of Health, and as shall or may be required by the ordinances of the City of New York, or any other legal authority; and that they will do or cause to be done AT THEIR OWN PROPER COST AND EXPENSES ALL SUCH REPAIRS AS SHALL BE NECESSARY DURING SUCH DEMISED TERM."

Another clause stipulates that at the expiration of the term the tenants shall surrender the premises in as good condition as reasonable use will permit, and also will SURRENDER ALL IMPROVEMENTS AND REPAIRS THEREON WITHOUT CHARGE OR EXPENSE TO THE OWNERS.

Five years later the same owner leased to the same tenant a second loft, which is in the building adjoining the one into which the tenant first entered. (The Record and Guide has been requested to withhold names and addresses, as the interest here is in the principles involved and not in the personal facts.) The second lease contained identically the same clauses as the first lease.

At the time of the making of each lease the respective lofts were open and unobstructed from front to rear, with the exception of a small space for toilets and elevator shaft, and two staircases, one in each building. At the time of the second lease a doorway was opened through the wall between the two buildings, thus connecting the floor covered by the first lease with the floor covered by the second lease, the two floors being substantially on the same level.

There were at the time of the letting eleven windows on the front of the lofts, and each of the windows was and is 3 ft. 10 ins. broad by 9 ft. high in the clear. They were and are ordinary double hung windows, and either the upper or lower sash can be opened at pleasure. Each story is 12 ft. in the clear. The total air space or cubic contents of the loft covered by the first lease (exclusive of the space enclosed for toilets, elevator shaft and stairway) is 46,322 cu. ft., and the total air space of the loft covered by the second lease is 22,583 cu. ft.

On the 5th of March, 1909, an order from the Bureau of Factory Inspection was served on the owner of the buildings to this effect: "Provide means for and obtain proper and sufficient ventilation in workrooms. If these requirements are not complied with within twenty days from the date of this notice, legal proceedings will be commenced against you."

Subsequent to the making of the leases that were in effect at the time of the service of this order, and prior to the time when it was served, the tenants had erected certain partitions extending from floor to ceiling, and certain dwarf partitions going part way. The premises were used in part as a workroom, office and stock room for cigars and leaf tobacco, and from seventy-five to eighty persons were employed.

The owner gave the tenants a copy of the order and demanded of them that they comply with its terms. But the requirements were not complied with either by owner or tenants. Accordingly, on April 9 the Factory Inspector, William W. Walling, notified the owner that unless the order be complied with on the 19th of April, an action would be commenced to recover the statutory penalty of ten dollars per day, for each day after the expiration of the twenty.

SUBMISSION OF CONTROVERSY.

The owner notified the department of the provisions of the lease and claimed that the tenants were the persons primarily liable. The case is now before the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court on a statement of facts agreed upon between the Department of Labor, on the one hand, and the owner of the buildings, as the defendant in the proceedings.

THE QUESTION AT ISSUE.

The court is asked to determine whether the owner is liable for any statutory penalty. Both parties admit and agree that if the question is decided in the affirmative the State shall have a judgment of ten dollars a day for two days, and if in the negative the owner of the building shall have a judgment to the effect that he is not liable to any penalty and dismissing the proceedings. Huntington, Rhinelander & Seymour are the attorneys for the defendant. Pending the decision in this case the State factory inspectors' activities are less pronounced. Owners of factory and loft buildings, tenants and engineering firms are all interested.

COMPETITION FOR FULTON MEMORIAL.

The Robert Fulton Monument Association of the City of New York extends an invitation to all qualified architects in the United States to participate in a competition to enable the association to secure the most meritorious design for a water gate and monument to be erected in memory of Robert Fulton. From the total number of drawings received, twenty will be selected and submitted to the Board of Award for their action. The estimated total cost of the memorial is $3,500,000.

The purpose of this competition is to develop the best method of arrangement and design for the buildings, grounds, terraces and docks, to be erected as a memorial to Robert Fulton.

The property on which this memorial is to be erected is bounded by the extension of the building line of the north side of 114th st and the extension of the building line of the north side of 116th st, this being a distance of 563 feet 8 inches and abutting the westerly side of Riverside av. The east and west boundaries will extend from the westerly side of Riverside av to and over the right of way of the Hudson River Railroad Company to the pierhead harbor line. A bulkhead will be constructed at the bulkhead line, and from this bulkhead piers will be extended westerly into the river to the pierhead line; and at the north and south sides of the property forming a pool between the piers for the reception of boats.

WHERE BUILDING MATERIALS ARE NEEDED

AN AID TO ALL SALES DEPARTMENTS

AN AID TO ALL SALES DEPARTMENTS.—Plans have been drawn for new buildings to be erected at the locations given below; details as to cost of the new construction, the names and addresses of the architects and the owners are included in each item. This building news represents new construction, including alterations about to be commenced, in the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx, plans for the work having been filed this week in the Department of Buildings. The official plan number in each case is given at the end of each paragraph.

Building contractors and building material firms may be assured that the information herein given includes every building enterprise of every sort and description contemplated in the two boroughs. The news is absolutely complete, irrespective of cost, including both the highest and the lowest grade of operations. By carefully following the news printed in these columns weekly, contractors and building material firms can possess for their sales departments absolutely reliable and absolutely complete information as to new projects.

HOW TO USE PROFITABLY.—It is hardly necessary to do more than indicate the many ways in which this information may be used.

Architects, owners and contractors can be solicited personally for orders.

Trade literature can be distributed with the certainty of reaching its destination.

Buyers can be apprised of the values of materials and equipment.

Time should not be allowed to elapse in the prosecution of the work of salesmanship. Steps should be taken immediately to handle each case. Even orders not obtained in any single case frequently prepare the way for subsequent sales. Records should be kept of each of these "possibilities," and the results of work done tabulated. Figures will be thus obtained that will throw considerable light on the efficiency of sales methods in operation.

It will not be necessary for us to point out in detail how much information a well-informed building material firm or contractor can easily READ INTO THESE NEWS ITEMS, a constant repetition of which in our columns would only take up space without any equivalent advantages. For instance, the instructed reader does not need to be told what the average equipment would be for, let us say, a seven-story brick and stone loft building, 25x75, costing $35,000, to be built on East Broadway. Plainly an elevator is inevitable; steam heat is inevitable; fireproofing is quite problematic, considering the cost. Everyone can figure that lumber will go into such a building, and a certain amount of rough trim, plastering, window sashes, hardware, plumbing fixtures, etc., etc.

Moreover, it will be understood that as the information that we publish is of an early character, the details of construction and equipment are probably open to a good deal of discussion with the architect and the owner. Red brick might be substituted for white brick, limestone for terra cotta, or vice versa, one type of elevator for another type, and so on throughout all the elements of construction equipment and finish. These points will naturally be very closely followed by an aggressive sales department. Here is where salesmanship, the price and value of a firm's materials will count. THOUGHT AND AGGRESSIVENESS IN THE USE OF THIS INFORMATION THAT WE FURNISH WEEKLY WILL PRODUCE BUSINESS. Don't forget that the entire market for your goods in the two boroughs is here, placed under your eyes, not for reading, but for ACTION. Follow up the news!

ADVANCE REPORTS.

Features of Wanamaker's Philadelphia Store.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—The new Wanamaker store in Philadelphia, now nearing completion, covers an entire block, or "square," as it is called in that city. It is 250½ ft. wide, 480 ft. long and 247 ft. in height, twelve stories above ground and three below. The first three floors above the street are each more than 22 ft. in height, with galleries, and above the third floor, the floors are each 15.6 ft. high, except the ninth, which totals 20 ft. There are 45 acres of floor space. Besides the departments for the usual lines of trade, the store is unique by the devices installed to insure economy and facility in store operation, and by the fact that the building is also to be the home of a trade industrial school, where employees will have the opportunity to become experts in their departments. Another novel feature of the establishment is that the immense power plant necessary to heat and run the building is located entirely outside the structure. The store is reputed to be one of the largest steel-ribbed, granite-walled, fireproof structures of modern construction in the world. In the ventilation of the big building a fan system is used, which not only supplies pure air continually, but exhausts the foul air. The air is filtered and is kept constantly in circulation. Not the least interesting feature to builders is the fact that the structure was built without interruption to the business carried on in the old store on the same site. D. H. Burnham & Co., of Chicago, were the architects.

The kind of construction has not yet been actually determined, but it will either be of steel and brick, or reinforced concrete. The buildings will include a machine shop, forge shop, stock and shipping rooms, brass foundry, assembly rooms, office building, tool rooms and a pressure heating plant. There will be two large freight elevators, steam heat and electric lights, and power will be furnished by the Poughkeepsie Light & Power Co. No contracts have been issued for the work.

Building Material Market Firm.

Considering the season the conditions of the building material market is satisfactory. Dealers generally report good inquiries, save in lumber, in which instance the local yards feel a lethargy somewhat greater than usual, while in the suburbs almost record-breaking business is being done. The consumption of cement for the two weeks just closed far over-balances figures for the same period last year, but there is no indication at present of an immediate change of prices. Labor strike rumors from the Hudson valley brick yards early in the week were momentarily disconcerting, but as the week wore on the situation cleared. Large orders were held back because of a difference of from 25 to 50 cents in dealers' and manufacturers' prices. Big business is reported in pig iron, and structural steel found a good market, but there is a noticeable decrease in tonnage since the first of the month. Some of the independent steel mills have capacities sold for the next two months. Prices are likely to advance, as is the probable case with brick. All interests in the former industry are asking higher price for immediate shipment. Stone found a steady market with prices remaining firm. Money in all branches of the building material business was reported easier.

Brick Prices Firm.—Inquiry Grows.

No change in the price of brick is reported for the week, which was characterized by a steady demand with tendency toward an advance in price. The dry weather has helped the makers both in the Hudson valley and in New Jersey, but help is scarce in all the yards; scarcer than usual; and the amount that is being made is below normal.

STRIKE RUMORS IN THE AIR.

The local market was disturbed early in the week by a rumor that up-river brick yard laborers were about to open a new strike for increases in wages. Most of the yards were able to placate their men, and the crisis is said to be over.

COLLECTIONS MUCH BETTER.

Collections showed an improvement this week, indicating that money is easier in building operations. This was coupled with numerous inquiries for Hudson River hards in quantities ranging from 4,000,000, 5,000,000 and 10,000,000 lots for November and December deliveries. The fact that the dealers and the manufacturers were between 25 and 50 cents apart in what was asked and what was bid, prevented the closing of deals.

PRICES WILL GO HIGHER.

The tendency in the brick market is upward both in Jerseys and in Hudson River products. Early last month the prices were from 50 cents to a dollar lower than the prices in force this week, and dealers' and manufacturers' agents here are unanimous in the opinion that the prices of brick will advance before they recede.

NEWARK MARKET CONTINUES STRONG.

Despite the fact that more than 2,000,000 second-hand brick have been dumped upon the Newark market as a result of the demolition of the buildings standing upon the site of the Prudential annex and the Fireman's Insurance Co., the market for new brick remains unchanged. This condition is somewhat unusual, and gives a fair idea of the amount of building construction that is going on in the suburbs.

Volume of Cement Business Increasing.

An increased volume of business in cement was reported this week due to increasing building operations in and out of town. Most of it was for deliveries in Harlem and the Bronx, while some went into Kings. Labor trouble at the Edison mills, at New Village, N. J., was reported to be practically settled. The Vulcanite company opened its No. 3 mill in the Lehigh Valley.

JULY TO BE BUSY MONTH.

There are good prospects of a busy July. One of the smaller companies reports having done 55% more business during the first two weeks of July than during the same period last year. Many of the little companies, it is said, have been doing from 30 to 60% more business during the last two months than the larger concerns. While the consumption in these instances may have been larger the profits have been smaller. Expenses have been cut in some cases, and it has been a hard matter to hold their own. It must be remembered that most of this increased business is the natural result of the reduction in prices so that in reality the increased business reported by the smaller companies as well as by larger ones, has barely been sufficient to keep mills going and to come out above the heap. While July is likely to be a busy month, there will not be much money in the business done, and therefore some of the companies have "lain down" in their sales departments pending a readjustment of prices.

ENCOURAGEMENT EVERYWHERE.

Architects report more work in their offices than for any time during the last two years. This encourages cement men and builders. Activity is noted everywhere. In this city there is said to be more concrete work being done now than at any time in the last three years. This is doubtless due to the feverish haste on the part of builders to get that work out of the way as soon as possible, and prior to the adoption of the building code.

Iron Inquiry Increases—Advance Near.

The iron market was active this week, inquiries ranging from 50 to 8,000 tons, which is unusual for July. No. 1 Southern advanced fifty cents, but Northern remains stationary. While the market is satisfactory, and there are practically no definite advances, the tendency toward higher prices all around is shown in the fact that the furnaces are advancing quotations on each inquiry, and there is no haggling over prices. The negotiations referred to, especially the 8,000-ton one, is for December and January delivery.

BOOM IN IRON, SAY DEALERS.

The fact that coke and anthracite pig iron furnaces showed a gain in business in the first half of this year over the same period of last year, which was 11,000,000 tons as against 9,018,014 tons in the last half of 1908, and 6,918,004 tons in the first half, and 13,478,044 for the first half of 1907, shows that the rate of production per year is now over 22,000,000 tons a year. June's production was 1,929,884 tons, and May's 1,883,330 tons.

JULY'S RECORD MAY BE HIGHEST.

The Steel Corporation's output for July breaks all records. The best achievement in its history was in October, 1906, when the output was 1,008,000 tons. More than half that amount had been booked this week. Some of the mills cannot keep abreast of the demand. Some time ago it was shown that of the 10,000 emigrants who returned home during the depression, only 2,500 have returned. A large portion of this number came from the Pittsburgh steel districts, and many of the mills have been crippled because of a shortage of this kind of labor. Steamship agents have been at work, it is said, in foreign lands impressing upon former furnace men the desirability of returning now when the steel business is on the mend.

SHEET TIN INTERESTS WORRIED.

Sheet tin interests are worried over the prospect of a prolonged strike at the mills. About 60% of the total production has been cut off, and should the controversy continue for more than a month or six weeks a serious shortage in the market would follow. The officials of the American Tin Company are non-communicative regarding the prospects for a settlement when it comes to speaking for publication, but it is understood the strike is likely to continue for three months or more than there is likelihood of a speedy settlement.

FABRICATORS VERY BUSY.

Fabricators in and near this city report that they are busier than they had expected to be at this time of the year. The Hay Iron & Foundry Co., the Hecla Iron Works, Radley, Levering & Garrigues and the Whale Creek Iron Works have closed important contracts recently. The Receivers of Milliken Brothers and the American Bridge Co. have deliveries scheduled until late in the Fall.

Stone Market Growing Stronger.

While nothing like a boom in the stone business was reported this week, there was, nevertheless, evidence that good business is in sight. The fact that stone setters are busy and are so scarce that cutters are being impressed into service, does not indicate that there is great activity in the stone market. It is normal, and that is the best that can be said of it. The New England Granite Co. is an exception among the majority of dealers in that it has been above normal since the middle of April. It has the contract for supplying the State library at Hartford, Conn., with Bethel White, for which it has about 80% cut and deliveries about half made. This contract totals $250,000. Another contract it has on hand is for the $100,000 worth of Concord granite for the Historical Society Building, at Concord, N. H. Guy Lowell, of Boston, is the architect. This company also recently closed some large contracts for mausoleums and small buildings in and near this city. Arlando Marine closed within the fortnight for supplying Indiana limestone for the new apartment house that the W. J. Taylor Building Co. is putting up at 93d st and Central Park West. This building, for which Alfred Joseph Bodker is architect, will be 125x175 ft. on the street.

EXPECT NO BOOM, BUT GOOD BUSINESS.

A man familiar with the trade gave this as his view of the stone situation this week.

"Do I expect a Fall boom? No, I cannot say that I do. I look for a continuance of good business and I think we will get it. There is certainly more business on paper so far than there has been in years, and architects say they have lots of new work coming on. Money continues easy, there is no labor trouble and the entire building industry is in admirable shape to handle new work. I also look for an advance in the price of stone, but I do not look for a big jump. Just a healthy advance. That will come, I may say, within the month." Prices remain unchanged.

Window-Frame Suit Settled.

Voigtmann & Co., manufacturers of metallic window frames and sashes at 427 West 13th st and 430 West 14th st, have amicably settled the suit brought against that company by George Hayes for infringing U. S. patent No. 626,698, embracing certain improvements in wire-glass fireproof windows. In an announcement to the trade Voigtmann & Co. say:

"This patent of Mr. George Hayes, in connection with our own patents, is largely upon the construction of hollow metal sash for wire-glass fireproof windows and provides a more thorough and efficient system of glazing than formerly employed by us. * * *

"Our original patent employed a special system of glazing known to the trade up to the last few years as the 'inseparable cleat construction.' This system that was employed by us so long came to provoke much criticism, as the ¾-inch rabbet necessary for the bearing of the wire glass necessitated very heavy puttying, that in many cases, especially in the warm weather, became unsightly and subject to disintegration.

"Committed as we are to the best process known in fire window construction, we cannot afford to duck and change upon finding that we unwittingly infringed and catalogued a certain construction patented by Mr. Hayes, as already set forth.

"Being confined wholly to the manufacture of hollow metal fire windows we have deemed it quite necessary to clear ourselves as much as possible from infringement liabilities by purchasing such patents and shop rights from time to time as deemed of use and value to ourselves, and as needed to make us a firm conservative in the estimation of the trade."

That their patrons and customers may not be liable for using this window-frame prior to the date of the foregoing agreement Voigtmann & Co. procured a release addressed "To all whom it may Concern" wherein over Mr. Hayes' signature, the following statement is made:

"That the defendants herein, Voigtmann & Co., having failed to adduce a substantial defense to above suit, for infringing Letters Patent of the United States, No. 626,698, dated June 13, 1899, granted to said George Hayes for improvement in wire glass fireproof windows; and having paid the costs and damages in said suit and having further purchased from said George Hayes the right to make, use and sell windows in which are incorporated said patented improvements, at and from their shop in the City of New York, State of New York, and in the City of Chicago, State of Illinois, said Voigtmann & Co. and all persons having in their possession windows made and sold by said Voigtmann & Co. in which said patented improvements are incorporated, are hereby released from all liability for damages to said George Hayes."

Attached to this circular is a warning cautioning manufacturers against making or selling this type of window frame without his permission upon penalty of prosecution. This statement is under date of May 14, 1909.

New Hollow Metal Door.

The Grinden Art Metal Co., of 30-34 West 32d st, Manhattan, have now ready their patented hollow metal door. It is the product of a mechanic long in this business. The chief feature of the door is a unique and practical form for allowance of expansion and contraction, designed to meet the highest rating of the Board of Fire Underwriters. Another feature is the absence of all rivets.

All fastening of the bracing members, moldings, etc., are made by a special form of interlocking flange and all are then welded. The steel doors are finished with baked enamel surfaces in exact imitation of any hard wood. Doors made of copper or bronze are finished with bright or oxidized surfaces as desired.

The Grinden Art Metal Co. is also prepared to supply interior finish such as partition, wainscoting, base and chair rails, picture moldings and miscellaneous shapes. Their works are at Marcy av and Walton st, Brooklyn.

Quick Elevator Repairs a Specialty.

Having for years made a specialty of making quick elevator repairs, C. V. Cheeseman, of 422 West Broadway, believes he holds the record for rapid work done recently for the Star Bakery Co. in Porter av, Brooklyn. The plant was seriously crippled when an important piece of mechanism in its elevator broke. It was not possible to get a duplicate in this city or vicinity. The company called in Mr. Cheeseman for his expert opinion as to what had best be done, and he immediately took the matter in hand. Wednesday morning he wired a certain firm in Lynn, Mass., for a duplicate of the part, and by 10 o'clock Thursday the elevator was in operation again. A similar case occurred recently at the Lozier garage, where some cables attached to an elevator were found to be in a dangerous condition. Mr. Cheeseman had new cables installed and the lift in operation within six hours.

This elevator house handles an important part of the elevator work for the big butcher concerns, and not long ago installed one of the largest elevators in service in this city at the Schwarzschild & Sulzberger Company's stables. This is used to lift the company's 7-ton electric trucks to the various floors. When the lift was tested eleven tons was safely carried. The entire equipment of this lift was doubled throughout. It has eight ⅝-inch cables attached to double crossheads and has a special series of governors and safeties.

Mr. Cheeseman also builds and places all kinds of hand and power elevators, and has installed 46 garage lifts, among them being the Wood Electric Co., the Broadway Automobile Exchange, the Times Square Automobile Exchange and the Victor Automobile Storage Co.

Coler Suspends Brooklyn Superintendent of Buildings.

Borough President Coler, of Brooklyn, suspended David F. Moore, on Friday, from his office as superintendent of buildings pending an explanation of charges of neglect of duty, absence without leave, gross discourtesy to the public having business with his bureau, and withholding from the corporation counsel of a violation involving the safety of human beings.

Mr. Gilbert asserts that the company entered into an agreement with him to prepare plans for the hotel, under which he prepared and submitted designs. Subsequently the company accepted plans of Ross & MacFarlane, of Montreal which, Gilbert says, are practically the same as those he supplied.

Contractors Making Record Time.

Work on the Schlegel Investing Co.'s 12-sty factory building, at 2d av and 22d st, is progressing rapidly, and the contractors, the Theodore Starrett Co., bid fare to make another record for quick construction. Quick deliveries are being made to Post & McCord, the steel contractors. All this steel work is being coated with "Minwax" paint, which is made by the Clifford L. Miller Manufacturing Co., of 110 East 23d st. One coat of this material is put on at the shops and the other, of olive green, is applied at the job. In announcing recently that this material was being used, the fact was omitted that this coating was originally specified by the consulting engineer of the building, Fred. Dana Rhodes, of 140 Cedar st, who, with Charles F. Hoppe, architect for the building, fully investigated the merits of this material and found its properties admirably suited to the protection of steel because of its being a non-conductor of electricity.

OF INTEREST TO PROPERTY OWNERS.

Valuable Information Given Weekly Showing Status of Municipal Improvement Proceedings in all Branches.

The Record and Guide is regularly publishing for property owners and others information relative to the opening of streets, regulating and grading, curbing and flagging of same, as well as the construction of sewers, permanent and temporary.

The reader will understand that municipal improvements of this order are assessed against the owners of property, both improved and unimproved, situated within the district directly benefited. For example a given street is going to be paved. In all likelihood not only will the property be assessed that faces on the street directly in front of where the work is going to be done, but also property will be assessed in adjoining streets and thoroughfares which might receive the benefit of such improvement.

That the various stages of carrying through these proceedings may be followed with intelligence by the property owner they have been divided into three classes:

1. Public Works.
2. Condemnation Proceedings.
3. Assessments.

1. Under the heading "Public Works" will be printed petitions asking that improvements may be made, and the successive initiatory proceedings, including mention of the probable district that will have to bear the assessment.

Under the second heading will follow the announcement of the application for the appointment of Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment, later followed by their various reports and findings. Fuller explanation of the foregoing will be found as the reader proceeds.

Under the third and final heading will follow the details relating to the confirmation and the entry of assessments with a statement of the time within which they may be paid, without incurring penalty for arrears. In other words, if payment be not made within a given time, an interest charge, upon the amount due is exacted by the city, which must be paid by the owner of the property.

PUBLIC WORKS.

To specifically illustrate the successive steps in a proceeding for a public improvement, let it be assumed that a new street is required in some section of any of the five boroughs comprising the city of New York. A movement of this kind is usually started and agitated by some property owner, an association of property owners or perhaps considered by a board of trade. A petition is presented to a regularly established local board, whose function is to give the proceeding the first or initial official hearing and if deemed advisable by that body, recommendation for its adoption is made to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. This latter body meets nearly every Friday morning at 10.30 o'clock in their room in the City Hall and has jurisdiction over all public improvements.

If the board approves of the petition the area of assessment (that is to say boundary lines are fixed, and all property owners who have holdings therein are assessed in proportion to the amount of their real estate contained within these bounds) except where physical betterments are concerned, such as regulating, grading and curbing streets, laying sewers and flagging sidewalks as well as fencing vacant lots, in which case the Board of Assessors determine the area of assessment and the assessments for benefit. Motion is then made by the Corporation Counsel for the appointment of commissioners to condemn.

CONDEMNATION PROCEEDINGS.

The next step is the appointment by the Supreme Court of three Commissioners of Appraisal, of which one is designated as a Commissioner of Assessment. The commission hears all objections made by property owners as to title and value. When every one has had a hearing preliminary reports are prepared by the commission containing the amount of awards and assessments which in its opinion the various owners are entitled to. These reports are subsequently filed for examination and objections by property owners or parties in interest who may be dissatisfied with the findings of the commission.

Public hearings are then in order, and objecting parties are given an opportunity to register their disapproval of the findings. The commission then prepares and files a copy of its final report in the County Clerk's office followed by the presentation of its report to the Supreme Court for confirmation.

ASSESSMENTS.

The report of the Commissioners as approved is then transmitted to the Comptroller for the payment of awards and the collection of assessments, who in turn publishes the date of confirmation or when the assessment should be paid and entry of the assessment in the "Record of Titles of Assessments." A statement is made giving the time within which such assessment can be paid, without a penalty. If an assessment is not paid within 60 days after the date of entry, it is subject to an interest change at the rate of 7 per cent. a year.

SUMMIT PL.—Owners of real estate in Summit pl are notified that the assessment for regulating, grading, setting curbstones, flagging sidewalks, laying crosswalks, etc., in Summit pl, from Heath av to Boston av, was confirmed by the Board of Assessors on July 6 and entered on the same day in the Record of Titles of Assessments, kept in the Bureau for the Collection of Assessments and Arrears of Taxes and Assessments and of Water Rents. Unless the amount assessed for benefit on any person or property shall be paid within 60 days after the date of entry, interest will be collected thereon at the rate of 7% per annum, to be calculated to the date of payment from the date when such assessment became a lien. The area of assessment includes both sides of Summit pl, from Heath av to Boston av, and to the extent of half the block of the intersecting avs. The accompanying diagram shows approximately the section benefited. Payment of the above must be made to the Collector of Assessments and Arrears, in the Municipal Building, corner of 177th st and 3d av, Bronx. All payments made thereon on or before Sept. 4, 1909, will be exempt from interest, as above provided.

THE TREND TOWARD NORTHERN NEW JERSEY.

By LEO BUGG.

THE most notable movement in the suburban real estate market to-day is the remarkable trend toward northern New Jersey, up in the hills lying between the beautiful Ramapo range and the Palisades. It started with the increased use of the automobiles when people who had never been off the beaten track of the railroads began to go out into the highways and byways of the real country, to see what wonderful landscape there is so close to New York. From that time interest in the section in question has constantly grown until at the present writing, practically every train brings varied city folk in quest of a country home or a plot on which to build one. The best land in this section begins at Ridgewood and lies on both sides of the main line of the Erie Railroad, extending on the west to the Ramapo Mountains and on the east to the Saddle River Valley, thence running north beyond the State line into Rockland County, New York. At this point, for the first time since leaving New York, is reached the "real" unobjectionable country. The mosquito meadows, the malodorous Passaic River, the factories, workshops and foundries, the tenement houses and all the city lights and city smells are left behind. Here begins what for many years has been a land of gardens, farms and orchards.

THE LAKE AT MAHWAH, N. J.

The western district of Ridgewood shows up to particularly good advantage, it is located on a series of hills which form what may be called the "foothills" of the Ramapo Mountains. Here may be seen a hundred or more fine residences, no two houses alike, each with its ample grounds, showing distinct individual treatment, making on the whole the very best type of suburban development. The eastern section of the town while not so conspicuous has many points of beauty and attractiveness. Ridgewood is 22 miles from New York, has a thirty-minute express schedule and a commutation rate of $6.35 per month. Going north from Ridgewood is the pretty little settlement of Hohokus or Undercliff, as it formerly was called. From this point along the railroad a beautiful panorama of the whole Saddle River Valley may be obtained. Hohokus is practically a continuation of Ridgewood, and is rapidly building up with dwellings of a good type. After Hohokus comes Waldwick, at which point the Erie Railroad Co. has its "make-up" yards for their suburban service. This has resulted in the development of the town on a different scale than the other towns in this vicinity. It is the home of many of the railroad employees, and is built up rather more closely and with smaller houses.

CHARACTERISTIC DWELLINGS.

The next town is Allendale, a beautiful little settlement of very pretty dwellings. For a considerable distance on each side of the track these dwellings spread out in all directions, each house having a larger plot than in the usual suburban place, and while not so pretentious as on the Heights of Ridgewood, the houses are of a particularly good type and have beautifully kept grounds. Ramsey, the next place along the line, gives the impression of more of a business centre than any of the other towns between Ridgewood and Suffern. Here the stores centre around the station and the village property is quite closely built up with the smaller type of cottage. It has a good school, a bank and several churches. After leaving Ridgewood one notices that the elevation gradually increases, and during hot, sultry weather after Hohokus is passed the atmosphere is noticeably clearer and cooler.

This constantly increasing elevation continues until Mahwah is reached, Mahwah being the highest point on the main line of the Erie Railroad in Jersey. At Mahwah, and for several miles on each side of the track, the country is without question the most beautiful in the metropolitan district. The station, although situated in the lowest part of the town, has an elevation of over 300 feet, which is about the same as the highest part of Ridgewood. On the west side of the track, right at the station, are the residences of A. J. and Albert Winters, who control many acres in and about Mahwah. These homes have commanding sites directly opposite each other on the Darlington road and overlook a pretty lake. On the crest above them is the Mahwah school, a substantial brick building commanding a view up and down the Ramapo Valley. The Dutch Reformed Church is directly opposite. Shortly beyond this point begins the famous Havemeyer estate, one of the finest in the country, consisting of 2,500 acres of magnificent farm land, including a considerable portion of the Ramapo range. Through this estate for 2½ miles runs the Ramapo Valley road, which was laid out by the late Theodore A. Havemeyer, and is lined on each side with rows of maples and evergreens planted alternately, making a driveway unequaled by anything in this part of the country.

Adjoining the Havemeyer place is George Crocker's estate, including about 1,500 acres, in the centre of which is built probably the most expensive house in New Jersey, said to cost $2,000,000. On this estate the Valley road comes into close proximity to the beautiful Ramapo River and follows it for several miles through the former estate of Countess Seckendorff, now owned by Charles S. Kohler, and past the home of Clarence E. Chapman and other fine places to Pompton Lakes. This drive from the Mahwah station to Pompton is without question the most beautiful around New York, and is fast becoming the favorite haunt of automobilists. On the right of the Mahwah station lies most of the town proper. The country rises on a constantly increasing slope to a height of 700 ft. On the left of Miller road, the main road leading from the station, have been built during the past five years the beautiful residences of a number of well-to-do New York professional and business men. On the right is Cragmere in the Ramapos, a beautiful residential park, which was acquired early this spring by a New York realty company, which is dividing it into large plots and selling it to New York people who want to get away from the cut and dried city and ordinary suburban conditions, and get a place large enough to have a real country home.

The plan of development is unique in that every purchaser becomes a member of the Cragmere Association, which owns the park, driveways and lake, and which provides carriage service to and from the station to all the residents. This association keeps up the beautiful park-like character of the property, and will maintain a clubhouse, tennis court, etc., for the use of the members. Cragmere was formerly the estate of Col. Ezra Miller, the inventor of the first automatic car coupler, who spent most of his large incomes landscaping and improving his property. During his lifetime this property was the show place of the Ramapo section. The entrance to Cragmere is within a few hundred feet of the Mahwah station, at which point begins a beautiful drive lined on one side with evergreens and on the other with magnificent shade trees.

There are five miles of such drives, each with its own peculiar charm, and from which at intervals of every few hundred feet magnificient vistas open up, some up, some down, the beautiful Ramapo Valley, others across the mountains where range after range may be seen, affording a constantly changing panorama such as is impossible to find any other place this side of the Catskills.

Mahwah is thirty miles from New York, has an express service of 46 minutes and a commutation rate of $7.60. One mile from Mahwah is Suffern, N. Y., a fast-growing town of about 4,000 inhabitants, with splendid stores, schools and churches. The roads through this part of the country are exceedingly well kept and are being frequented more and more as the automobiles become familiar with them. The Franklin turnpike, which runs through all of the towns mentioned, is the main road from New York to Tuxedo, and by turning off at Suffern and going through Spring Valley to Nyack and crossing the Hudson to Tarrytown, a circuit of about 70 miles may be made which makes one of the finest auto trips imaginable. It may well be said that northern New Jersey is just beginning to be known, and its many natural advantages, healthful climate and the entire absence of malaria and mosquitoes insures for it a very promising future.

AN EQUITABLE BASIS OF RENT.

By WALTER D. ABRAHAM.

The rent question is of supreme importance to a vast number of people living in Manhattan. It is not the purpose of this paper to eliminate the necessity for this charge, but to show where it can be more equitably distributed.

In the first place, it is natural that the rental charge should arise for the following reasons: The complete and fundamental ownership of landed property, as recognized by law, is a right of ownership inherent in that collective mass of individuals whom we speak of as the people. The people, therefore, have certain rights which are inalienable to them, and are to be recognized by their representatives when any sale of an interest in land forms the special subject of negotiation. As an instance, it is to be noted that where a record of this nature of transaction is taken cognizance of, a duly filed document technically known as an abstract of title, is the recognition of certain rights which have passed through successive holdings and ensures a clear title in so far as it is a public document and has within itself the main statements of such successive holdings and previously recognized as valid in law.

By right of law, the said owner came into any rights which such said owner may have by virtue of having paid, a certain sum of money, to any previous recognized legal owner. Thus one of the processes which entail rent, is the fact that there has passed a certain sum of money or a certain equivalent, by which a new owner becomes obliged to accrue an income as return for the money invested.

Secondly, the charge for rent is necessary, due to a labor expense contracted by an owner who employs a certain class of artisans to construct the building. We see, therefore, that, added to the cost of the ground, a tenant, when he pays rent, is assessed on a basis which is determined by both a labor and a land charge.

Thirdly, a charge which must be met in the payment of rent by the tenant, is that incurred by the necessity of purchasing the material, or structural requirements which are used where the material is of any nature whatsoever. Now these three charges always, by successive steps, form a total sum of expense which are necessary obligations as a fixed charge and in so wise conditioned as to be a lien where the occupying-tenant's fee is a subject to be considered. Proportioned, therefore, to the merchant's bill for structural material, to the item of expense incurred for labor, when this matter of wages is considered, and the item of ground or land cost, is the charge to be met with the fee exacted in the way of rent becomes an obligation of the tenant.

Now, it is from the foregoing clearly seen that, where a laborer aims, and so consequently secures what perhaps may correctly be called an undue amount for his services, in his part in the construction of any species of building, is raising the rent of the tenant.

BANK OR BUILDING LOAN.

Following this we have what is known as a bank or building loan and is an obligation of the builder, who is the borrowing party. This falls again in its turn, as a charge against the tenant where a building is constructed on a bond or mortgage; so it follows, that when a structure is built where the builder is an erector on a bond and mortgage loan, so in accordance with that special rate of interest charged by a lending party is his ability to apportion the charge of rent, and so decides whether or not a tenant can afford to occupy suitable and proper accommodation.

From the rent derived the builder is in a position to meet, firstly, his obligation to repay any bond he may have given for the purchase of property on which to build; secondly, for the payment of any obligation he may have given, as an employer of labor; thirdly, there arises the necessity of paying whomsoever it was from whom he purchased building supplies, and fourthly, from the rent accrues an income whereby the bank or loaning institution has a source from whence it derives a payment of its loan.

Now, it is the tendency of one or more of these specified charges to influence the rate of compensation which a landlord is under the necessity of exacting, and that if these charges were made of the least burdensome character, the landlord or builder would be in a corresponding position to apportion the exaction of rent so as to make it fall less hardly on the lessee.

An exorbitant rate of interest tends to make the meeting of payment in respect to rent of an accordingly difficult matter where the rentor is a party of moderate means whose circumstances are such that he can hardly meet the bills requiring payment for the necessities of life, and that, in a case where the loaner connives to so charge interest for the use of money, where it is loaned for the building of homes, that if the rate at which such money is lent is beyond a certain set price it invalids a law such as is paramount to pure commercialism, in so far that the laws of commerce are not necessarily such which are laws enforceable in strict ethics or equity, and the state of fixing rates for money and so consequently charging a rate over a certain sum for housing-accommodation is not justly enforceable at law where the rate is out of proportion to the wage of labor or the average man's earning power with due consideration of the prices which must be paid on a cash basis, for each and every one of those items which are known as necessities of life; and judging by this basis, it is yet to be definitely fixed, as far as a principle in regard to an immutable law of the land is concerned, whether a man can charge exceeding a certain maximum sum, or rate of interest, where his money is so loaned as to be put out on a building or home bond and mortgage loan. It likewise follows that the prices of commodities, while being determined by a law of mutual commercial contract, perhaps may be amenable in some way to that policy which determines what is or is not beneficial to the majority, sometimes perhaps known as public policy or for the benefit of that mass who constitute the people.

SUPPLY MAN MAKES PRICE.

Now be it noted that the supply-man, who has been referred to above, is, in his turn dominated or influenced, where he makes a special price on his goods, whatsoever such goods may be, by the fact of his having to pay a certain price whensoever he is the purchaser of the said goods; by which we mean he is influenced in his selling price, which accordingly determine rents wheresoever his goods may be installed, by the condition of the labor market; that is to say he is ruled, or governed, in a necessary measure, by whatsoever wages which the manufacturer from whom he purchases the said goods are compelled to pay where the item of labor-charges of the manufacturers are concerned. He, therefore, is not himself directly responsible in all unqualified ways for the price he must charge, so as to ensure himself a profit, when he sells to a builder who is constructing any class of structure. Wages, therefore, unmistakably determine the selling price of the supply-man's goods. If he wishes to sell low, he is forced, under circumstances, to employ, when he himself is the manufacturer as well as the supply man, what is understood when the expression cheap labor is used. If he pays high wages we see the result in an increased rent; so that the prices of all commodities, it can be gathered from this, whether of edibles or of structural materials which go to the making of a tenantable property, are to the exclusion of any other consideration whatsoever, whether of a gold or silver or a paper currency, absolutely and incontrovertibly fundamentally dependent on the price of labor, whether expressed in a monetary unit as the pound sterling of England, the mark of Germany, the rouble of Russia, or the dollar of the United States.

HOME COLONIES FORMING.—Perhaps the most distinctive feature of the suburban realty market this season is the call for villa plots in residential communities from 18 to 30 miles outside the limits of the city. It cannot be said that all of those who have purchased bought with a speculative motive, on the contrary, a considerable number secured real estate for individual use, having in mind the ultimate building of homes for themselves. A strong movement has also arisen in the way of forming large home colonies, which is particularly noticeable in the Hudson River counties. It is the opinion of those who have studied the suburban situation that the automobile is probably chiefly responsible for the metamorphosis. With the introduction of gasoline cars what has heretofore been considered inaccessible realty is now viewed oppositely. And there is good reason for this change of conviction, too, particularly when it is taken into consideration that all the advantages of country life can now be obtained, with little or no trouble in traveling to and from the metropolis.

Lawyers Mortgage Company

RICHARD M. HURD, President

To the Board of Directors:

Gentlemen: The first half of the year 1909 has been noteworthy, first, for the largest net gain in the history of the Company in Outstanding Guaranteed Mortgages for a six months' period, and second, for the increase in the Capital Stock from $2,500,000 to $4,000,000, made necessary by the growth of the Company's business. The total sales of Guaranteed Mortgages for the past six months have been $16,897,501; net increase in Outstanding Guaranteed Mortgages, $9,628,029, and the total Outstanding Guaranteed Mortgages now amount to $86,905,963.

Since the former increase in the Company's capital in March, 1903, Dividends have been paid to Stockholders amounting to $1,300,000, in addition to which $776,467 has been carried to Surplus or Undivided Profits, making total net earnings of $2,076,467. In addition to these earnings, the net increase in Unearned Premiums from January 1st, 1903, to June 30th, 1909, amounts to $855,089.

The Assets and Liabilities of the Company have been verified and the Company's accounts certified as of June 30th, 1909, by THE AUDIT COMPANY OF NEW YORK.

There are 6,578 mortgages outstanding, the average loan being $29,000 in Manhattan; $5,700 in Brooklyn, and $13,000 in the Bronx.

The large increase in Outstanding Guaranteed Mortgages during the past six months is but little reflected in the earnings for that period but will show in future earnings.

UNEARNED PREMIUMS.

In addition to the cash earnings are the Unearned Premiums, which consist of the Company's contract profit of one-half per cent. per annum on outstanding mortgages from the date of this statement to the maturity of the mortgages. These future profits—which are not carried as assets—amount to $958,644.

The accompanying Map shows the distribution of the total Outstanding Guaranteed Mortgages of the Company on June 30th, 1909, in Manhattan, the Bronx and Brooklyn.

It is worthy of note that 63 per cent. of the Company's mortgages are on Manhattan Island, while 29 per cent. are in Brooklyn and 8 per cent. in the Bronx.

The average amount loaned by the Company is 62 per cent. of the Company's own appraisal.

For the absolute protection of the holders of Guaranteed Mortgages, the Board of Directors has adopted the following By-Laws:

"The amount of outstanding Guaranteed Mortgages shall not exceed twenty times the Capital and Surplus of the Company.

"This Article shall not be amended or repealed except with the written consent, duly acknowledged, of the holders of all the policies of mortgage insurance then outstanding issued by the Company.

"Mortgages shall be guaranteed by the Company only when secured by real estate improved for business or residence purposes, and situated within the present limits of the City of New York, or such enlargements thereof as may hereafter be fixed by law.

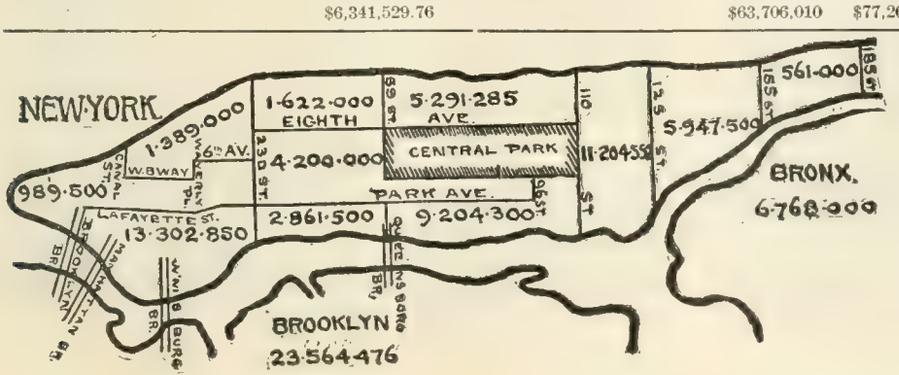
"Such mortgages shall not exceed two-thirds of the valuation of the real estate security as ascertained by the Company's appraisers or such larger percentage of said valuation as may be fixed by the laws of the State of New York for the investment of funds held by Trustees, Trust Companies or Life Insurance Companies.

"The charge of the Company for guaranteeing the payment of mortgages shall not exceed one-half of one per cent. per annum of the principal amount guaranteed.

"This Article shall not be amended or repealed except by the written consent of three-fourths of the Directors then in office, and by vote of a majority of all the outstanding stock of the Company at a special Stockholders' meeting called for that purpose."

These limitations have been for many years in use by the Company and their effectiveness in safeguarding the Company's mortgage investments is clearly evidenced by its unusually clean record in the matter of delinquent interest and foreclosures.

Since Dec. 12th, 1894, when the Company began business, 9,974 mortgage loans have been made aggregating $155,000,000, of which the Company has been compelled to purchase 18 at foreclosure sale, amounting to $423,900, resulting in total losses to the Company in fifteen years of only $13,057. The Company now has under foreclosure 14 mortgages, many of which will probably be paid off prior to foreclosure sale. The Company owns one piece of foreclosed real estate valued at $5,680, which is under contract of sale. Interest delinquent for more than one month amounts to $4,919.



The recent purchase by Stockholders of the Company of $1,500,000 of new stock—increasing the Capital from $2,500,000 to $4,000,000 and raising the Capital and Surplus to $6,000,000—is an important step for the protection of holders of our Guaranteed Mortgages. The guaranteed mortgage business is a permanent business as has been demonstrated in Europe where it has been conducted—in slightly different form—for 140 years and where it is practically the only way in which investors buy mortgages. A factor which works for the protection of investors, is the Company's valuable experience during the past fifteen years with its resulting development of sound and cautious methods of lending. While it is true that the steady growth of New York City furthers the safety of all existing mortgages, it is also true that owners of property because of this growth are continually pressing for larger and larger loans, so that caution is always needed. To be entirely safe in lending, it is necessary to have technical knowledge and correct judgment and to use constant watchfulness over the movements of population, the shifting of nationalities, the new transportation systems and all the complex changes of industries and habitations within the city, which affect the value of land and buildings.

The principle adopted of increasing the Capital Stock of the Company in proportion to the increase of the Company's business works not only for the protection of investors, but also to the advantage of Stockholders, in that opportunity is furnished from time to time for the employment of additional capital in such a way as to be both safe and highly profitable.

LAW DEPARTMENT

PARTNERSHIP.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

A and B entered in business investing share and share alike. There are no written agreements, verbal only. B wants to sell out his interest. The question arises, (1) has A the right to refuse to accept as a partner a party who is willing to buy B's share of the business? (2) In the event of continued rejections by A, what redress has B to gain his point (A not being willing to buy B's share)?

Answer.—(1) Yes. (See Parsons on Partnership, fourth edition, on page 138.) (2) B may bring a suit for an appointment of a receiver, to sell partnership effects and wind up the partnership. The debts of the firm would then be paid, and the receivership expenses, balance to be divided among partners equally.

NO SALE.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

A negotiates to buy a parcel from B through C, who is the broker. After dickering in reference to price, A says he would take parcel at a given price, if same can be delivered. C, as broker, asks for a binder to pay on property in case B is willing to sell. In the presence of witnesses A says binder is not necessary, as his word is good, and would take property if C could deliver same on stipulated price. After going through quite some work, C going to the country to see B, B consents to sell under stipulated price, when A backs down. Can C, as the broker, hold A responsible for commission?

Answer.—No.

INHERITANCE.

BY WILLIAM A. GRETZINGER.

In English law, inheritance, heir, and other kindred words have a meaning very different from that of the Latin Haeres, from which they are derived. In Roman law, the heir or heirs represented the entire legal personality of the deceased—his Universum Jus. In English law the heir is simply the person on whom the real property of the deceased devolves by operation of law if he dies intestate. He has nothing to do as heir with the personal property; he is not appointed by will; and except in the case of coparceners he is a single individual. The Roman Haeres takes the whole estate; his appointment may or may not be by testament; and more persons than one may be associated together as heirs.

In the United States the English law of inheritance has been more completely repudiated than any other portion of the British system. Each state has established rules of descent for itself, and the observation of Chief Justice Reeve that the nation "has no general law of descents, which probably has not fallen to the lot of any other country," is to some extent justified by the great differences in detail between the rules obtaining in the different states. The following are the rules of most general application, as stated in Kent's Commentaries on American Law, 12th Edition, edited by O. W. Holmes, Jr.:

(1) Real estate shall descend to the lawful descendants of the owner, in the direct line of lineal descent; and if there be but one person, then to him or her alone; and if more than one person, and all of equal degrees of consanguinity to the ancestor, then to the several persons or tenants in common in equal parts, however remote from the intestate the common degrees of consanguinity may be.

(2) When the lawful issue are of unequal degrees of consanguinity to the intestate, the inheritance shall descend to the children and grandchildren, if any be living, and to the issue of such as shall be dead, as tenants in common; but such grandchildren and their descendants inherit only such share as their parents respectively would have taken if living. These two rules are stated to prevail in all the United States, with some important variations, however, in the case of the first rule.

(3) In the absence of descendants the inheritance goes to the parents, either first to the father and next to the mother, or jointly under certain conditions.

(4) If the intestate dies without issue or parents the estate goes to his brothers and sisters and their representatives. If the relatives are of equal degrees of consanguinity they take in equal parts; but if, of the same degree, some be dead, leaving issue, and others living, the descendants of those who are dead take only their parents' share. Collaterals under this rule would be preferred to ascendants—after parents. "It is, perhaps, universally the rule that brothers and sisters are preferred to grandparents, though the latter stand in an equal degree of kindred." In some states there is no essential distinction left between the whole and the half-blood, in others, the half-blood is postponed, but nowhere is it totally excluded.

(5) In default of the foregoing, the inheritance generally goes to grandparents, but in some states (New York, New Jersey and North Carolina), grandparents are excluded, and in others postponed.

(6) Next come uncles and aunts and their descendants, taking PER CAPITA if of equal degree, and PER STIRPES if not.

(7) If the inheritance came to the deceased on the part of his father, the father's brothers and sisters would exclude the mother's brothers and sisters, and the mother's brothers and sisters would have a similar preference in respect of property coming to the deceased EX PARTE MATERNA. A similar distinction is observed in some states in applying the fourth rule.

(8) On failure of heirs under the preceding rules, recourse is had to the "next-of-kin" as ascertained by the English statute of distributions. In many of the states the harshness of the English rule that natural children have no inheritable blood is greatly mitigated. In Louisiana, if duly acknowledged, they may inherit from both father and mother in the absence of lawful issue.

POINTS FOR THE PROPERTY OWNER.

A fireplace that will draw well and throw out heat may easily be built. The chimney flue should measure 13 sq in. for every square foot of opening in the fireplace. The area in the flue should be taken at the smallest point in the chimney. It often happens that masons become careless in laying the brick for a chimney flue with the result that it is drawn in either at the top or at places where it should not be. The slightest contraction has a tendency to reduce the amount of draft. A fireplace containing a less amount of flue space will smoke and draw slowly.

It often becomes necessary to destroy the odor of fresh paint before a new tenant occupies a property. Onions will be found an aid in this direction. They should be cut into small pieces and placed in two or three saucers in the affected part of the building, and left 24 hours when it will be found that all traces of the offending odors will have been absorbed.

It is not a difficult matter to select a good hot-air furnace. Nearly every stove dealer handles furnaces and will tell you that the best furnaces are those which have a chamber of generous size through which the smoke and gases circulate before passing up the chimney. A chamber of larger dimensions allows the heat to be taken up by the outside air and carried to the rooms. Avoid purchasing a furnace with a straight ash door to the chimney. Steel furnaces heat rapidly, in fact, many experts maintain that those built of this material heat up more readily than furnaces of cast iron.

Rough sand plaster walls are made by using sharp coarse sand mixed in the proportion of about three of sand to one of lime putty, with a little plaster of paris. It is put on about one-eighth of an inch in thickness and will hold coloring matter well, although it cannot be cleaned with water. The coloring matter can be purchased at any paint store or supply house.

IN A HUMOROUS VEIN.

According to T. L. Mason, in Success Magazine, flats are now cultivated extensively throughout the country. Some varieties are short and scrubby, others grow to an immense height. Almost every flat has a spinal column running up and down its center. This is the elevator shaft, and consists of hot air.

When a flat is more costly than people can afford to live in, it is called an apartment. A flat in its primitive state consists of a small bathroom, almost completely surrounded by total darkness. A flat is a substitute for a home, at one time a popular winter and summer resort, where traditions were allowed to grow up carelessly. Now in every well-conducted flat the traditions are drawn out every morning through a tube by the pneumatic cleaning process. Babies happen occasionally, even in the best-regulated flats. Thus we see that nature, even under modern surveillance, sometimes nods.

Flats are constantly growing in size and importance. It is estimated that very soon they will hold all the people in the world, who will then come to depend entirely upon our fertile roof gardens for their means of sustenance. Flats have an awful mean temperature of two degrees below zero in winter and ninety-two degrees above zero in summer. When all the trees have been made into flats it is thought the millenium will have arrived. Every flat has the word "Welcome" over the kitchen door. Also many of them this motto: "All ye who enter here leave soap behind."

THE WEEK.

THERE are unmistakable evidences that realty trading has at last settled down to a state of midsummer calm. In fact, buying and selling is desultory, as is nearly always the case when the professional operator is absent from the field. Besides, many private buyers who are wont to take advantage of early summer opportunities in the market have not yet returned from their Independence Day tours. It must be conceded that conditions of this kind are not altogether satisfactory to the brokerage branch of the business, but protracted lulls are not without their moral, since they tend to egg the negotiator on to accomplish greater results during the season when inquiries come in fast and business is good and plenty. The old proverb, "make hay while the sun shines," is particularly applicable in this instance. It is impossible to lay too much stress upon the necessity of obeying this measure for protection. To some who are so fortunate as to enjoy the advantages of standing orders to buy or sell at their discretion this warning may be misdirected, but its strict observance by others who may not be so favored often means the open sesame to success.

In making comparisons of the character of business transacted during the week with that of the corresponding period for 1908 there seems to be little difference, with the exception perhaps that in the course of the latter a larger number of business buildings changed hands in the district below 59th st, and fewer sales of new houses were consummated in the territory across the Harlem River.

Included among the leading transactions reported for the week the sale of a 6-sty mercantile building at 73 to 77 Mercer st is interesting in that the property has been purchased for investment. The structure is now occupied by Theodore Tiedemann & Sons under a net lease for a period of years. It will be recalled that until recently little or no trading has been confined to improved property in Mercer st, but those in a position to pass judgment affirm that owing to favorable changes in the character and standing of new business concerns now locating in the immediate neighborhood of the property in question, the future demand for investments in that section is likely to increase in proportion. In this connection it can be further said that there was a time when Mercer st property was considered a choice investment, but the inevitable happened; some lines in the wholesale dry goods trade exhibited a tendency to move farther westward and northward into more modern and less expensive quarters, to the end that many vacancies were created, rendering considerable property temporarily unproductive. That a return to former conditions is fast taking place is a consolation to many.

The announcement that one of the large title companies made a loan of $450,000 at 4½ per cent. on first mortgage to the Hotel Securities Co. on the 13-sty fireproof hotel at the northwest cor of 49th st and Madison av, is convincing evidence of the abundance of mortgage money which may now be had at low rates of interest. Not only is money easy where straight mortgages are concerned, but funds for building loans can be secured at short notice and upon the most liberal terms as well. This condition not only obtains within the limits of New York City, but also extends over the entire commuting zone. Mortgage money has become so cheap lately that even building and loan associations in some instances have been obliged to abandon high interest charges and premiums in order to obtain applications.

During the middle of the week interest was centered around Herald Square by the announcement of the purchase of the 12-sty Childs Building at 108 West 34th st, near Broadway. The buyers are the Shanley brothers, who now control several restaurants in Manhattan. The Childs Co. has a long lease on the property, occupying several floors and subletting the others. It is learned that the building was purchased with a view of using it for restaurant purposes should it become necessary. Since the late boom in the Pennsylvania zone comparatively little trading has been confined to the south side of 34th st at this point.

THE AUCTION MARKET

LEGAL sales, as usual at this time of the year, chiefly make up the budget for the auction market. Compared with the corresponding period in 1908 the present showing indicates a healthier condition all around. On Monday at the stand of Samuel Marx the sale of No. 72 Murray st, a 4-sty loft and store building, was adjourned until July 23. At the stand of Joseph P. Day Nos. 2516 and 2518 7th av, southwest corner of 146th st, 40x100, 6-sty flats and stores, were knocked down to the plaintiff in the action for $85,628. There was due on these parcels $26,369.76; taxes, etc, $1,438.25; subject to a prior mortgage of $70,000. A parcel at 204 West 96th st, 27x100.8, 5-sty flat, advertised to be sold on the 12th inst. by Auctioneer Samuel Goldsticker, was withdrawn, to the disappointment of a coterie of speculators in that neighborhood. No better success was experienced at the sale of 216 East 112th st, sold by William Kennelly, Jr. The parcel in this instance was struck off to the plaintiff for $13,330. There was due in this case $5,002.03; taxes, etc., $174.83; subject to a mortgage of $8,000. On Tuesday at the stand of Joseph P. Day No. 178 West 135th st, a 5-sty flat, 25x99.11, against which was due $20,862.17, taxes, etc., $505, was struck off to Maximillian Weinstein for $22,400.

On Wednesday Auctioneer Herbert A. Sherman knocked down to Leonard Weill on a bid of $4,450 the northeast cor of Belmont av and 188th st, a 2-sty dwelling and vacant parcel, 95x50; also to Margaret Lyons for $4,875 the vacant property, 50x141, on the east side of Park av, 100 ft. south of 182d st. (Partition sale.) At the stand of Joseph P. Day Anna O. Pell secured a 6-sty brick store on the north side of 21st st, 85 ft. west of 6th av; sheriff's sale of all right, title, &c., which D. C. Pell had on Jan. 14, 1909, or since, for $5,000.

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

4th.—The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

5th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

6th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

7th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

8th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1908.

9th.—T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torrens System.

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M" occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Vol. LXXXIV. JULY 24, 1909. No. 2158.

THE RECORD AND GUIDE has frequently pointed out that in all probability improved means of communication with Long Island and New Jersey would tend to revive the importance of Greeley square and its neighborhood as a good location for theatres and restaurants. Recently, of course, Long Acre square and its vicinity has been getting all of this class of business; and it has looked as if eventually a large fraction of it might move as far north as Columbus Circle. But theatres and restaurants situated near the circle or even near Long Acre square, will not be very convenient for Long Island and New Jersey residents, and this fact will tend to check the hitherto prevailing tendency to a constant shifting farther north. In confirmation of this prediction several theatres have recently been erected just north of Thirty-fourth street, and now a prominent firm of restaurant-keepers have leased a location on Thirty-fourth street, just west of the square. We understand, also, that another large hotel will soon be built in this vicinity. In view of this very obvious condition, business men to whom a location near the Pennsylvania terminal would be useful should try to secure them before prices go any higher. There can be no doubt that all the streets and avenues leading towards the terminal will become far more valuable for retail trade than they have been hitherto. Riker Bros. showed their appreciation of this fact by securing a location on Seventh avenue under a long lease; and this example will have to be followed by other companies, such as the United Cigar Stores, Huyler's and the like, which seek locations wherever traffic is or promises to be peculiarly dense. During the coming real estate season a large amount of business of this kind will be transacted, and brokers will do well to prepare for it, and to persuade their clients to secure locations before prices become too high. The retailers who have made money on Fifth avenue were those who leased or bought sites while prices were still reasonable; and the same statement will prove to be true of the Pennsylvania terminal district.

IT IS a fair inference from the course of events during the past few years that the tendency even on the East Side is setting away from private residences and towards a further increase in apartment houses. Up to 1906 the district to the east of the Central Park was the only part of Manhattan in which the private residence still held its own. Of course apartment houses were built in that section, particularly on Madison avenue; but the value of land had nevertheless been increasing for some years, owing exclusively to the demand for private residences. Since 1906 the increase has not continued. Owners who have received exceptionally high prices for their dwellings have been those whose lots were needed for apartment houses. Certain owners, who were forced to sell their property, had to accept substantial concessions from the figures formerly prevailing. To be sure the process of replacing the old brownstone houses with new American basement residences still continues; but the movement has lost its earlier impetus and volume. Many families, who formerly would have bought dwellings, have been content with proprietary apartments in one of the new co-operative apartment houses. Others have preferred to rent apartments at very high prices. Most of the new apartment houses recently erected on the East Side have been leased quickly and at rentals very remunerative for their owners. The consequence is that they are being erected in large numbers and that they will continue to be erected in large numbers during the coming year. Unless some change in condition takes place, it is improbable consequently that much higher prices will be reached for residence property east of the Central Park. People will find apartments, even if rented, less trouble and on the whole less costly. Even Park avenue, which it was expected would become a Fifth avenue, will have on it comparatively few private dwellings compared to the larger number of apartment houses. The side streets cannot, of course, be improved with tall buildings and so must remain the location of small dwellings; but the value of the lots will not go much higher. In the end, of course, some other location must be found for the homes of the wealthy, unless the wealthy should diminish in numbers, but that end will not come for another ten or fifteen years.

NOW that all the tunnels built by the Hudson & Manhattan Tunnel Company under the river are in use, the next question in reference to them of interest to the Manhattan property owner concerns their possible future extension. The McAdoo system is fairly complete at the present time; but it could unquestionably be made much more complete. The management of that road understands clearly the desirability of collecting and distributing its traffic over the widest possible area; and it is this understanding which has made it extend its northerly route, first to Greeley square and then to the Grand Central station. No official announcement has been made that further extensions are contemplated; but there can be little doubt that as soon as the company is in receipt of its full income under present conditions, further extensions will be proposed. Its terminus at Greenwich and Cortlandt streets is as well situated as possible for the financial district that will supply the bulk of its traffic; but as yet no sufficient provision has been made for the collection and distribution of passengers throughout the old mercantile district. There is every probability consequently that eventually some plan will be submitted to connect the Sixth avenue line with the Cortlandt street terminal by means of a lower West Side route running as near as is practicable to Broadway. An extension of this kind would enable the business population of the older mercantile district to take the north or south tunnels as suited their convenience, and it would give improved means of communication to a part of Manhattan which has hitherto been neglected in all the accepted plans for rapid transit development. Another extension which has been suggested is that of an East Side subway connecting the Cortlandt street terminal with the present northerly terminus of the system at Forty-first street and Park avenue. This line also would be very valuable to the New York & New Jersey Tunnel Company, because it would enable it to collect and distribute traffic throughout the whole city and the East Side, between City Hall and the Grand Central station. In case both were constructed the tunnel company would have a belt line around the lower part of Manhattan, tapping substantially the whole business district of that borough. It should be added, however, that this East Side line would cost a great deal of money, and many years may well elapse before the management of the company can afford such an increase of its responsibilities.

HOW should these extensions be regarded from the point of view of a comprehensive rapid transit system for the whole of New York City? Could the local authorities afford to permit the occupation of so much space in Manhattan for the benefit of lines that would be really supplementary to the railroad system of New Jersey? Probably they could not afford to do so in case the proposed lines interfered with essential longitudinal subways, designed to carry passengers to and from north New York; but we do not see why such lines should so interfere. When the franchise for the original Sixth avenue extension was granted, the old Rapid Transit Commission arranged that it should be built too deep to interfere with another subway nearer the surface, and there is no reason why a similar precaution should not be adopted in relation to both of the extensions we have described. In that case they would not interfere with any important longitudinal express routes, while at the same time they would constitute a valuable additon to the purely local transit system of Manhattan. A belt line running around the lower business district of that borough would develop a large amount of exclusively local traffic, and in the end such belt lines will certainly be needed. Hitherto Manhattan, south of Forty-second street, has been much more closely connected with the district to the north than with the districts to the east and the west. But the lower Manhattan of the future will increasingly become the business and amusement centre for the whole of the metropolitan district. The density of traffic will be much greater south of Forty-second street than it will be north of that line, and its accommodations will demand a larger number of subways within that area. The consequence is that the belt line would be useful quite apart from its connection with the New Jersey tunnels. But, of course, its chief value would consist in the fact that it would enable the inhabitants of Hudson, Essex and Bergen counties to transact business conveniently over the whole business district of Manhattan. Every increase in the case of communication with New Jersey means an increase in the value of lower Manhattan real estate. In the course of twenty years there will be over 2,500,000 people living on the other side of the Hudson River, and the more completely they can be connected with Manhattan the greater the prosperity of the central borough.

THE BUILDING CODE is the great theme of the week, the sensational news feature for the daily papers, and the subject of general attention from property owners and building lines. Two long days were given up to hearings before the Mayor, who now has all the papers in the case and the fullest knowledge of the ordinance that both its friends and its opponents could give him. Having been eminently fair in his method of procedure, and having given evidence of a clear comprehension of the technicalities of the case, the Chief Executive of the city is generally credited with an intention to render a judgment as wise and just as any man would be capable of under the circumstances. From his attitude at the hearings he is expected to try to save enough of the code for a working basis. The difficulty in doing this is owing to the constitutional prohibition against his altering any of the provisions of the code. He must either veto or approve each as a whole. From intimations given at the hearing, it is thought that a section that will be crossed out is the one providing for a board of registration, which appears to be of doubtful constitutionality. The provisions for discretionary action by the Superintendent of Buildings have met with almost unanimous condemnation in their present form. Many architects were and still are in favor of granting a measure of discretionary power, but they have always coupled with this assent the stipulation that the rulings of the Superintendent shall be made a matter of public record and shall also serve as precedents. The present provisions require no public record of modifications, and they have been shown to be by eminent legal minds in conflict with the higher law of the City Charter in several particulars. No one expects that the Mayor will approve the code as it stands, but the wonder is how much of it that is worth having can be saved. The suggestion has been made that if possible it should be recalled for further amendment, but it is improbable that this can be managed.

A BUILDING SUPERINTENDENT REMOVED.—The tenure of office of a Superintendent of Buildings in New York City is as uncertain as the duration of a soldier's life on the battlefield. Superintendent D. F. Moore, of Brooklyn, who was suspended by the Borough President last week and removed this week, could hardly have expected to live forever in the office. A political job unprotected by the civil service is unsatisfactory employment at best. The higher the pay the shorter the time before the hand is played out and the cards are shuffled again. Mr. Moore takes the trouble to deny the "charges," but that does not stop the steam-roller. Other cities can keep good servants in executive positions for long periods, and all the while maintain an ideal relation, with full confidence and discretion accorded by the public on one hand, and a fair and consistent policy on the other; but politics in New York are yet too turbulent for that.

THE HUDSON RIVER CITIES are doing more building this year than ordinarily. Albany has in course of construction or just completed 250 buildings. Negotiations are pending for a boat factory to be erected at Albany by the Detroit Motor Boat Company of Detroit, which manufactures a high grade motor boat and gives steady employment to 950 men and 50 women. They are doing a good business, but want to get nearer the metropolis. At Poughkeepsie, where the American Cement Company, of Philadelphia, bought a mill site recently, the Fiat Automobile Company contemplates erecting large shops. (This company is represented in New York at 1786 Broadway.) Newburgh, the pivotal point for the Hudson-Fulton celebration, is sending circulars over the country offering, through the Business Men's Association, a number of fine manufacturing sites, with both water and rail communication. At West Point the Government is making large improvements, which will keep hundreds of mechanics employed for years to come.

FEW BUILDINGS REALLY FIREPROOF.

By F. W. FITZPATRICK.

ONE-QUARTER of the sum expended for insurance in the year 1907 would have made every building erected in that period of fireproof construction.

Better buildings are the only prevention we can resort to or that we know of. True, no other nation builds so convenient and generally attractive buildings as we do and nowhere else, paradoxical as they may seem, has the art of fireproof construction been so highly developed. The trouble is that we have illustrated that art in distressingly few buildings. In round numbers there are perhaps 12,000,000 buildings in the country—representing a value of something like $14,600,000,000—but of that number but 8,000 have been constructed so that by any stretch of the imagination they can be called fireproof. While even of that number there are really but six or seven structures in the entire land that are positively and full-fledged fireproof in the exact sense of the term!

Yet, to make a new building fireproof is comparatively easy and costs even initially not more than 10% more than does an ordinary construction, while after a life of four or five years it has become, actually as well as sentimentally, an economy, the least costly building to own. Why in the name of Heaven is so little of it done?

New York has 3,000 firemen and 11,000 horses and 160 steam fire-engines and the department has to respond to 26 alarms a day, and in spite of its wonderful efficiency the city suffers something like $7,000,000 loss a year. London has about 3,843 fires a year and Berlin 3,000, with a loss of perhaps $170,000. Rome will average 270 fires a year, Milan 786, Florence 160, and so on down the list, with not one European city equalling, pro rata of population, one-fifth of the fire loss or the cost of maintenance of fire departments that we have in this country.

Our economists have traced the panic of 1907 directly to the San Francisco fire. That absolute destruction of capital, disappearance of resources was, according to them, and we believe with reason, the beginning and principal cause of our late depression.

We say that fireproof construction is the one and only means of fire prevention. The term "fireproof" is used altogether too glibly. A man puts a tin roof upon his wooden building, or a concrete floor in his cellar, and immediately, by some occult process, it becomes a "fireproof" building, and he and his neighbors are grievously surprised if the thing eventually burns to the ground. The science is exact and its application simple, but no halfway measures are of much value. Like a chain, that is only as strong as its weakest link, so is a building. Everything must be done right for one little wrong is quite sufficient to vitiate all that has been done correctly. It is distressing indeed to see hundreds of thousands of dollars put into some great building, substantially built, and with all sorts of costly provisions made against fire, but with some foolish little detail missing—exposed windows on an alley unprotected, or something as silly that jeopardizes all that is in that building and its own very safety.

Architects are largely to blame for this. They seemingly have not seen and appreciated the necessity there is to do everything well. They are too busy endeavoring to create, by the exterior of a building, a monument to their own genius to give adequate time and consideration to the permanency and lasting qualities of the structure they are evolving. But even the laymen ought to know and could easily learn what really constitutes fireproof construction. The structure in all its parts and its decoration and finish should be of non-combustible and preferably non-damageable materials; its elevators and stairs should be enclosed; its windows and doors should be protected from external attack, and there should be ample equipment and due diligence exercised to prevent the spread of an incipient fire in the contents of that building. Surely simple enough general rules.

Beaux Arts Prize Winners.

The Society of Beaux Arts Architects have made the final judgment for the Paris prize of this year. The chosen pupil is sent abroad for three years and is permitted by the French Government to enter the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris without examination.

The subject given was a permanent exposition or institute for American industries in Washington. The large number of competitors was finally narrowed down to five, who were judged by a jury of twenty well known architects and members of the society. The prizes were awarded as follows:

M. J. Sciavoni, pupil of Mr. Prevot, first; A. F. Adams, pupil of Mr. Corbett, second; H. D. Hughes, pupil of Mr. Hornbostel, third. John Lange, pupil of Donn Barber, and Fred Feirel, pupil of Mr. Hornbostel, also competed. This prize in former years has been given by J. Pierpont Morgan, Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Juillard. This year the prize is the gift of Lloyd Warren.

An exhibition of the drawings for the public is being held to-day at East 22d st.

CONSTRUCTION

THE MAYOR AND THE BUILDING CODE

At Two Public Hearings He Gives It a Thorough Consideration— Believed to be Against Unlimited Discretion and Board of Registration

MAYOR McCLELLAN is authorized by the Charter to reject or approve of any section of the new ordinance known as the Building Code. But he cannot amend or alter any of them. This is one reason why he took up the Code for consideration on Wednesday morning section by section. During the two days that the hearing continued he gave the ordinance the most thorough revision it has yet received in public. On Wednesday morning and afternoon he heard the opponents of the Code, and on Thursday those who had put it together or who favored its provisions.

The Mayor's appearance on the scene was unexpected, as it was thought that Acting Mayor McGowan would have the responsibility of deciding the fate of the Code. As the matter was of the highest importance, the Mayor was well advised to preside over the case himself, and the public seems to be better satisfied to have had it that way, irrespective of such political considerations as there may be.

These political considerations have become so conspicuous that it must have been difficult for the Mayor to ignore them, as it obviously was his desire, and to give judgment only in relevant matters. No apparent effort has been made to refute the very general belief that the cause of certain building interests have been championed by influential men in the city administration, and the cause of rival building lines by other influential statesmen. This is always the case with important legislation under our form of government. Something in the bill has the effect of splitting the Board of Aldermen, or the State Legislature, or the House of Congress, along political lines—and no one can prevent it. It is the way building codes and tariff laws are made, and if by any means exact justice is rendered between any two special interests it is either by accident or an oversight.

The initial mistake in this revision was in attempting anything more than what was first proposed by the Mayor, which was a mere literary revision for the most part, to bring the existing code into consonance with the present form of government, and then to incorporate with it the regulations that have been passed and the new methods of practice and construction that have been approved during the twelve years since the ordinance was enacted.

WILL ANYTHING BE SAVED?

If the Mayor has in mind the excision of objectionable sections and subdivisions altogether, and yet to leave an intelligible and workable remainder, he has a puzzling operation ahead. The general opinion was that he would be obliged to veto the whole measure.

In one fundamental particular the proceedings before the Mayor were different than those before the Building Committee. The Committee was asked to make amendments, but the Mayor was asked either to eliminate objectionable sections altogether or veto the ordinance as a whole. Early in the proceedings Mr. McClellan made his position clear in this respect and said that the question was solely on the approval or disapproval of a subdivision, section or chapter as a whole.

The speakers for the most part were from among those who had appeared at the hearings before the Committee to represent civic, professional and trade societies and various interests. The provisions most severely attacked were those creating a board of registration and a board of survey; also those provisions covering the duties and powers of the Superintendent of Buildings, the restrictions on reinforced concrete and cinder concrete, the restrictions on natural cements, and generally the code was savagely attacked for the increased cost of construction, and therefore the higher rents which it was said to impose upon the public.

It was necessary for those speakers representing professional and trade societies to speak again and again, as each section or subdivision to which they had objections to make was taken up. Generally they were brief and to the point, and those who wished to speak against the code as a whole were requested to defer their remarks until the afternoon. Objections were lodged against 52 of the 154 sections, not counting subdivisions.

The principal speakers on Wednesday were Messrs. Lawrence Veiller, representing the Tenement House Committee; William Butler, of the law firm of Eidlitz & Hulse, representing the Building Trades Employers' Association; Mr. Shallcross, of the Royal Insurance Company, for the Board of Underwriters; Electus D. Litchfield, for the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects; William F. McCoombs, for the Contractors' Association; Ernest Flagg, the architect; Prof. Burr of Columbia University, representing the engineering profession; Thos. Vinton, of Tucker & Vinton, engineers and contractors; J. P. H. Perry, of the Turner Construction Company; President Tucker of the Concrete Association; Prof. Woolson of Columbia University; George G. Gleason, representing the Consolidated Rosendale Cement Company; Rudolph P. Miller and Charles H. Israels.

OBJECTIONS TO DEFINITIONS.

The first objections interposed were by Mr. Veiller to some of the definitions given in Section 4, which bring the code into conflict with the Tenement House Law, as in subdivisions 28 and 29, one defining a cellar and the other a basement.

Mr. Butler objected to the definition of the word "approved," as used in the code, and applied to any material, manner or mode of construction. The code says that this word shall be construed as though followed by the words "by the Superintendent of Buildings." Mr. Butler also objected to the definition of the word "standard" as given in subdivision 13, where it is said that it shall be construed to mean standards approved by the Superintendent of Buildings. Mr. Shallcross objected to the definition given of a pent house.

Nobody came forward to object to Section 5, relating to the Board of Examiners, but when Section 6 was called, the one which creates the new board of registration, and under which architects, engineers and master builders generally will have to be licensed, there were many speakers desiring to be heard. Mr. McCoombs and Mr. Butler, both lawyers, made strong arguments against this section. Both challenged the power of the Board of Aldermen to license trades, and Mr. McCoombs particularly showed that the courts had uniformly held such licenses to be unconstitutional.

Mr. McCoombs cited a Baltimore case now in the U. S. Court of Appeals with which the Mayor seemed to be familiar. The lawyer said it was not required of the Mayor that he should wait to get a final decision from the courts on a law believed to be unconstitutional, but that it was his duty to veto any measure he had reason to believe unconstitutional, and Mayor McClellan agreed that this was so:

"It is my duty, as a part of the legislative machinery of the city government," said the Mayor, "to veto on the ground of unconstitutionality if such ground exists."

"Yes," answered Mr. McCoombs, "and you need not wait for the courts to pass upon the point."

"Quite true," said the Mayor.

Mr. Veiller made an especially effective address against giving the Superintendent of Buildings power to modify or vary any provision of the code. He charged that the code was here in conflict with the charter, which conferred no such authority as the code allowed.

Messrs. McCoombs, Butler, Litchfield, Flagg and Shallcross also spoke against the great discretionary power lodged with the Superintendent of Buildings.

When the question of reinforced concrete came up Professor William H. Burr, of Columbia, declared the whole section to be wrong, and that many buildings exceeding the proposed limit of 85 feet had been built and were now in service. He said he would not place any limit on the height of reinforced-concrete buildings, in answer to a question by the Mayor, who asked pertinent questions throughout the hearing. In answer to other questions, Professor Burr cited well known buildings of that kind of construction, adding that reinforced concrete was called for in the designs for the Hudson-Fulton Memorial Bridge, which will have a span of 725 feet.

Representatives of several firms using reinforced concrete also entered their objections to Section 17. These included Messrs. Thomas M. Vinton, of Tucker & Vinton; Ross F. Tucker, President of the Concrete Association of America, and J. P. H. Perry, of the Turner Construction Company. Ernest Flagg said that reinforced concrete had done more to reduce the possibility of any great conflagration than any other building material in use. Representatives of the Cement Masons' Union and the Metallic Lathers' Union also protested. They said that some two thousand men would be put out of employment in this city if the code was signed. Frederick R. Ryan, a young attorney representing the concrete interests, made an illuminating speech in behalf of cinder concrete lasting an hour, which seemingly greatly interested the Mayor.

FIRE LIMITS AND FRAME BUILDINGS.

Section 18, relating to fire limits, provoked a good deal of discussion. C. F. Shallcross, representing the Board of Fire

Underwriters, said that wood should not be used in the construction of buildings more than twelve stories or 150 feet in height.

Ex-Congressman Waldo, of Brooklyn, said that a committee which he headed had suggested that frame buildings outside the fire limits should be restricted to dwelling houses and outhouses connected with them, but no attention had been paid to the recommendation.

On Section 62, dealing with the use of Portland cement, centred the first big fight of the afternoon, the firms handling Rosendale, or natural, cement wishing an amendment which would allow them to compete with Portland cement in certain kinds of work.

C. F. Shallcross said that the phrase allowing "other approved incombustible material" for outside walls in Section 115 would give the Superintendent of Buildings power to allow the use of hollow tiles on outside walls, of which he said the underwriters did not approve.

William Butler, as attorney for the Building Trades Employers' Association, said that Section 116 was the most pointed blow in the whole code at the cinder concrete industry. The provisions that the cinders should be screened and washed, he said, had been put in the code merely to annoy the manufacturers, but the provision that only the segmental arch might be used in high buildings, and that the wire metal mesh must be imbedded at least an inch and a quarter into the concrete, shut out, he said, the use of that material.

The architects of the city protested through E. D. Litchfield, of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, who said: "The architects have boiled down all their objections to this code on these two sections, Nos. 116 and 117, and we say that if these sections become law they will work a hardship and expense to every one in this city—landlord, tenant and builder."

The code was attacked generally by L. Laflin Kellogg, of counsel to the General Contractors' Association; Thomas Rock and the representatives of several labor unions. Resolutions by employers and labor organizations condemning the proposed code were submitted to Mayor McClellan.

"DANGEROUS, ILLEGAL."

L. Laflin Kellogg, representing the General Contractors' Associations, provided one of the sensations of the day when he said the adoption of the new code would do the following things:

"Produce unutterable confusion in conforming its requirements to the statutory provisions.

"Make the Superintendent of Buildings an autocrat to whose personal and arbitrary discretion all builders and owners must bend and yield.

"Force owners and builders to adopt arbitrarily any kind of construction that may result from the whim or caprice of the Superintendent of Buildings.

"Increase largely the cost of construction.

"Reduce largely the safety of construction.

"Remove many safeguards prescribed by the Fire Department from the buildings when constructed."

"The injurious consequences of such a code," continued Mr. Kellogg, "cannot be measured and can hardly be conceived. It is absolutely the most careless, dangerous, illegal and despotic piece of legislation that has been forced on a free government in years. It has deserved and received public condemnation on all sides, and it is earnestly hoped that it may and believed it will receive the unqualified disapproval of the Mayor."

Again on Thursday builders, lawyers and scientists went before the Mayor to discuss the code. The second day was entirely devoted to its defenders. Sitting with the Mayor behind the big mahogany desk in the old Council Chamber were Chief Engineer Lewis, of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment; C. B. J. Snyder, superintendent of buildings of the Board of Education, and William B. Crowell, the Mayor's legal advisor.

A BIG BUILDER IN ITS DEFENCE.

Paul Starrett, president of the Fuller Construction Company, and also a member of the Revision Commission, admitted that the code was not perfect. "But it is," said Mr. Starrett, "a great advance for safety and good construction.

"It would be a miracle," continued Mr. Starrett, "if we had devised a code that would suit every one. But this is a great advance, and it will be best to try it, get it going, and then remedy it where it needs it."

John D. Moore, the engineer, and C. H. Cullen, the architect, both code commissioners, addressed the Mayor in defense of the document. Mr. Moore argued principally in favor of wide discretion for the Building Superintendent. He showed that he is familiar with every line of the code and he answered arguments presented at the first hearing. Mr. Cullen defended the fireproofing provisions.

John Gill and James McGill, Jr., both representing bricklayers' unions, said that their organizations were in favor of all the sections limiting the use of concrete in construction work, and were, in fact, in favor of the entire code.

Daniel F. Cohalan, Grand Sachem of Tammany Hall, and chief counsel for the National Fireproofing Company, made his first public appearance as a champion of the code since the fight over it began. He denied the repeated declarations that he brought politics into it and resented the insinuations that he framed the code in the interest of the hollow tile fireproofing companies.

President Henry, of the National Fireproofing Company, made an earnest address in defense of the fireproofing sections. He refuted a number of misstatements concerning his company. He made it evident that a great deal of the trouble over the code has arisen from exaggerated statements and misconceptions. Mr. Henry said the National Fireproofing Company might do one million dollars' worth of business in this city, but not six millions' worth.

E. V. Johnson, vice-president of the National Fireproofing Company; A. D. Kneeland, representing several clay companies, and Charles A. Bloomfield, of the New Jersey Clay Products Company, made speeches in defence of hollow brick.

"It is the opinion of every practical man," said Mr. Johnson, "that concrete is in a more or less experimental stage. Our experimental stage was passed long ago. Hollow bricks are accepted now just as steel beams are. Tile construction has been a known quantity since 1874."

Professor Bliss, of New York University, said cinder concrete, if made with clean, washed, hard coal cinders, is a splendid fireproof material, but that if made with ashes and clinkers it is not a good substance.

Alderman Kenneally, one of the Code Commissioners, defended the code against charges made by labor unions.

THE CODE HE WOULD BUILD.

Ernest Flagg's Views on What is Sufficient for New York—The Simple Laws of European Cities.

Ernest Flagg, the architect of the Singer Building, who was one of those who addressed Mayor McClellan on Wednesday in opposition to the pending building code, embodied his views in the following statement, which he afterward submitted in writing:

"I do not think you ought to sign the building code in its present form. There are many reasons why I think so. I will mention a few of the most important of them.

"If the code was entitled as it might well be, 'A law to discourage the use of non-combustible material in building in New York,' of course you would not sign it; no man who has the interests of the city at heart would do so; yet I think I can show you that it will have this very effect. It unquestionably places a premium upon the use of wood in building and a handicap upon the use of better materials.

"There has been much talk about the use of improper influence in the preparation of the code. It has been said that it was drawn to favor certain interests at the expense of other interests. I will not discuss this. It is not necessary to do so. Every provision of it can be explained on other grounds.

"The most natural mistake which the framers of such a measure as this could make would be to place quality before quantity. In most things quality should be placed before quantity; not so for the fireproofing regulations for a great city; in that case quantity is what is needed.

"It is a good thing to have buildings which are perfectly built and as nearly incombustible as possible, but bearing in mind their great cost and the fact that comparatively few can be of this kind, it is a much better thing to have a great quantity of buildings fairly fireproof.

"In our American cities, we face a great and appalling danger from fire. We stand in constant jeopardy of a fearful catastrophe. If under favorable conditions a fire ever gets beyond the control of the fire department, it may blot the whole city out of existence. In the terrible heat of such a conflagration fireproof and non-fireproof buildings would alike crumble. The remedy is not to supply the fuel, but to do away with the wood and so remove the essential element of a conflagration.

"The recognition of this fact should be the guiding principle in the preparation of our building laws. It should be the cornerstone of the code. We should escape from this dread, this terrible possibility, as rapidly as we can.

"The code as it stands—the code as it has been presented to you for signature—provides for the opposite of this; it is drawn to perpetuate present conditions or to make them worse, and I challenge anyone to controvert the truth of what I say.

"The framers of it have fallen heels over head into the very natural mistake of preferring quality to quantity. The ordinary construction of European cities is not strictly fireproof by any means, yet it is sufficiently so to guarantee them against the awful fate which daily threatens us.

"They have prescribed certain methods and specified the use of certain materials which, they say, they think are better than other methods and other materials, the use of which they have forbidden. While I do not always agree with them, I am willing to admit for the sake of argument that they are right, but no one will deny that the methods and materials prescribed are more expensive than others that will answer the purpose fairly well. If they are so, then a great mistake has been made and I appeal to you to correct it.

"If we can have fairly fireproof buildings within practicable cost, then every consideration of prudence requires that we have them, and have them with the greatest practicable speed.

"The cost of wood is daily increasing; the cost of certain kinds of non-inflammable material for building is daily becoming less, owing to new discoveries and to improved methods of manufacture. THE GULF IN COST BETWEEN WOODEN FLOOR CONSTRUCTION AND VERY GOOD FIREPROOF FLOOR CONSTRUCTION IS SLIGHT; excellent fireproof partitions, built according to a method not recognized by the code, can be had at a cost which is actually less than the cost of the dangerous inflammable partitions of wooden lath and plaster.

"We are therefore almost if not quite at the time when fireproof methods could be required without hardship to anyone, but for the burdens laid upon them by the law and the insurance interests.

"I ask you as a practical man of common sense; if the true welfare of the city does not require that the building code be framed to bridge over the little remaining gulf that separates us from buildings which will not readily burn.

"I am speaking now of the ordinary building of from three to eight stories, buildings of the kind of which one hundred are erected to every one where skeleton frames are used. These are the buildings upon which the safety of the city depends; these are the buildings which prudence demands should be replaced as rapidly as possible by others of a less dangerous kind; I ask you: is it not the part of wisdom to apply less stringent requirements to such buildings if by doing so they can be made fairly fireproof instead of highly combustible?

THE SIMPLE LAWS OF BUDAPEST.

"I have recently been appointed architect of an important building in Budapest, Hungary, and I have therefore had occasion to make myself familiar with the building laws of that city. I have been surprised to find how simple they are; they occupy hardly as many lines of print as this code does pages. It is not a treatise on or a guide for construction, but simply a measure to secure safe buildings and the necessary light and air for them and for the streets, and this is all the building laws that any city needs.

"It has been said that the government is best which governs least, and the saying aptly applies to the government of building.

"The law should provide for safe buildings and NOT CONCERN ITSELF WITH TEACHING BUILDERS how the safety is to be reached. It should not undertake to specify what materials or what methods one may use, but what is required for strength, safety and the public good.

"The only possible justification for forbidding economical methods of construction and specifying costly ones, and the only justification which I think the framers of this measure will claim for so doing is the desire to have good building.

"Now if safety and good building are wanted, I think I can point out a better way to get them than to restrict the use of incombustible material by making its use so expensive that it will not be generally employed.

A FEW MEASURES SUGGESTED.

"Let us penalize the use of wood and favor the use of fireproof materials. I will briefly state a few of the measures I would suggest to that end:

"1st—Limit the use of wooden beams to buildings which are not over fifty feet high.

"2d—Require sixteen inches as the least thickness of walls for buildings where wooden beams are used.

"3d—Forbid the use of wood for floors and partitions in buildings over seventy-five feet high and forbid its use for floors, partitions, trim, window frames and sash in buildings over one hundred feet high.

"4th—Limit the free area of floor space in buildings where wooden beams are used to 2,500 feet and place no limit of free area on buildings where no wood is used for the floors, trim, window frames or sash.

"5th—Allow the use of any kind of floor construction which will withstand a test equal to the live load prescribed by the law without more deflection than 1-32 inch to each foot of span. Tests of the completed work to be made by the Superintendent of Buildings.

"6th—Reduce the live load requirements as follows: Office buildings, 60 instead of 75 pounds; court houses, 70 instead of 100; amusement halls, churches, colleges, libraries, municipal buildings, museums, schools, theatres, 70 instead of 90; asylums, bath houses, club houses, detention buildings, dormitories, dwellings, hospitals, hotels, lodge rooms, lodging houses, restaurants, studios, tenement houses, 40 instead of 60.

"7th—Allow the following working stresses:

ON STEEL.—Tension, 18,000 pounds instead of 16,000; shear, 10,000 instead of 9,000; safe extreme fibre stresses, rolled steel beams, 18,000 pounds instead of 16,000; riveted steel beams, 16,000 pounds instead of 14,000.

ON CONCRETE.—Portland cement, 1; sand, 2; stone, 4; 500 pounds instead of 400; concrete, Portland cement, 1; sand, 3; stone, 6, instead of 5, 250 pounds.

REINFORCED CONCRETE.—Extreme fibre stress on concrete in compression, per square inch, 750 pounds instead of 550; concrete in direct compression, per square inch, 750 instead of 400; tensile stress in steel, per square inch, 18,000 instead of 16,000.

"8th—Allow the use of any kind of partitions in which wood is not used.

"9th—Make two elevators equivalent to one staircase in buildings covering more than 5,000 sq. ft. of ground surface.

"The effect of these measures would be to limit the use of wood by practically excluding it in certain cases, and making it expensive to use in others; and to reduce the cost of fireproofing so as to make it scarcely more costly than wood. I think every one of these recommendations can be justified on the grounds of sound common sense and good public policy.

"If fireproofing is cheapened, as I suggest, there would be little reason for allowing the use of wooden beams in any case, and I know that there are many people, well qualified to judge, who feel that the time has come when wooden beams should either be entirely excluded from buildings in the closely built up parts of the city, or else used only with deafening or in the form of mill construction. There would be no great hardship in limiting the use of wooden floor systems to buildings not over fifty feet high provided my other suggestions are followed.

THICKNESS OF WALLS.

"The thickness of walls for buildings where wooden beams are used should unquestionably be increased. Our walls for this kind of construction are too thin, as any one can see by looking at the ruins caused by a great fire. Twelve-inch walls weakened by beam holes often on both sides of them and by flues and chases are not strong enough to act as efficient fire resisters. Thinner walls can safely be used with fireproof floor systems than where wooden beams are used, both because such systems being made of incombustible material enter into and form a part of the wall without weakening it, and because the walls would be subjected to less heat in case of fire.

"Our so-called fireproof buildings often have double wooden floors laid on wooden sleepers, wooden door bucks, grounds, window frames, sash, trim and doors. They contain at least four square feet board measure to each square foot of floor surface. We tear down old buildings which make no pretense at being fireproof, build "fireproof buildings" in their stead, and the "fireproof buildings" often contain fifty to a hundred times as much combustible material as the old buildings did. In some of these gigantic structures which are called fireproof there is an amount of wood used which is appalling to think of. In a general conflagration, they would burn like tinder and scatter fire brands for a mile or more around them. Five-eighths of this wood could be eliminated by omitting the wooden floors and one-half the remainder by forbidding the use of wood for trim, window frames and sash. There would be no hardship in excluding wood from floors, for cement floors can be had for less than the cost of wood, and much of the trim of fireproof buildings could be dispensed with to advantage.

"As to floor construction, how can it make any difference to the city what kind is used if it is strong enough to do the work required of it? Whether it is strong enough can easily be ascertained by test loads applied as suggested. The thing that does make a great difference to the city is the presence or the absence of wood. Every stick of wood which can be omitted from a building is a clear gain to the city.

CINDER CONCRETE.

"Cinder concrete, when properly made, is a most excellent material for fireproof floors. It has been forbidden avowedly because it is feared that it will not be properly made. It is feared that the cinders will not be of the right kind. By this same method of reasoning, brick or sand might with equal propriety have been excluded. Brick are often of a poor quality, and there is ten times more danger that improper sand will be used than the wrong kind of cinders. One can tell at a glance whether the cinders are right, but bad sand is not so easy to detect. I say, allow any kind of fireproofing that will stand the requisite tests, no matter what the composition of it is and no matter what the span is.

EXCESSIVE REQUIREMENTS.

"The live loads required by this code are excessive and unnecessary; they are greater than are required in European cities and greater than there is any necessity for here. The margin of safety required for the dead load ought to be enough to take care of the live load in all buildings which are not used for public assembly or storage or for other heavy use. The live loads could well be reduced to the figures I have suggested; such a reduction would have no other effect than to stimulate and encourage the use of fireproof methods of building instead of combustible ones.

"The stresses allowed on steel and concrete are too low; they are less than is usual in good practice. The code seems to be fashioned upon the theory that builders will slight their work and that the Building Department will be powerless to prevent it. More strength is called for than is necessary apparently on this account with the result that the honest builder must throw away his money because the Department may fail in proper supervision and in the detection of violations of the law by builders whose object it is to slight their work. These are a severe tax on fireproof construction and an unnecessary one; it should be removed.

"I calculate that the stresses I have recommended would reduce the cost of fireproof floor systems by about twenty-five per cent. They could be made with entire safety, and they would greatly further the true interests of the city, both by removing an unnecessary burden from the cost of building and by stimulating the use of fireproof methods of construction.

"The law should limit the area of buildings, so that the high ones will not shut out too much light from the street or unjustly deprive neighboring land of its fair share of light. The code makes no provision for this.

BUILDING HEIGHT.

"I recommend that buildings be limited to a height equal to the width of the street upon which they face with no further restriction of area than now exists, and that above this they may be carried to any height over an area equal to one-quarter of the area of the plot upon which they stand, increased by one-half the area of the street or streets opposite their facade or facades; but except within fifty feet of the corner and opposite parks and open spaces no building shall extend beyond a line drawn from the centre of the street and inclined towards the building at an angle of 75 degrees from the horizontal.

"Such a regulation would greatly benefit the city by securing light for the streets; it would benefit property holders by securing to them a fair share of light, and it would injure no one; because builders would still be permitted to occupy all the space that can be properly lighted. What more than this can fairly be asked?

EXTRAORDINARY POWERS.

"One of the most vicious features of the proposed code is the extraordinary powers which it vests in the Superintendent of Buildings. It seems hardly necessary to say that such powers are sure to be abused. The Superintendent of Buildings is to have it in his power to establish standards of construction. He may modify or set aside the law whenever he chooses to do so; he may favor some builders and rigidly hold others to the letter of the law. Builders who feel aggrieved may appeal to the Board of Examiners, but there is no check whatever upon favors he may grant. Such powers should not be entrusted to any one man, no matter how honest he is. If discretion must be allowed him, then every modification which he makes should be published, together with the reasons for making it, so that all may have fair treatment.

"I will repeat what I said at a hearing of the Committee of Aldermen. While I had an application for a modification of the law in the case of a certain building pending before him, the Superintendent asked me to use my good officers for a firm of builders in which he was interested and who had put in a bid for the work. If this is what happens in the case of an honest Superintendent of Buildings, what might not happen in the case of a dishonest one. There is no necessity for putting such temptation in the way of a city employee.
